3 HUNGARIANS SENTENCED TO HANG FOR TREASON

BOY SAVES PUP

Danny Ryan, 14, of Brooklyn, ran away from home with his ailing dog, Teddy, to save the pup from destruction—and everything came out all right. Boy and dog disappeared in the midst of elders' plans to destroy Teddy because his hind legs were paralyzed. Policemen found them camping in the woods near Alpine, N. J. They were taken by the officers to a veterinarian who said Teddy could be cured. They returned home, a happy pair. (AP Wirephoto).

SECOND DIES IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Two Brothers Die Following Crash Of Light Plane Near Jackson

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Wednesday's plane crash claimed the life of the second victim, Nola White, 20, at the Baptist Hospital at 5:40 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Mr. White succumbed to injuries received at the Northside Air Park late Wednesday, when he and his brother, Homer B. White, Jr., crashed soon after they left the runway in their light plane. Homer died shortly after being admitted to the emergency room of the hospital here Wednesday.

Both men were students at Millsaps College. Homer was a transfer student from Loyola University and was a junior in the law school. Nola was a freshman.

Double funeral services will be conducted for the brothers at three o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Shiloh Baptist Church near Brookhaven, Miss.

The officiating ministers will be the Rev. J. Paul Driscoll, pastor of the Mid City Baptist Church, New Orleans, the Rev. Peter Green, Crystal Springs, Miss., and the Rev. E. E. Hedgspeth, Nola, Miss.

Homer and Nola were both born in Nola, Miss., in Lawrence county. The town was named for their grandfather. They were members of the Baptist Church. Homer was a veteran of World War II, having served in the air corps.

Nola is survived by his widow, Corine Sebren White.

Homer leaves a wife, Margaret Rockwell White and a son, Howard, 2, of New Orleans.

The other surviving members of their family are their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. White, Sr, New Orleans; four brothers, R. L., Little Rock, Ark., Jewell Johnnie, Tom and Logan, all of New Orleans; two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Hirtler, Orange, N. J., and Miss Bessie White, of New Orleans.

An uncle, P. G. Ivy and an aunt, Mrs. Carlton C. McNeil of Jackson, Miss., also survive.

Pallbearers will be cousins of the deceased; Hugh Ivy, Prentiss Ivy, Jr., Wayne Ivy, Robert Lee Ivy, Roscoe Lee, and Roland Lee.

Interment will be in the Shiloh Cemetery.

ANTI-REDS, LEFT WINGERS HEADING TOWARD CONFLICT

ONE FEDERATION MAY BE TOSSED FROM CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Left Wingers and anti-Communists in the C. I. O. appeared today to be rushing toward a head-on clash at the C. I. O. convention in Cleveland next month.

A third labor federation, made up of those unions under Left-Wing leadership which have been slowly squeezed under the C. I. O.'s recent critical policy, was considered a distinct possibility among C. I. O. leaders.

"What else can they do?" One leading official said. "Unless they follow C. I. O. policy, there's a good chance they will be thrown out at this convention. Then they will be rased to death by C. I. O. unions which have been taking it easy up to now on orders of President Philip Murray."

There are 11 unions in the C. I. O. with leadership regarded as Left-Wing by the C. I. O. itself. Chief of these is the 500,000-member United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, known as U. E. In convention this week, the U. E. re-elected its strongly entrenched administration. At the top are President Albert J. Fitzgerald, Secretary-Treasurer Julius Emspak, and Organization Director James J. Matles.

The U. E. leadership grabbed the initiative at once—issuing a set of "conditions" under which they would continue paying the eight-cent tax on each of its members into the C. I. O. treasury.

The major condition was that the C. I. O. oust officers who have been critical of U. E. leadership. That was

JEWELER CHARGED IN WIFE'S DEATH

One Of 23 Killed In Mid-Air Explosion Of Canadian Plane

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A slim, wavy-haired Quebec jeweler, J. Albert Guay, was formally charged with the death of his wife who died with 22 others in an explosion-torn Quebec airways plane Sept. 9.

Pale and nervous, he was arraigned less than 24 hours after police announced they had proof explosives had been placed aboard the plane to get rid of a woman.

A key witness is Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 40, described as one of several women friends of Guay. She told police she delivered an express package to the aircraft here under the impression it contained "a statue."

The charge made no mention of what police believe caused the plane's destruction—a home-made dynamite bomb. It simply accused Guay of "having Sept. 9 at Sault Au Cochon killed and assassinated Rita Morel (Guay), your wife."

Sault Au Cochon is the timbered mountainside northeast of Quebec where the mangled bodies of the 19 passengers—including three top executives of the Kennecott Copper Corporation—and four crew members were found in the plane wreckage.

The 32-year-old prisoner, who worked during the war in a munitions plant, was brought before Judge Alphonse Garon in the court of sessions. He did not enter a plea.

He answered "Yes" when Court Clerk Philippe Chouinard called his name. As Chouinard read the brief

President Truman's announcement of an atomic blast somewhere in Russia brings the total of such explosions throughout the world to nine. First was set off near Los Alamos, New Mexico, on July 16, 1945. Next two leveled Hiroshima and Nagasaki on August 6 and 8, 1945. Two test bombs were set off at Bikini Atoll on June 30 and July 25, 1946, and three more at Eniwetok in April and May of 1948. Exact date and location of the latest bomb blast are still undisclosed, but evidence signifies Russia's possession of vital A-bomb data. (NEA Telephoto).

Soviet Atomic Blast Starts Speed-Up Of U. S. Policies

ATOM EXPLOSION SPURS CONGRESS

Reaction Puts Pressure On Arms Aid Bill Compromise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—New pressure developed in congress today to get the house to accept the senate's $1,000,000,000 figure for arming America's European allies. It was a quick reaction to Russia's atomic explosion.

Until this news burst yesterday, a compromise lower sum had been regarded as virtually a certainty. The house had voted $580,495,000.

There was no assurance that the senate would prevail. House G. O. P. Leader Martin said he thought the house would insist on its figure. But Senator Millikin (R-Colo.), head of the senate G. O. P. conference, told reporters he thinks the news will improve chances that congress will grant thte full sum.

Chairman Conally (D-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee told reporters he and his colleagues on a senate-house conference committee will insist that congress make $1,-

Jes' Ramblin'

Dear Ramblin':

The other day I visited a young couple in their home. As we were gossiping and chatting back and forth, their young son, he couldn't have been more than ten years old, was lying on the floor in front of the radio listening to a philharmonic orchestra playing some moving classical music. He seemed to be enjoying it no end and was quite oblivious to our presence.

His parents, however, commenced to fidget because the stimulating and thought-producing music was not conducive to small chit-chat and gossip. Finally in desperation, his father shouted at him to shut that darn thing off and to be quiet and go sit in a corner and read the comics or something.

Well this every-day occurrence came back to my mind yesterday when I was talking to W. H. Walpole, na-

Reinforcement Of Military, Political, Economic Unity Stressed

RICKETY ATOMIC PLANS WOULD BE STABILIZED

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) — America's answer to Russia's new atomic weapon, administration officials made clear today, will be to speed up and reinforce the total military, political and economic unity of the west.

Responsible informants said the Truman administration was more concerned than ever:

1. To rebuild this country's rickety atomic partnership with Britain and Canada.

2. To hold the four-year American edge over Russia in bombs and any other atomic weapons.

3. To speed the creation of a united defense strategy for America and western Europe under the north Atlantic treaty.

In both Washington and New York, top officials were at work on the strategy of getting ready for whatever the Russian development may involve.

Secretary of State Acheson was in New York at the assembly of the United Nations in contact with Foreign Secretaries Bevin of Britain and Schuman of France.

President Truman and Acheson were believed to be in close touch.

Here—and around the world—repercussions from President Truman's dramatic announcement continued. A single exception was Russia herself. Not a word in confirmation or denial of the White House statement was forthcoming.

Democratic leaders in congress expressed hope that the house would go along with the senate in approving a $1,000,000,000 first year arms aid program for European members of the Atlantic pact. The house voted only $580,495,000 for that purpose. The final amount apparently must be worked out by senators and house members in a conference.

Senator Bridges (R-N. H.) predicted a new drive to build up the U. S. air force.

In London, The Evening News said U. S. atomic bombs soon may be stored in England, under American control. This was not officially confirmed. The paper also forecast a greater sharing of atomic secrets between the United States, Britain and Canada—partners in the original atomic fission project.

There was a rash of reports that Russia had staged more than one

Forum Planned To Find Community Needs

The number one problem of the community and the answer to it will be the subject of a series of public meetings scheduled for the week of October 3-8, Tom Frazer, Chamber of Commerce president announced yesterday.

Frazer, in making the announcement of the planned forums, said that if the community was to progress a program must be set up.

"We are out to get the citizen's viewpoint on community needs," he said. "Then we want to find out what the Chamber of Commerce can do about it."

"For the convenience of citizens," Frazer continued, "we have scheduled this series. The time will be announced later."

Suggestions derived from the forums, and those received in letters, Frazer explained, would be considered by the board of directors. The schedule of work for 1950 will be planned with the suggestions as a basis, he concluded.

FORMER MARION MAN IS KILLED

Distant Relative Admits Fatal Shooting In Houston, Texas

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 24.—(AP)—James P. Knight, 37-year-old carpenter, has been charged with murdering James L. Brown, 47, formerly of Marion, La., and distant cousin of the carpenter's wife.

He was accused of shooting Brown last night. The charge was filed in Justice of the Peace Tom Maes Court. Knight was released on $1,000 bond.

He made a statement to Capt. J. D. Walters of the Harris county sheriff's office that he shot Brown with a .22 rifle.

Brown died immediately, shot once through the heart. The shooting occurred in the Knight home.

"I heard Brown threaten to slap my wife in front of the house," Knight said, "And I ordered him to leave. He went, saying he would return and kill us.

"Half an hour later he did come back, and a fight started in the house. He knocked me down, and my son, Killis, 13, broke a shotgun stock over Brown's head trying to stop him."

"Finally Brown made a reach for his hip pocket and started for Knight," Knight said.

"I then shot him one time," Knight said. No weapons were found in Brown's pockets. He once had lived with the Knight family for four years.

Brown is survived by a son, James A. Brown; two daughters, Myrtle Brown and Reacy Brown, all of Houston; his father, J. M. Brown of Monroe, La.; three brothers, J. L. Brown, N. O. Brown and C. E. Brown, all of Houston; four sisters, Mrs. Emma Joiner, Mrs. R. C. Manning, Mrs. R. S. Thompson, all of Monroe, La., and Mrs. W. N. Brasher of West Monroe, La.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 10 a.m. at the Union Cemetery near Marion.

The Kilpatrick Funeral Home of Farmerville will be in charge of funeral arrangements.

Youthful Killer Gets Colo. Prison Number

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Jimmy Melton, a killer at 12 two years ago, is again Colorado prison convict No. 24939.

He muffed a chance to get another start and now is back in the state penitentiary as its youngest inmate. He is assigned to cell-block No. 7 and works in the rug factory.

A guard returned the solemn-faced, bespectacled boy to the prison yesterday. The parole under which young Melton was transferred from the prison to Boys Town near Omaha has been revoked.

This is because Jimmy ran away from the community where so many boys have learned to make good after a bad beginning—ran away and hit a Council Bluffs, Iowa, man on the head with a pipe in an attempted robbery. The blow wasn't hard enough and the intended victim quickly overpowered the boy.

Melton shot his sister, Phyllis, 16 to death in their home at Las Animas, Colo., in December, 1947. He was convicted and given a sentence of 12 years to life imprisonment.

But he never spent any time behind prison walls. Warden Roy Best said he was convinced Jimmy was a good boy at heart and took him into his home. He lived there and went to school at Canon City until his transfer to Boys Town.

Russia Again Accused By Yugoslav Diplomat

Considers Plot To Crush Yugoslavia As Major Intrenational Problem; Chilean In U. N. Raps Soviet Union's 'Hateful Imperialism'

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A Yugoslav diplomat accused Russia again tonight of plotting to crush his country. But he said Yugoslavia would not vote against Soviet movies in the United Nations assembly just because they were Soviet-inspired.

Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler made his statement off the floor of the United Nations, where Chile threw the issue into the assembly with a charge that Russia was "hatefully imperialist."

Bebler said in a U. N. radio broadcast (over CBS) that a treason trial in Budapest, "which was intended to prove the existence of a Yugoslav plot against Hungary, has proved in fact the opposite: the existence of a Soviet plot against the independence of Yugoslavia."

The lanky Yugoslav lawyer said: "This plot becomes today one of the major international problems. It is pregnant with many consequences. But this is another question and perhaps we can discuss it at some other time."

Delegates expected the leader of the delegation, Foreign Minister Evard Kardelj, to put the issue before the 59-nation general assembly when debate resumes Monday morning.

In Belgrade, Premier Marshal Tito called the trial and death sentence of Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian foreign minister and police boss, a "war-mongering" act by Hungary. He handed a note to the Hungarian ambassador with that charge.

Tito called the trial a Soviet plot to overthrow the Tito government in Yugoslavia. Rajk and two others were sentenced to be hanged.

Bebler's statement about the trial came in a denial of trial statements of Rajk that the two had met and plotted against Hungary in a French prison camp in 1941.

Despite the current feud between his country and Russia, Bebler said that Yugoslavia would not vote mechanically in the United Nations assembly.

Bebler for the first time confirmed that Yugoslavia did not vote for Russia's defeated candidate for assembly president, Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis, or for other officers sponsored by Russia.

The Yugoslav did not indicate, however, that Yugoslavia voted for the successful candidate, Carlos P.

BOY, 6, FATALLY SHOT BY BROTHER

Killed While Playing 'Hunter And Squirrel'; Death Termed Accident

CROWVILLE, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—It was just an innocent game of "hunter and squirrel," but it claimed the life of little six-year-old Carroll Ray Greer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Greer, who live on a Madison parish farm ten miles east of here.

It was Carroll Ray's time to be the squirrel, and his brother, William Lavelle, four years old, was elected the hunter. The younger brother took their father's shotgun, leveled it at his brother's face, and fired.

That was the story told to Madison Parish Coroner Dr. E. Otis Edgerton when he arrived to investigate the incident. He termed the shooting "accidental" and said a coroner's inquest would not be necessary.

Greer, the lads' father, said he had been hunting this morning and upon his arrival back home, had put his gun on a high shelf in the corn crib.

"I didn't think the children could get it," he said.

The incident occurred at about 12:15 p.m. at the Greer farm.

Coroner Edgerton said the boy died instantly of a shotgun wound in the face.

DULLES-LEHMAN OPEN CAMPAIGN

Republican Nominee Says Reds Avowed He Must Be Beaten

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Communism has shoved aside other issues so far in New York's senate election battle between John Foster Dulles and Herbert H. Lehman.

Dulles, 61-year-old Republican nominee and present holder of the senate seat, charges that Communists have marked him as a man who must be beaten.

He insists that Lehman is renouncing Red support in public but is accepting it privately and even counting on it to win Nov. 8.

The American Labor Party, which sometimes polls 500,000 votes in the state did not name a senate candidate. Leaders of both major parties say that A. L. P. is Communist-dominated. Dulles charges that most of the A. L. P. votes will go to his opponent.

Lehman, 71-year-old nominee of the Democratic and Liberal parties, asserts that he never has accepted Communist backing in any of his

MOSCOW SILENT ON BLAST ISSUE

Russian Press Outlines U. N. Activity, But Avoids Truman Announcement

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Soviet press today printed dispatches from Washington and New York about:

The U. N. general assembly.

Reported British - American disagreements over atomic energy.

The labor situation in the electrical industry.

(There was no story about President Truman's announcement of evidence that within recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in Soviet Russia. This dispatch passed through Soviet censorship. One of the late sections of the dispatch was not received by the Associated Press in New York).

Two of the stories dealt with atomic energy. The first was an account of the speech of Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky before the U. N. assembly Friday.

Tass, Soviet news agency, said the hall, empty during the "colorless and, in essence, empty declarations by the American secretary of state and other delegates" was filled to capacity to hear Vishinsky.

"Hundreds of journalists representing tens of countries filled the press gallery," it said. "Batteries of motion picture cameras and television cameras were set up. Every minute flash bulbs went off. Hundreds of copies of the speech of Vishinsky in English were seized in several minutes. Journalists besieged the Soviet delegation trying to get a translation of the speech of the chief delegate of the U. S. S. R. Even before the end of Vishinsky's speech the largest agencies began to transmit the text of his speech for distribution to the newspapers."

(Tass did not mention that interest

FORMER OFFICIALS

Convicted Of Conspiring With U. S., Yugoslavia Against Hungary

LIFE IMPRISONMENT IS ORDERED FOR TWO OTHERS

By Endre Marton

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Ex-Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk and two former Communist party officials were sentenced today to death on the gallows for a purported plot to overthrow Hungary's Communist government.

They themselves had testified they worked with Americans and Yugoslavs to toss Hungary under the influence of Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito.

Two other men were sentenced to life imprisonment and one to nine years in this second big Hungarian treason trial of 1949. Appeals were entered for all, through Rajk protested that "I consider the verdict justified."

A technicality delayed a decision in the case of the other defendants, Lt. Gen. Gygory Palffy and Col. Bela Korondy. The five-judge people's court ruled it was not competent to deal with them and ordered them held for courtmartial, though they had admitted government charges as freely as the rest in the six-day hearing.

Gen. Palffy formerly headed the Hungarian army as its chief inspector. Col. Korondy commanded Budapest police. As military personnel, they might be sentenced to death before a firing squad. Hanging is the penalty for condemned civilians.

The case attracted the most international attention to Hungary since the treason trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty last February. The Roman Catholic primate is now serving a life term.

The sentences, delivered by Presiding Judge Peter Janko before a hushed and crowded courtroom:

Death—For Rajk, a poker-faced man of 40 who headed Hungary's police as interior minister before his shift to the foreign ministry; Dr. Tibor Szoenyi, 46, former member of parliament who directed the Hungarian Communist party's Cadre system supervising rank and file members; and Andras Szalai, 32, deputy to Szoenyi.

Life—For Lazar Brankov, 37-year-old Yugoslav who was counsellor in the Yugoslav legation in Budapest; and Pal Justus, 44, former member of parliament and vice-president of the Hungarian radio.

Nine years—For Milan Ognyeivch, a Hungarian subject of Serbian origin accused of being a Yugoslav spy.

(Oral confessions, supporting and amplifying the government's pretrial charges, permitted the hearing to proceed without a hitch. The Yugoslav Trade Union Organ Rad said they "flow like well-learned declarations, but nowhere can there be found credible and proven facts." The Yugoslav government has denounced the trial as a Soviet-staged maneuver in the Kremlin's propaganda warfare against Tito.

(Hungary, like various other nations behind the Iron Curtain, considers any prisoner brought into court is guilty until proven innocent, the reverse of western procedure. Statements made by prisoners during police interrogation are entered as gilt-edged evidence. Testimony usually follows the pattern of the indictments. Why? Court officials say it's because the indictments tell the truth. They have denied western charges that threats to prisoners' families, physical violence or drugs prompt the confessions).

Chief Prosecutor Gyula Alapi, who demanded death sentences in his summation, insisted Brankov and Justus also should die. He accepted the court's decision regarding the others.

Security policemen were stationed beside each defendant and an extra row of police stood behind them. The

Wave Whips Alabama; Penn State Upset; Michigan Has Close Call; Army Triumphs

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mighty Penn State took a pasting and equally mighty Michigan and Ohio State got a scare each today as the 1949 college football season swung into high gear.

Villanova, which annihilated Texas A. and M. last week, stormed through Penn State, 27 to 6. It was the first time the Nittany Lions had lost in three years and the first time they had lost an opening game since 1931.

Both Michigan and Ohio State had to hustle for narrow victories. Michigan eked out a 7 to 3 verdict over neighboring Michigan State before 92,000 and the Buckeyes, pick of many for the Big Ten title, nipped Missouri by the margin of a missed kick, 35 to 34.

But Notre Dame, North Carolina, Army, Minnesota, Texas, Northwestern and Duke showed the power expected of them.

It was Emil (Old Folks) Sitko, now a fullback, who scored three touchdowns as Notre Dame opened with a 49 to 6 victory over Indiana. North Carolina grabbed a handful of points in the final half to spill North Carolina State, 26 to 6. Texas came east to give Temple its worst defeat ever, 54 to 0.

Army had to use its regulars most of the way but when the Cadets got rolling they pasted up a 47 to 7 conquest of Davidson. Duke pounded across 10 touchdowns to bury Richmond, 67 to 0. Minnesota, a prime Rose Bowl contender, measured the University of Washington, 48 to 20 while Northwestern, who made the California trip last January, mastered Purdue, 20 to 6, in a Big Ten title game.

Biggest surprises in reverse saw Iowa State unleash a "V" formation—in which the fullback and quarterback face each other behind the center—to tie Illinois, 20 to 20. Illinois was a 28-point pre-game favorite.

And then there was the 59 to 0 whipping taken by Susquehanna where the venerable A. A. Stagg, Sr., began his 60th year of coaching. Head mentor of the Pennsylvanians, who were drubbed by City College of New York, is his son, A. A. Stagg, Jr.

Yale was held scoreless the first period before turning Levi Jackson to down Connecticut, 26 to 0, and Columbia's remodeled team charged to a 27 to 7 verdict over Amherst.

Pittsburgh made Jack Cloud look like just another fullback while handling William & Mary, 13 to 7 and U. C. L. A. utilized Iowa mistakes for its 41 to 25 victory, its debut under new Coach Red Sanders.

In the south Tennessee's flashy sophomores stopped Mississippi, 10 to 0, and Georgia Tech's puny Engineers manufactured a 12 to 7 victory over highly favored Vanderbilt. Tulane, with Eddie Price setting the pace, scuttled Alabama, 28 to 14.

Parents Hope Kidnaped Son Starts To School This Fall

DAYTON, O., Sept. 24—(AP)—Little Ronnie Thompson, victim of a black market baby kidnaping five years ago, is expected to start to school this fall—somewhere.

That is the hope today of the little boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson, as the fifth anniversary of the lad's disappearance nears.

Ronnie disappeared with a new nursemaid Oct. 7, 1944. The trail wandered to Detroit, to northwest Michigan, then vanished. Police said he was taken by a ring operating a black market in babies.

The Dayton baby—a towhead with a round, smiling face—was 18 months old when he vanished. Now he is six, if he is still alive.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are certain Ronnie is alive. Their unflagging hope resulted today in offer of $4,000 in new rewards for information leading to Ronnie's return.

Montgomery county commissioners are offering $2,500, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson $1,000 and Private Detective Russell Pfauhl of Dayton $500.

Pfauhl bolstered the parents' hopes with his offer of $500. Pfauhl was a detective in the Dayton police department when Ronnie disappeared. He worked on the case then, and still hunts around for Ronnie.

"We have never given up hope," said Mrs. Thompson. "We just know Ronnie is alive somewhere."

The father also shares Mrs. Thompson's confidence. He is a factory

Spike Jones and his zany crew of musicians will be presented at Neville High School auditorium by the Exchange Club on October 25, it was announced yesterday. His "Musical Depreciation" show was an outstanding road show hit last year, and several new and novel acts have been added. Advance tickets will be placed on sale in downtown Monroe at a place to be announced this week, the Exchange Club committee stated.

Kane Book Review Will Be Under Pilot Club Auspices

Harnett T. Kane, nationally famous southern writer, will come to Monroe on October 10 for a personal appearance shortly after publication of his book, "Queen New Orleans," it was announced by Mrs. Ellen Thompson, public affairs committee chairman of the Pilot Club of Monroe. The organization is sponsoring the coming of the author who will discuss his first non-fiction work which deals entirely with his native city.

He is scheduled for the review at the Virginia Hotel, one of the first of his speaking and autographing engagements on a nationwide tour.

"Queen New Orleans" has been widely acclaimed in advance reviews by critics as the best of Kane's southern books, and has brought advance sales higher than those of any of his other volumes. The work represents years of research into little-known aspects of the Creole city.

Kane's books have sold about 2,500,000 copies up to date, including foreign translations, reprints and overseas editions. He has been praised as one of the best known of new American writers. Each of his books has been a national best seller, a greater success than the one that preceded it. The author's most recent volume, "Bride of Fortune," a novel based on the life of the Jefferson Davises, has sold more than 840,000 copies.

"Queen New Orleans," Kane's new book, has been applauded by Virginia Kirkus, the book critic. She said: "Harnett Kane's 'Queen New Orleans' is right out in front of the New Orleans books. Kane gives it his best as story teller, historian, biographer, reconteur and guide, giving the city its storied splendor, tradition and unique character." Holland's magazine praised it as the smoothest of reading, quickly and easily read.

"Queen New Orleans" is described as a "sweeping panorama and a procession of lustrous episodes, giving the whole story of New Orleans, past and present." It treats of the steamboat days, mysterious masked balls, duelling under the oaks, the glamorous French opera, the tragic days of yellow fever, war times and the days that followed. It tells of New Orleans from the colonial days of Manon Lescaut to the modern Creole cuisine, famous restaurants and the behind-the-scenes views of Mardi Gras."

Kane's book also gives strange episodes such as that of the Frenchman who put up a castle, with moat and drawbridge, to keep out those he didn't want to receive—including his wife; and the story of the explorer who was captured by cannibals and rescued only when a cannibal widow fell in love with him.

"It is written out of friendly affection, with a broad sympathy and a master's eye for the bizarre that has always been characteristic of this languorous, exciting city by the Mississippi. In chapter after chapter the author reveals New Orleans in all her sparkling variety, from the wonders of the past to the piquancies of the present."

Kane, at 38, has been called "one of the strongest new voices of the south." He is a graduate of Tulane University, former teacher at Loyola University, New Orleans, and is nationally known also for articles in Collier's, Reader's Digest, American Mercury and other magazines. In addition, he is well known as a speaker.

Last year he was presented under auspices of the Pilot Club of Monroe to discuss his latest work, "Bride of Fortune."

A. F. Hints Forbidden Flight To Get Newsman

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The U. S. air force said today it might try to fly injured Lowell Thomas out of a remote Himalayan village—but word from the commentator's son indicated planes were forbidden there.

The son, in a message received today at Thomas' office here, said he hoped to start moving his father by sedan chair Monday on a 16-day trek out of the Far Eastern mountain wilderness.

The 57-year-old radio commentator and author was reported injured when thrown from a horse while in a mountain pass on his way back from Tibet to India.

The air force in Washington said it told its air rescue center at Dharan, Saudi Arabia, to stand by.

This base is 15 hours flying time from Chantse, the village where Thomas was said to be taken. However, Thomas' son, Lowell, Jr., who accompanied his father on the trip, said in his cable: "Airplanes forbidden."

He gave no explanation.

The message said "Hip okay. Thigh bone injury uncertain without X-ray."

This was the first explanation of Thomas' specific injuries.

Thomas' office here has said he left Tibet carrying a message from the Dalai Lame to President Truman.

Russian Blast Seen As Stopper To Isolationism

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — (AP) — A member of the Democratic high command in the house, Representative Priest (D-Tenn.), predicted today that Russia's atomic blast will stop a "growing trend toward isolationism" in America.

Priest is the man who checks up for the leadership on house sentiment on big issues. He rounds the Democratic votes.

"The atomic explosion," he told reporters, "is certain to shock the people out of any feeling of complacency."

He told reporters that when he was back home while the house was on vacation, he detected a new trend toward isolationism. Many other members, he said, undoubtedly noted it.

It is based on a feeling that times are good and people aren't worrying much, Priest said.

"It is apparent from conversations with other house members," he said, "that the trend toward isolationism has been growing."

Priest said:

"The trend simply can't continue in the face of the realities now known to the public." There are bound to be some effects on legislation, he added.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Readings and tryouts for the casting of Little Theatre's first play of the season "John Loves Mary" will be held sometime early next week, according to Director Charles Stockner Fontelieu. The first reading will be scheduled upon the arrival of all the scripts for the ten roles to be cast.

The three act comedy by Norman Krasna will require three women and seven men and Director Fontelieu feels that in order to choose a starring cast each person trying out should be able to read from individual scripts, rather than rendering their interpreation from the director's manual.

The Monroe Little Theatre entering its eighteenth year has enjoyed a most successful campaign in membership this year; it has become the proud possessor of a home of its own and has acquired an interesting, enthusiastic and personable director in Charles Stockner Fontelieu. He likes the town, the people, the play house and heartily approved the choice of "John Loves Mary" for the ifrst play.

Such exalted success has come our way since the beclouded days of last season that it leaves one just a little in awe of the faith, hope, courage and work, work, work that is responsible

SKETCH NOTES—From way up in Woodbury, N. J. comes a letter of congratulation and a check for this year's membership in Monroe Little Theatre, from none other than Gil Findlay who played several outstanding roles with the Little Theatre. In fact for two years Gil appeared in nearly every play that was presented. Gil is with the Kellogg Con. Co. and he says "If it develops that I head for California or the South, you can be sure that I will detour by the way of Monroe." Thanks Gil Findlay. . . Dorothy Elmendorf called up to say that she was very happy when we announced "John Loves Mary" as the first play. She wants to help with the props for this play. She said, "Last year when I saw it as a movie, I kept thinking what a good Little Theatre play it would make." . . . Little Theatre Member Irene Simms Reid leaves Sunday via Delta Air Lines to attend the National Food Manufacturers convention in session at the Presidents and officials of the Food Mfg. Co. of America, advertising agencies and advertising executives will be in attendance. . . . This reminds us Irene had as her guest this week-end Mrs. J. Glenn Jordan from the advertising department of the Chattanooga Free-Press, who formerly lived in Monroe and was associated with the Ouachita Citizen in West Monroe. Mrs. Jordan was recently highly commended by the National Research Bureau for her advertising-publicity feature "This Week in Chattanooga's Business and Industry." Mrs. Jordan tells us that the Chattanooga Little Theatre was having a week's run of "John Loves Mary" when she left. She caught the show on opening night. . . Another Little Theatre member Chicago bound, Blanche Gates left Saturday via Delta airways to attend a three-day Classified Advertising Clinic. This is the second time she has attended the classified advertising clinic which draws classified representatives from throughout the nation. She will be guest at the LaSalle Hotel. . . All Little Theatre members who are interested in helping with the furnishing, decorating and making liveable the new home of Little Theatre, are requested to get in touch with any member of the board as well Director Fontelieu. We got a feeling that things are going to proceed fast with the new and likeable skipper aboard.

ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAM PLANNED

N. J. C. Offers Practical Training Under Newly Organized Projects

Widening the program of service to people of this area, Northeast Junior College is planning to offer special classes in adult education this year. This phase of the institution's activities is in addition to the regular day schedule of courses and others provided through the general extension division of Louisiana State University, directed here by A. S. Huffman of the N. J. C. faculty.

A class in clothing construction is already organized in the adult education list of offerings, Dean Rodney Cline announced. Sixteen women have registered for the non-credit course to be taught by Miss Frances Kelso, assistant professor of home economics at N. J. C.

The group will meet each Monday from 7 to 9 p. m. as designated at the organization of the class last week. Registration is still open. Persons desiring information about the course may call Miss Kelso at the college or attend Monday night's class at 7 o'clock in room 105 of the science building.

Practical work is to be emphasized in the clothing construction class. Since the group will comprise women ranging from beginners in sewing to those who have had a large amount of experience, individual attention will be an important factor, Miss Kelso said.

Projects will probably include the making of simple garments for both children and adults, alteration of clothing, making over dresses and suits and the construction of tailored garments. Through individual instruction each person will be able to work on the project which is most practical or desirable for her. Any fabric may be used in the construction of garments.

The sewing room in the science building will be available to members of the class during the day when it is not being used for regular classes, Miss Kelso said. Extra sewing done at the college or at home will be left entierly to the student. This additional work may be considered practical for the person who is concerned with completing garments in a shorter time than others would be interested in doing.

Chief Hales Will Attend Firemen's Convention

Monroe's fire chief, H. L. Hales, said yesterday morning that he would journey to New Orleans for a three-day convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

The affair is slated to get underway Monday.

Chief Hales said he has only attended one of the conventions "and that was back in 1929 when I drove Chief F. J. Roddy of New Orleans."

The last convention of the association was conducted in Miami, Fla.

The local chief said he was taking with him the department's mechanic, W. O. Cornett, who will help him drive back a new, thousand gallon pumper, which was recently purchased for the M. F. D.

The new fire truck, the chief said, was unloaded in New Orleans Saturday.

Fondale Holds September Meet

It was a real inspiration to meet with the 4-H club at Fondale on September 23, where 74 young people were assmbled, quiet, interested, and giving their undivided attention to the business of the meeting, consisting mainly of preparation for entries to be exhibited at the Ouachita Valley Fair. Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, in charge of 4-H clubs for Ouachita parish, was in charge, and gave a very plain and understandable explanation of the proper way in which the various entries should be arranged and displayed, telling the club members just what items were eligible and going into detail in the dissimination of general information.

I. R. Creel, assistant county agent, followed Mrs. Dawson, taking for his theme the exhibits of wild life, giving very interesting and useful information along the lines of the preparation of woods, leaves, fruits, etc., with some special advice on entries of sweet potatoes.

The enthusiasm of the young people, and their very evident enthusiastic interest in the fair was really heartwarmng, and it is gratifying that the right kind of training is being given to these "citizens of tomorrow."

In addtion to Mrs. Dawson and Mr. Creel, there were present: Miss Marie Filhiol, principal of Fondale Grammar School; Mrs. U. N. Bradford, teacher of sixth grade; Mrs. Betty Jones, seventh grade; Armand Lewis, eighth grade, and Mesdames A. T. Stout and F. D. Louton.

Men In Service

Pvt. Richard E. Woolsey, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Woolsey, 303 Powell avenue, Monroe, recently arrived at Lackland air force base, San Antonio, Tex., where he has been assigned for basic training.

Woolsey enlisted in Monroe two weeks ago after completing two years in the local National Guard unit.

Sgt. Dewel N. Chandler, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Chandler, Route 2 in Oak Grove, recently received personal commendation from Col. Joseph C. Moore, commander of the 12th air force ROTC camp at Tinker air force base, Oklahoma City. Sergeant Chandler received the commendation for specially excellent service while on temporary duty with the food service squadron in the ROTC summer camp. He is presently assigned to the 47th food service squadron of the 47th bombardment wing at Barksdale air force base, Shreveport. Prior to entering the service in 1942, Chandler attended Oak Grove High School.

Top speed of the old covered wagons which helped settle America was about 20 miles a day.

The Annexation Proposal

The City Council has proposed to annex five areas lying immediately outside the present city limits, and we heartily endorse the project.

The natural boundaries of the City of Monroe are the Ouachita river and Bayou DeSiard, yet several areas lying within these boundaries are not included in the present city limits, despite the fact that they have become thickly populated within the past ten years and are definitely a part of our city. Two of the areas which the council proposes to annex lie in the heart of the Louisville avenue development, east of 21st street. Another borders Bayou DeSiard along the Loop Road, a fourth is the Negro section Booker T. Washington addition and the other is a small area lying west and south of Bernstein Park on the south side.

It is important that these areas be included in the city limits within the next 60 days if we are to receive credit for the population residing therein in the 1950 census. Monroe is listed as a city of some 28,000 people in the official 1940 census, yet we all know that the figure should be much higher than that. It means much to the business interests of the community that our population count be shown as it properly exists, and there's no time to be lost in carrying out the annexation program. Unless these areas are added, our true population figure will not be official on the census rolls.

There are many advantages to residents of the areas which would be added to the city proper. They would enjoy added fire protection, for instance, which would reduce their insurance rates 20 to 25 per cent. Their gas bills would be reduced 25 per cent. Their streets would be repaired and maintained by the city and regular garbage collection would be made. And, most important of all, if the city's proposed expansion and improvement of our sewer system is carried out, those residents who long have suffered with septic tanks and other ineffectual methods of sewage disposal will enjoy adequate facilities at a cost which will be no more than paid by citizens now residing within the city limits.

Petitions are now being circulated to determine if persons now residing immediately adjacent to the present city limits want to become a part of the city proper. We urge that these petitions be signed immediately so that there will be no delay in the continued progress of our community.

A Building Boom

Monroe will enjoy an unprecedented building boom within the next six months if present plans materialize.

A $750,000 apartment project on Park avenue will be started within the next few weeks, to be followed by a $6,000,000 housing program which authorities say will be commenced around the first of the year. Ground already has been purchased for construction of the apartment building and work will begin as soon as plans, which are now in the final stages of completion, are submitted to contractors.

The housing project developed from a similar proposal approved in 1940 but cancelled because of the war. Instead of the original 126-unit plan, an additional 400 dwelling units have been approved by the federal government, according to Joe Guerriero, chairman of the Monroe Housing Authority. Building plans for the original project are being revised and construction work will begin as soon as the architects have submitted their final drawings, the chairman said. Property was purchased in 1940 and there should be no delay.

Appropriation for the additional 400 units was obtained following a conference between Mr. Guerriero, City Attorney Henry Bernstein and federal housing authorities at Fort Worth last week, and the local group believes that actual construction on the new project can start shortly after work is begun on the original program.

Building materials for these units will be purchased in Monroe and hundreds of craftsmen will be given employment. Construction of these three projects will come at a time when building usually is in its slack season, and will mean much to the prosperity of the entire community.

Red-Ink Bookkeeping

The federal government has returned to a policy of deficit financing. While the government spent more in the fiscal year ending July 1 than it took in, it was not necessary to start borrowing because the year began with a sizeable cash balance on hand. This was due to economies practiced by the 80th congress. Now this balance has been exhausted and beginning August 4 the government went back into red-ink bookkeeping.

This is a practice which millions of American had hoped would not again be necessary. Many plans for government economy have been offered, none of which would impair the state of the nation. But to date all have been rejected, and unless congress changes its present attitude the national debt will start growing again, and the sky may be the limit.

Gallantry

Lt. (jg) James Olin Chiles died a civilian's death, a week after he was stricken with bulbar poliomyelitis. But the manner of his death deserves a posthumous citation for gallantry in action.

He knew he was in a bad way. But as long as he could hold a pencil, he kept jotting down notes on his personal condition for the benefit of doctors studying the disease. Whether his notes, scribbled in pain and semi-paralysis, will actually relp doctors find a cure for polio is something no one can predict. But young Lieutenant Chiles did his best, right into the valley of the shadow of death.

He was a first-class fighting man.

DOWN SOUTH

WHY IMITATE FAILURE?

While making an eight weeks' first-hand study of the socialist government of Great Britain last spring, one of my most interesting interviews was with Professor R. A. Hayek, at the London School of Economics. Professor Hayek is the author of the well-known book, "The Road to Serfdom," published in 1944 and later condensed by the Reader's Digest, and is a very keen analyst of economic and social movements

"Professor Hayek," I said during the interview, "the English have always been known as sound, substantial people, not accustomed of letting their emotions get the better of their intellects and not going off half-cocked on impractical schemes. However unfavorable your experience under your socialist government during these past four years looks to me, therefore, I am still over here to get the facts. So I am wondering what measures your present government has taken during these four years that we would do well to consider in my own country and by which we might profit?"

His answer was, "Not one single thing." And he repeated, "I don't know of one single thing we have done during these four years that you would do well to imitate in the United States of America."

Now, Professor Hayek was not being facetious when he said that; he was not just being anti-socialist. It was simply a sad statement of fact with him. He was just analyzing the results of four years of socialist government.

Of course, Professor Hayek's statement was only one man's opinion, and the proponents of socialism would be quick to point that out. But Professor Hayek is not the only one who has reached that conclusion, and there are plenty of facts to bear out such a viewpoint. Some immensely valuable lessons may be learned from Britain's experiment in socialism during these four years.

Perhaps one of the most illuminating is that a re-distribution of wealth, a policy of "soaking the rich," doesn't work—and certainly no measure is any good if it doesn't work. The Labor government of Great Britain went into office in 1945 with the stated purpose of redistributing the national wealth. They had promised the masses of the people during the campaign that there would be virtually no end to the benefits with which they could be provided under such a policy.

During the following four years the wealth of Great Britain was redistributed—and with a vengeance. The program was carried out to such an extent that their chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, was forced to tell the people while I was there in May that there was no prospect of further income from that source, that thereafter whatever social benefits were provided the people would have to be paid for by the recipients, the people themselves. What disillusionment — when the source of perpetual welfare was exhausted in four years! And what even greater disillusionment to realize that at the end of these four years the people were in many respects worse off than when the policy was started! The cost of living was not going down, wages were not be increased, and the government had no money in the budget for additional subsidies!

It has never been difficult at any time in the history of the world to get quite a following for the idea that the wealth of the world is unfairly distributed. It catches the fancy of the unthinking and the dissatisfied, as well as those who are always desirous of overthrowing the existing order. The preponderence of evidence, however, is that there are some fundamental economic laws governing the distribution of most of the wealth of mankind—laws based on thrift and honesty and ambition and initiative and energy—and that these laws will not bear tampering with. We will do well to remember this here is the United States of America.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

COMMON SENSE

To talk about common sense is to announce oneself old-fashioned, so here we are, old-fashioned and determined about being so. There was a noisy scuffle in the school corridor and the kindergarten teacher opened the classroom door and looked up and down the corridor. A small boy whom she recognized as one of her pupils was holding tightly to his mother and kicking her vigorously in the shins.

"Stop that," she said, and running to the struggling couple she dragged the small boy off his mother, seized him by the slack of his rompers and carried him into the classroom. She set him on a small wooden chair and said, ungently, "You sit there young man. I'll talk to you later."

"Oh, oh, please don't hurt him. Be kind to my child. Please," pleaded his mother.

"Nobody will hurt him," said the teacher. "Why do you let him kick you? That's no way for a child to treat his mother."

"But the psychologist said to let him kick and hit. Let him yell and swear when he wants to so he can get it out of his head and not be sick. Our doctor told me to take him and I did, and that's what the special professor told me. So what can I do?"

"Use your good sense," said the teacher. "Do you want a son to grow up thinking it is right for him to kick his mother? Just remember that what a child learns when he is four and five years old is what he is going to remember when he is an old man. He is not to kick his mother. Nor swear at her or at anybody else. He is to learn manners and decent behavior. And I'll see that he does."

It is one thing to say that pent-up emotions will cause tensions that result harmfully on the individual but isn't kicking one's mother rather a crude way of releasing such emotions? If forceful release is necessary wouldn't hammering a nail into a bit of wood with the idea of making a box for a pet be a less harmful and perhaps a more useful way of meeting the need? Certainly it would be a happier way for the mother.

Along with a psychological prescription might well go a dose of common sense. All old things are not necessarily useless nor are all new ideas to displace tried and proven ways. Something of the old always is present to leaven the new—which is common sense, is it not?

Whatever you do, do not tease a bashful child. Dr. Patri explains why in his leaflet on this subject, P-9, "The Bashful Child." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to him, c/o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

In Washington With

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

The Britishers who came to Washington for the dollar-sterling talks kept referring to President Truman's famous point four for development of "backward countries."

While they diffidently avoided the word "backward" in preference to the phrase: "Countries that have not had the same opportunity as we," they definitely wanted us to make long-term investments in the sterling area.

They talked of "TVA-like projects" particularly in India and in the Arab countries of the middle east which are the areas of their primary concern.

The argument was this: That the United States should invest in these areas just as the British invested in North American enterprises during the 19th century.

They said frankly that we could expect a "modest" profit, but not a "quick return." The projects would be self-liquidating, over a long period of time.

The projects the British statesmen had in mind have chiefly to do with water. India and the middle east are primarily concerned with one question: Water.

In these areas, there is either too much water—as in malaria infested sections of India or too little, as in Iraq. At the same time, there is an astounding increase in population in both areas.

Irrigation ditches that date back to Bible times lies useless under the sand, for lack of water. If water were supplied by damming up the streams, these lands could be made to flourish and feed the ever-mounting number of people.

Lands that once were fertile, today have been lost to jungle and swamp. If funds could be obtained on a long-term basis, the land could be restored to meet the food problem.

That is the kind of talk that came up repeatedly while the British were here to talk about their own financial crisis and the crisis in the sterling area, for which they are primarily responsible.

It was obvious that they have paid more attention to the president's point four program than we in the United States.

While the Britishers were still in Washington, Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the powerful foreign relations committee said that no more foreign aid bills would be considered this session. He had the approval of Republican Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, who is number two man on his committee.

The Connally statement was made in the face of a presidential "hope" that something would be done this session to implement the point four ideal.

Carlton Skinner, newly-named civilian governor of Guam, is the third former newspaperman to be promoted to an administrative post within the interior department.

He joins the administrative rank that has been held for a number of years by William E. Warne, assistant secretary of interior, and Michael W. Straus, commissioner of reclamation. Both Warne and Straus went from newspapering into government service.

Skinner, a native of Palo Alto, Calif., worked for United Press and the Wall Street Journal before going into government information work in 1938. Except for a four-year tour of duty with the U. S. coast guard from 1941-45, Skinner, said he has worked as information officer for a number of federal agencies the last 11 years.

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, appointed Skinner from the job of special assistant to the Secretary, which handled press relations for the department.

Straus, a veteran Chicago editor, went into interior when Harold L. Ickes became secretary in 1933. He handled Ices' press relations with the old Public Works Administration and interior so efficiently that Ickes made him reclamation head before resigning.

Secretary Krug found him so efficient that he was not disturbed after Ickes left.

Warne went to interior from the Washington staff of Associated Press in 1935, to become an editor in the reclamation bureau. He rose to head interior's bureau of information, as Straus did before him, and Skinner afterwards. Ickes named him an assistant commissioner of reclamation in 1943. He was appointed as assistant secretary in June 1947, and has remained on under the Krug regime.

Skinner contends there is nothing unusual in appointing newspapermen to administrative positions. He says other newspapermen frequently act surprised at such appointments.

Newspapermen are, on the average, as well qualified as any other profession, including the law, at the job of determining and directing policy matters, he says.

To make a quick upside down pudding, melt about a quarter cup of butter or margarine in a baking dish or old-fashioned iron skillet. Sprinkle with about a cup of brown sugar. Add well drained canned pears, cut side down. Pour over a package of gingerbread mix (mixed according to package directions) and bake.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

SUPREME COURT APPOINTMENTS

A plurality of editors feel that Sherman Minton's record as a circuit court of appeals judge well qualifies him to fill the supreme court vacancy created by the death of Justice Rutledge. But a large minority fears that Minton's nomination is based more on his friendship with Truman than on his judicial qualifications. And a smaller minority takes the definite position that Minton's record as senator and judge indicates neither the general temperament nor the judicial qualifications which should distinguish supreme court appointments.

Boston (Mass.) Herald (Ind.): "What kind of justice Judge Minton will make, time will decide. . . . But it is of dubious qualification that it was Sen. Sharmon Minton who fought for Roosevelt's court packing bill and who undertook to muzzle the anti-New Deal press by illiberal laws. . . . To name a friend, President Truman has passed over some of the more distinguished members of the circuit court bench. . . ."

Washington (D. C.) News (Ind.): "Minton was a strongly partisan New Dealer while in the senate. . . . Very few senators we have known displayed a temperament less judicial. Yet lawyers say that Minton has made a good record as judge on the seventh circuit, and predict he will become an outstanding justice. . . . There are other . . . judges . . . who might appear to have had a prior claim. But . . . Judge Minton is a man or ability, and we hope he will justify the high confidence of his friends."

Hartford (Conn.) Courant (Rep.): "Judge Minton is credited with writing just two major decisions in eight years. One of them upheld the conviction of officials of the great A. & P. Company, now brought into court again by an antitrust suit. He seems to fit into that picture like a piece of jigsaw puzzle. . . . Justice Frankfurter . . . said: 'The most relevant things about an appointee are his breadth of vision . . . his power to discover and suppress his prejudices. . . .' It may be that Judge Minton will develop into a jurist of such stature. But there is little in the record to raise more than a faint hope."

Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot (Ind.-Dem.): "If his record is not one distinguished by notable opinions . . . it is one of competence in which there have been no glaring errors. That can be said without voicing enthusiasm. . . . Only time can tell whether Judge Minton has the high qualifications required of all supreme court justices. It is possible that by taking his place on the liberal side of the court he may help preserve the balanced point of view Justice Rutledge gave it."

Cincinnati (Ohio) Times-Star (Rep.): "The appointment of Minton . . . is obviously a political appointment, and . . . is to be regretted. As a justice it would be within his power to do as on more than one occasion another political appointee, Hugo Black of Alabama, has done and subordinate party consideration to the general good. However, the fact remains that the choice of Minton continues the lopsided lineup of our highest court at eight Democrats to one Republican. This is against a time-honored American tradition."

San Diego (Calif.) Tribune-Sun (Rep.): "The danger of this political imbalance may be more imaginary than real . . . Minton's capacity for service as a justice is being closely appraised by observers, many of whom are concerned over the balance as between liberals and conservatives. . . . Recent appointment of Tom Clark changed the complexion of the bench, giving it five conservatives and four liberals. . . . The new appointment will not unseat the conservatives from their position of dominance."

Houston (Texas) Chronicle (Ind.-Dem.): "It is difficult to tell whether his appointment will mollify the present-day liberals. His career upon the bench has not been distinguished by any particular political philosophy in the decisions he has rendered. He has had a degree of background and training which ought to enable him to fit easily into his new duties. The high court needs more men with similar training. . . . It is most likely, however, that the fact that he and the president were cronies when both were in the senate was the determining factor leading to the appointment."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Rep.): "The record of (Truman's) court appointments is one to cause uneasiness to all who would divorce politics and personal friendships from . . . one of the most solemn duties a president is called upon to perform. The only consideration in naming justices to the supreme court should be judicial qualifications . . . and nothing short of the best should be sufficient."

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

SINK THE NAVY!

No one can absolutely guarantee that a navy will not be valuable in the next war any more than anyone can guarantee that there will not be a next war. Louis Johnson, secretary of defense, is pledged to achieve amalgamation of the armed services and he is personally pledged to ecoomy, to the elimination of duplication and waste. It is now the general impression that this is to be achieved by reducing the navy to a subordinate arm of the defense—to its reduction from the pride of our country to an auxiliary ferry service.

If this is what needs be, then sink the navy. After all, bows and arrows were not retained through sentimentality after their usefulness as a weapon of offense and defense had disappeared. But who, in the year 1949, is prepared absolutely to guarantee that there will be no naval warfare in the next war? The man who does make such an assertion now assumes a very great responsibility indeed.

It, of course, is being asserted that all warfare will be in the air, with a ground force to take over and hold areas captured by air power. The atom bomb is to devastate entire nations, wipe out the civilian population and the national industry. Then along comes somebody else who says that the atom bomb is not what it is cracked up to be, but that chemical warfare and biological warfare will really do the job. We shall hurl germs and viruses and pests and plagues at people and they will die from disease rather than by bullets.

Of course, there ns no experience with all this. The atom bomb was hurled at Japan, but the Japanese had been brought to their knees before that by starvation, by the cutting off of their food and raw material supplies. Neither chemical or biological warfare was actually employed, each side being afraid of a weapon that could not be contained geographically. That does not mean that the atom bomb and the germ will not do infinite damage in the next war. It does mean that we do not know, from actual experience, what it will do. We are like doctors quarreling whether it is the pancreas ar the adrenal gland that makes the patient sick, when they really don't know.

Everyone denies that he wants to sink the navy, but that precisely is happening. The morale among navy men is the lowest that it has ever been in our history. Pretty nearly every naval officer I personally know—and I know a good many—is looking around to see what he will do next—and none of them expect to go into the army or air force. They are an embittered group and they will not keep quiet. They are today particularly embittered because the navy is not permitted to present its cause to the American people.

This is bad public relations on the part of the department of defense, and I am surprised that Steve Early has not arranged it differently. If the navy has no case, an open hearing would establish the fact. If the navy has a case, then the country is entitled to know what it is. Few of us are expert in these matters and many who pretend to be, merely repeat the prejudices of the side they favor. I admit my lack of knowledge, my inexpertness, but add that I should like to hear the whole issue debated out loud. Unification does not mean suppression of the truth, nor will it mean anything but tragedy, if it is done without regard to the significance of all weapons in the next war.

There is a further error in not permitting the navy to state its case.

It gives to laymen like myself the impression that there must be a motive for silencing the navy, while giving the other arms ample opportunity to defend their judgement. That is not a good impression to get about.

Louis Johnson is doing an admirable job which calls for the support of the entire country. Unification is a sound doctrine. Waste is inexcusable. Duplication of costs is outrageous. But is it necessary to sink the navy?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—It's still worth while for a visitor to New York to visit the Battery, at the tip of the Island, but he must be prepared to see chiefly the raw evidences of a great construction project. There are tons, miles and square blocks, round blocks and saw-edged blocks of timber, earth, concrete, stone and board fences. The Battery-Brooklyn tunnel is in an advanced stage of construction, and the approaches on the Manhattan end are nearing completion, so that you can almost guess what they mean. But you can't make much sense out of the ruins of the old Aquarium.

My own disappointment at first beholding the Battery, was due to the lack of any fort, guns or sign of military occupation. The place was considered of real importance for the defense of the City in 1814, when Fort Clinton was built on a little island that was connected with the Battery by a bridge 200 feet long. New York was expecting the British to make an attack on the town at any time.

The channel between the fort and the Battery was filled in about 1856; after the soldiers and cannon had been moved to Governor's Island, where they still are.

Fort Clinton became Castle Garden, opera house and place of amusement. The world knows how Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer, triumphed there. But as the town extended northward, the Garden was less patronized. It became an immigrant station. My father landed there, a barefooted sailor, in 1860.

During my time in New York Castel Garden always has been the Aquarium, an ugly old stone monstrosity full of fish. Now that has been gone a long time, and the old building is more than half wrecked. Injunctions and lawsuits hold up operations from year to year, and about once every three months we have "final" plans for procedure. It's an eyesore, and should be removed before the tunnel is finished and the Battery park is reconstructed.

A new aquarium, likely to be a credit to the city, is about to be started in Bronx Zoological park, where it really belongs. Within a year, it probably will be open to the public.

Explorer Osa Johnson has seen a good patch of the world that isn't seen by tourists. But the really faraway look doesn't cover her face until you speak of Kansas. She was born in Chanute, and likes to recall the friendly neighbors and playmates she used to know there.

Osa was named for a Rosa, friend of her mother. They left off the R just for fun. So I don't think you'll find many other Osas, if any.

Mrs. Gladys Erwin, Lafayette, Ind., writes that she especially likes discussions of words in this column. She is a dictionary user, with a big Webster always near enough for reference in case of doubt. That's a habit that all children acquire in early school days. Incorrect speech is more apt to betray you than is a wrong-style dress or collar.

Mrs. Rae Weimer, Gainesville, Fla., and others: No, the McIntyre columns have neveer been published in book form; too bad, as you and I agree. Selections from the could be made into a grand book, timeless. Some of his cosmopolitan articles were published in books, long out of print now.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Christianity, like the Judaism out of which it came, is a singing religion.

How do its Chrstian hymns compare wth the Psalms, which were the great outpouring of Jewish praise to God?

Many of the Christian hymns are paraphrased versions of the Psalms, or chants of unparaphrased Psalms. Some Christians, notably among some Scotch Presbyterians, have confined their singing to the Psalms But Christian hymns and songs are almost endless in number, and as varied in their themes, emotions, and expressions as the Psalms themselves.

In that multiplicity and variety there are vast differences in the quality of expression, and the religion they express. Nearest to the Psalms are ancient and stately hymns of the church, which like the good news of the Gospel, are ever new. Such are, "All Glory, Laud, and Honor to Thee, Redeemer, King," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "The Day Is Past and Over," and the Crusaders' Hymn, "Fairest Lord Jesus," to name a few of these ancient hymns.

Some hymns, widely sung, are little more than the rhythmic expression of doctrines very limited, and of doubtful validity in the deep range of Christian truth. At the opposite pole are the hymns and songs of shallow sentiment, with no depth of sincerity, jingles that have no relation to great doctrines and truth.

What value, if any, attaches to these racy and tuneful songs, that too often, and among some groups, almost entirely have displaced the great hymns of the church?

They represent in the field of religion the sort of sentimental songs that in the secular field are typical of the music hall and the radio. They are not to be entirely condemned. They appeal to those who lack the power to appreciate richer and finer things, but for whom they nevertheless express a measure of faith and sincerity.

It is unfortunate, however, when they attain to chief, or exclusive, use. The greatest of modern hymns, and many recent hymns do seem to me to be of high quality, are greatest when they are most like the Psalms. A hymn like Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Lord of All Being, Throned Afar," has the Psalm-like appreciation of God in His world.

The Psalms were often expressions of personal moods and experiences, significant because these moods and experiences found so deep a response in the souls of others. Greatest of similar Christian hymns is, I think, Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light."

But richest and best of Christian hymns are those which sound the depths of love and grace, such hymns as Charles Wesley's "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," and one that is among the richest and best of all, the hymn of the blind George Matheson, "O Love, That Wilt Not Let Me Go." These sound the note of something higher and deeper than man's love to man, or man's love to God—the love of God, which is the source of all love."

In Hollywood With

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 24.—Despite rumors of film deals for Deanna Durbin, she's not interested at this time. Her agent has her set for a European concert tour, which will open with two appearances in Lisbon, Portugal. . . . Reconciled: Mabel Todd, the night-club comedienne, and her singer spouse, Matt Santino. . . . June Allyson and Dick Powell, who last year adopted a baby girl, have applied to the same foundling home for another child—a boy, this time. . . . Wotzis about a major studio hiring a detective, full-time, to ride herd on one of its problem stars who's imbibing too freely and too often?

Gene Autry is the latest movie-lite to strike it rich in Texas oil; his well—a wildcat near Witchita Falls—is reportedly a gusher. . . . Expect Janet Leigh and Barry Nelson to announce wedding plans in the near future. . . . On Doc Stork's list: M.-G.-M. Actor Don Taylor (featured in "Battleground") and his wife. . . . I hear that Humphrey Bogart, after noting the reviews of Jimmy Cagney's hit picture, "White Heat," is "whitehot" at the Brothers Warner because they didn't give him first chance at the yarn.

Pals of Edward Arnold predict he'll marry Actress Jean Holloway when his divorce is final, come March. . . . Altar-bound: Annabella and Prince Michael Romanoff (the genuine, not the Hollywood phony). . . . Gossip in music circles insists that Frankie Carle, the ace bandleader, will break up his orchestra this winter and retire. . . . Director Anatole Litvak will marry Italian Actress Mariella Lotti in Rome next month.

Preview nights: Pic of the week: 20th Century-Fox's "Oh, You Beautiful Doll" (June Haver-Mark Stevens-S. Z. Sakall-Charlotte Greenwood). A remarkably entertaining film-musical, loaded to the gunnels with memory-stirring tunes and good laughs. . . . Good: Universal-International's "The Gal Who Took The West" (Yvonne de Carlo-Charles Coburn-Scott Brady-John Russell). Something different in western drama, and something most fans will thoroughly enjoy. . . . Paramount's "The Great Lover" (Bob-Hope-Rhonda Fleming-Roland Young). Not the best Hope picture on record, but it generates a reasonable number of chuckles. . . . So-so: Republic's "The Fighting Kentuckian" (John Wayne-Vera Ralston-Philip Dorn). Period drama with a good idea that didn't quite jell. . . . Best performance: Charlotte Greenwood in "Oh, You Beautiful Doll."

Lana Turner and Bob Topping had their latest argument, I hear, in front of a local nighterie when a group of fans stopped them and asked for her autograph. Topping reportedly lost his easy-to-lose temper and attempted to give the kids an abrupt brush-off, whereupon Lana told him in no uncertain terms to behave himself, and passed out the requested signatures. If that's a sample of Topping's attitude, I'm not surprised that he and Lana have been having trouble. Regardless of his personal opinion of autograph hunters, he should make it a point not to embarrass his wife in front of her fans. And certainly he knew, when the married Lana Turner, that he would be subjected to just such "annoyances."

Trade papers report that Mae West is about to sign for a movie—her first in nearly a decade. I'd like to be one of the first to welcome her back—on one proviso. I hope, in considering a screen comeback, she's forgotten her obsession for being a "femme fatale." Mae's fared unsually well at the hands of Father Time, but there are limits to anyone's endurance, and screen close-ups are merciless. I say I "hope" she's thrown that complex overboard, but I doubt it. Six or seven years ago, when last she dickered for a movie role, she was still determined to play a glamorous beauty upon whom no male could gaze without being entranced.

It would be interesting to know just how many stellar careers will be affected, for the better or the worse, as a result of the recent convention here in Los Angeles, of the Theatre Owners of America. With box office returns at their lowest ebb in years, those exhibitors, you may be sure, spent much of their between-sessions time discussing with one another the drawing power of various stars. On one occasion, I'm told, a large group of the theatre owners went so far as to draw up a secret list of big-name actors and actresses who are "poison" at the box office. Such confabs bring about crystalization of opinion; the exhibitor who has a dislike for any given star is much more apt to turn thumbs down on that player's picture's once he finds that his opinion is generally shared by his fellow theatre men. And, on the other hand, an individual enthusiasm is strengthened by general endorsement. I think, if I were a star, I'd be on pins and needles when the exhibitors convene.

Bette Davis says: "From now on I'm going to laugh, no matter what they do." Well, maybe now it'll be safe to mention "Winter Meeting" in her presence.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

The other night at Lindy's, I had trouble reading the small type on the menu.

"Can you recommend a good eye doctor?" I asked Milton Berle who was sharing my table.

"I know a pip," said the television comedian. "He'll tell you in a minute whether you're a man of vision—or whether the reports have been exaggerated."

The next day I dropped in to see the optician.

"I don't know if it means anything," I said, "but of late the electric lights have been bothering my eyes."

"You mean," said Berle's doctor, "that as far as you're concerned, Mazda's in the cold, cold ground."

"Looks as if Milton pays you off in jokes," I said.

The optician adjusted the metal disk on his forehead, peered into my peepers and then put me through the read-the-last-line-backwards routine.

"All kidding aside," he said, "you have an unusual malady. The only people who get it are men and women. It's known as overstrain, and it's caused by living in the twentieth century."

"My eyes get bloodshot now and then," I said.

"Don't brood about it," said the doctor. "If your enemies don't shoot until they see the whites of your eyes, you can count on a long life."

"Very reassuring," I said, "but isn't it serious when the blood that's supposed to go to your head goes to your eyes?"

"Not necessarily," said the optician, "and to prove my point let me tell you a story that Berle told me recently. . . ."

Not long ago, Milton met up with an old friend whose eyeballs looked like chunks of overripe watermelon.

"Where'd you get the bloodshot eyes?" asked Berle.

"It's a grim story," said his friend. "One night a while back I was standing at a bar, minding my own brandy, when a girl breezed in. Besides having a catchy kisser and a chasey chassis, she looked like a heck of a nice fella and so I invited her to have a drink.

"Well, it turned out that we had an awful lot in comon—we both liked cocker-spaniels, convertibles with the top down and pizza pie with anchovies. So, when dinner time rolled around, I suggested we have a snack together, and by the time we had finished our crepe suzettes, I was so taken with her that I invited her to see 'South Pacific.' And to show you how much I thought of the girl, when she accepted I went out and found two tickets to 'South Pacific.'

"After that, I saw her every night. We would dine at '21,' dance at El Morocco, and when the town folded usually go for a drive on Long Island.

"One night on the way home, I noticed the girl wasn't saying much, and when we pulled up in front of her place she squeezed my hand and invited me in for a nightcap. When we got to her apartment, she looked at me tenderly for a long time and then burst into tears.

"'What's the matter, darling?' I asked.

"'What we're doing is wrong," she sobbed. 'I'm a married woman.'

"It developed her husband was in England on business, and the first thing I knew I was in tears myself.

"'Dearest,' I said, 'I may as well come clean. I'm married, too.'

"Then we both broke down, and for a long time we just held hands and cried our hearts out to gether.

"And, as you know, when you cry every night for six months, your eyes are a cinch to get bloodshot."

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

President Truman's announcement (concurred in by Britain) that there is evidence of an atomic explosion recently in Russia should cause no surprise. Such a development was a foregone conclusion. It had to come sometime.

Moreover there is no reason to assume that this news has increased the danger of war between Russia and the western powers. In fact, it may give a fillip to peace.

Prof. Otto Hahn, regarded as a discoverer of nuclear fission, declared in Bonn, Germany "the news that Soviet Russia has the atomic bomb is good news" because "if both the United States and Russia have it there will be no war." U. S. state department officials generally take the line that the danger of war hasn't been increased or decreased, but that in fact Russia may now be more ready to make a plan for international atomic control.

Whether that was an inspired estimate of possibilities, the fact remains that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky in addressing the United Nations assembly at Lake Success yesterday called on the Big Five powers to conclude a peace pact among themselves. He didn't mention the atomic explosion, leaving his eager audience to draw their own conclusions.

As remarked, there is nothing strange in the fact that there has been an atomic explosion in Russia. would have been remarkable if it hadn't occurred, for it was in the books.

A couple of months ago this column reported there was widespread belief among scientific observers that Russia had at least the theoretical knowledge, as distinguished from the industrial knowledge, of how to make the bomb. Britain also had the secret.

However, America was the only nation having the vast and complicated industrial facilities and the industrial know-how to construct a bomb. That's what stymied Germany in the World war. Her scientists claim she had the know-how for the atom bomb, but lacked the industrial set-up.

Has Russia now overcome these industrial hazards? Perhaps nobody outside Russia knows. All we have been told is that there has been an atomic explosion in Russia. No details.

But supposing it was an atomic bomb, there is no reason to assume that the ability to produce one would inspire Russia to go looking for war with a nation which not only has one atom bomb but many all ready for emergencies. Still, we can't overlook the fact that the more atomic bombs there are scattered about the world, the greater the chances of explosions. Men who carry pistols for protection have tender nerves in their trigger fingers.

While we are sure that neither the United States nor Russia wants war, we can't call that good enough. As President Truman says, this explosion in Russia emphasizes again the necessity for "truly effective, enforcible international control of atomic energy which this government and the large majority of the members of the United Nations support."

U. N. Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo after learning of the president's statement, said the atomic control deadlock before the assembly becomes one of the most pressing problems. Heretofore all efforts to reach agreement have failed because of inability of Russia and the western powers to get together.

Therefore the paramount question of the moment is whether Mr. Vishinsky's proposal for a five power peace pact means Moscow is ready to talk about atomic control.

Hal Boyle's

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Naturally everyone today is wondering what he should do about the atom bomb.

The best possible advice to follow is—don't buy one now on a rising market.

Why have one around the house at all? You can't tune in a baseball program on it like you can on a television set. It's too heavy to throw at a cat and too big to fire at a burglar. And the resale or trade-in value of a used atom bomb is practically zero.

Nope, you might as well turn the whole matter over to the international diplomats of the United Nations, whose theme song is: "You show me your stockpile, and I'll show you mine."

I think the average man will be glad to let it go at that. For he has become bored to death with the atom bomb. He is annoyed at seeing what was to be the century of the common man turned into the century of the big firecracker. And he isn't happy to know that the $64 question of his generation well may be, "where do we blow from here, boys?"

The plain truth is that the atomic era to date has been nothing but an affront to the dignity of man. It has been a goose-pimply period ever since the mortal mushroom shadowed Hiroshima. It has been a time of scare, fear and crisis—east and west.

Have the Russians solved the secret of the atom bomb? Well there is good reason now to believe yes. But what if they have? People weary of fear, and mankind is running out of goose pimples.

Abraham Lincoln is reported once to have been challenged to a duel. Given the choice of weapons, he immediately suggested "shotguns at five paces." His opponent wisely dropped the matter.

Today a duel with atom bombs would be as mutually deadly to nations as shotguns at five paces would be to two individuals.

Atom bombs can be delivered by plane, ship, submarine, or rocket—every way except by parcel post. All nations that took part in any such such merry warfare would suffer, and the casualties would be measured by entire cities rather than platoons.

Imagine the communique:

"A joint force of allied bombers today attacked and wiped out Minsk, according to plan. Our interceptor fighters engaged an enemy flight over the eastern seaboard and shot down 50 planes. Boston is missing."

Four years ago I toured stricken Nagasaki, a black scar in the hills. Room by room I explored a shattered concrete and steel modern hospital in which every patient had been killed. But the dead had been carted away by then, stacked, doused with gasoline and burned. What impressed me most were the windows—the glass had melted and run like dribbles of candle wax.

There is much wise talk about how to protect yourself in the event of atom warfare. The expert agree that dispersal is fine. But they don't explain how a man who owns a delicatessen store off Broadway can move in to a cow pasture in Wisconsin and still sell enough sandwiches to make his living.

Actually about all the ordinary citizen in any country can do about the atom bomb is to dislike it—and pray that nobody blows a bugle.

State Police Arrests

State police officers of Troop F in the Monroe area last week charged Thomas G. Dumas, 23, West Monroe, with drunk driving, causing property damage and driving without a license.

Four other persons were charged last week by the state troopers with drunk driving. They included:

Ray Cupit, 46, Winnsboro, La.; Walter James, 41, Kelly, La.; Grady Rawls, 34, of Wisner, Ark., and Jimmie Lewis, 34-year-old Ruston, La., Negro.

Clarence D. Hart, 54, Ft. Worth, Texas, Oscar Lee Townsend, 22, of West Monroe, and Felts Johnson, 36-year-old Monroe Negro, were charged with reckless driving causing an accident.

Two persons, D. W. Moulder, 26, of Forest, La., and Carter Brown, 29, of Atlanta, Ga., were booked with reckless driving and fleeing the scene of an accident.

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The television hearings opening here Monday mean that changes are in the making in this newest field of popular entertainment.

But don't expect anything to happen suddenly—or even anytime soon—as a result of the federal communications commission's latest study of the subject.

Television just now presents a package much too complex for any quick handling, by either government or industry.

In other words, if you are thinking in terms of "color by Christmas," forget it.

In all the legalistic discussion that will go on before the FCC during the next few weeks, the important thing to remember is this:

The television set you now have or may be thinking of buying from your local store will always be able to tune in just what it is tuning in now, until it wears out.

If the FCC makes the changes it is now considering, you can buy some gadgets for these present sets to get in on whatever may be added to the television system.

The hearings will deal principally with these three things:

1. More channels, designed to open local television outlets in more towns.
2. Revised engineering standards for the video broadcasters.
3. Color television.

Under the first heading, 42 new channels are proposed in the "ultra high frequencies," to be added to the present 12 channels in the "very high frequencies."

Most present sets are tooled for VHF only. If your town gets a UHF channel and you want to tune in on it, you will need a "converter." The experts think they can be produced at relatively low cost—say, $15 to $18.

Item two deals mainly with the technical queston of how far apart video broadcasting towers should be located for improved reception.

In its probe into the final item, FCC will look over a half-dozen proposals for color televising, to find out if any of them are ripe for regular operation.

Under present plans, if color should be authorized the programs would be available to present set owner who could tune them in in black-and-white. By hooking an "adapter" to the present set, they could get color.

The cost of an adapter is estimated at $75, but the experts hope a cheaper edition will result from mass production.

In any case, nothing will happen right away.

Radio people say that even if things move along at a fast clip, it would hardly be possible for any UHF station to get on the air during 1950. And the Radio Manufacturers' Association has told FCC that color television for the general public is probably "several years" away.

Sprawling Layton Castle Has Colorful History Since 1812

By Margaret Gambrell
(Of the Morning World Staff)

The 137-year-old Layton Castle, facing the Ouachita river in Monroe, was once the favorite hunting grounds of John James Audubon. Typical of the architecture of Normandy, it is a testimony to builders of another day.

Surrounded by rare trees and plants, the pinkish red brick castle that stands today has been remodeled but embodies the original structure of the home built by Judge Henry Bry in 1812.

The medieval-type castle is occupied by Robert Layton—great grandson of Henry Bry, who was host to Audubon and also responsible for the growth and fame of the building.

Mr. Bry left war-torn Europe in 1803 to visit relatives in this country. After spending some time in Cuba and the West Indies, he came to New Orleans. Attracted by the natural beauty and fertile territory on the Ouachita, Judge Bry purchased from the government the site of the residence known as Layton Castle. The house built by him has disappeared within the castle walls.

Mulberry Grove

Judge Bry, from Geneva, Switzerland, soon developed a strong patriotism, which showed in his interest and participation in civic developments in Fort Miro, now the modern city of Monroe. He was one of the most successful planters, owned and operated his own gin.

In addition, he was a naturalist and horticulturist. One of his first ventures was to build a silkworm house in an attempt to raise silk. These worms were brought to him from Japan by a close friend, Stephen Girard, of Philadelphia, who donated about 1,050 acres and 30 slaves to the city of New Orleans for the promotion of health and general prosperity of the inhabitants.

Mulberry trees, planted to furnish food for the silkworms, gave the estate the name "Mulberry Grove." The silkworm house stands today as it was originally constructed in 1812. Mr. Layton, III, describes his great-grandfather as "a jack of all trades," serving in capacity of a legal adviser and even having had a hand in the making of the bricks.

An Often Visitor

Audubon, Louisiana's most beloved naturalist, was a close friend of Henry Bry and spent weeks as a visitor in the home. The diary of Grandfather Layton tells of a trip from New Orleans to California made with Audubon, who was commander of the company. The trip was made by boat to southern Texas and from there overland. The diary also gives an account of the yellow fever and plague, which killed many of our soldiers during the war with Mexico.

Among the most treasured possessions of the family is a miniature Audubon did of himself at 21, and gave Mr. Bry.

When Judge Bry died he left the estate to his wife and daughter, Nancy, who later married Robert Layton. Since then, the castle has remained with the Layton family for four generations.

Robert Layton, II, was a promising young doctor. He died of pneumonia at the age of 29, shortly after he had established the first charity hospital in north Louisiana. Having lived in France for several years, while her husband studied medicine, Mrs. Layton became impressed by the Normandy architecture. After the death of her husband, she remodeled the home, giving it the appearance of an Old World manor.

European Type Castle

The castle consisting of three stories, a feudal tower, turrets, columns and a red sloping tile roof, has all the stately and dignified appearance of a European castle. The exterior walls are 18 inches thick with 14-inch-thick walls inside the castle.

In the hall and all through the second story of the home is inlaid parallel parque oak flooring, whereas in the library this same type flooring is inlaid in the shape of diamonds. The handmade library blinds, resembling modern Venetian blinds, are carved from black walnut, as are most of the window frames.

Third floor was originally an enormous ballroom, which has been the scene of numerous balls, from the time of Southern belles, attired in ante-bellum costume, to the present day of informalities.

One of Louisiana's oldest and most abundant historical libraries is housed in the Layton home. Included in the volumes is a complete collection of French medical encyclopedias formerly used by Dr. Layton.

Antique Furnishings

Most of the furniture is antique; part was handmade by a French cabinet maker and some imported. In the living room are two full length mirrors with frames of gold which were brought from Mrs. Carol Flower Layton's ancestral home and added to the collection of family antiques.

Lovers of art never cease to marvel at the lithographs and chromo-lithographs of Audubon paintings which hang in the Castle. The long hall, as wide as the average room, extends the length of the house and its walls are lined with famous Audobon paintings and family portraits.

In the dining room, china cabinets are filled with English White bone and French Haviland china. Chandeliers, antique silver services, vases and candlesticks are among the treasured heirlooms.

Hospitality Still Exists

Although the grounds have changed, the rare trees are still filled with birds and squirrels. Some of the rarest specimen of camellias in the state are in the Layton gardens. Many of these were brought from the southern part of France and Italy and have grown to tremendous size. Some of the japonica trees are more than 100 years old.

Mr. Bry did not specialize in planting a certain kind of tree, but instead planted a variety, many of which are common today, and others, rare in Louisiana. Among the rarest are the cork tree from Spain and the gingo tree, commonly called "fan tree," from Japan. Others planted by Judge Bry were the flowering tulip popular, pecan trees, crepe myrtles, japonicas, oaks, willows, mulberries, chestnuts and maple.

To the right of the house is the family cemetery enclosed by a high brick wall. All the family, from the time of Mr. Bry, has been buried here. The walk to the cemetery is bordered with a small English box hedge and shaded by crepe myrtles.

Within recent years much of the castle's spaciousness has been converted into modern apartments. From its beginning as "Mulberry Grove" the castle has had a vivid and changeable existence though amidst its ancestry live Mr. and Mrs. Robert Layton, III, and family—direct descendants of Judge Bry.

Though time has necessitated changes in the ancestral home, hospitality has never ceased in the castle, where Audubon was an often welcomed guest.

Tribe Fan Will Quit Pole After Cleveland Loses Race

By Bud Sprunger

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24. — (AP) — Charley Lupica will come down off his roost tomorrow, but there won't be how to crow about.

May 31 when Lupica began his pole-sitting Cleveland's Indians were in the American League's seventh place. He thought then his descent would be in celebration of the Indians' feat of leading the league.

The Tribe fan had been with some friends over Cleveland's chances of retaining its world championship. His friends said the Tribe never would reach the top of the standings. Charley said they would get to first place soon. He vowed to climb a pole over the confectionery in which he is a partner. He said he would stay there until the Indians reached first place.

The Indians never have. They rallied enough to give their most ardent rooter hope, but never enough to give Charley the right to come down. At their best on August 4 the Indians were in second place, two and a half games off the pace set by New York.

Today they were in fourth spot, 11 games out. After it became apparent the Indians might not reach first, Lupica decided he would stay aloft until the season ended.

Tribe President Bill Veeck finally talked Lupica down before the season ended. He pointed out that Lupica should give his fellow fans a chance to see him. He offered to move the 37-year-old rooter, pole and all, to the stadium.

Lupica accepted and today the pole, with Charley ducking under utility lines, was hauled by truck to the stadium's center field. He'll sleep on his platform again tonight. Tomorrow Lupica is to climb down before the last home game of the season. He'll walk on earth for the first time in 117 days, to a special box from where he'll watch the Tribesmen play Detroit.

Cleveland ends the season October 2 in Detroit.

Voodoo On Last Legs In New Orleans

By James McLean

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)— Voodoo still slinks in the dark corners of ancient New Orleans, but it's a dying business.

There are those who claim voodoo's curse rid the world of Hitler and Mussolini.

On a certain night back in 1941, the story goes, a hoodoo hotshot and nine black-garbed assistants filed into a graveyard. They buried pictures of the two dictators. As the yellow moon rose, tall black candles were lit on the grave. The leader raised his arms to the moon. His aides tossed nerve-taut black cats into the candle flames, and as their screams filled the night the curse was pronounced—death to Hitler by a bullet, Mussolini by hanging.

But voodoo's grip has withered, despite such modern touches as cut prices, free samples and even drug store specials.

This toothless old terror is on its last shaky legs, a far cry from the day when the merest whisper of its presence could paralyze with fear.

The latest flurry to reach local headlines involved a young white war widow. She found a black voodoo cross on her doorstep. It symbolized death or separation from friends.

The wax cross had the young widow's name on it and 43 deep thrust pins. At the top was a piece of string, knotted nine times. The maker of the cross was never traced, but police said it was voodoo professional work.

Police thought it was an attempt to extort money. Older residents in the neighborhood, wise to voodoo ways, said it was an attempt to turn the young, attractive woman against a boy friend.

There was a time when black voodoo queens ruled a realm of their own in this city of shoulder-wide streets and fancy grillwork balconies.

Lusty Days Gone

But the lusty days of Melane and Marie Levau, king and queen of ante-bellum voodooism have faded into history.

The dregs that crop up today are nothing more than petty rackets capitalizing on superstition. Voodoo clings to life now by hawking "luck" to Negroes who play the ponies and numbers.

Gypsies too are muscling in on this old voodoo power of commanding luck. They became so active recently that police had to chase them out of town, Detective Captain Harry O. Gregson said.

Voodoo basically is a smirking little god of evil who promised anything for a fee. It is organized superstition, twisted and fanatical.

But education dug around the dark corners and finally kicked the stuffing out of wierd voodoo fetishes.

Voodoo lost its lethal punch before the turn of the century. Here's what the Daily Picayune of June 24, 1894, said:

"The days of voodooism are irretrievably gone. People are just too busy or thrifty to spend time and money on such jugglery."

In New Orleans today you can still find Negroes crowded in smoky rooms, sweat rolling from their faces as they surge through a frenzy of rhythm.

But that's just plain and simple Saturday night bebop.

Negroes who like their beer and "doin' the huckle buck" can't be bothered with mystic rituals and mumbo jumbo.

In the better Negro neighborhoods, it's an unwise voodoo doctor who tries to open shop. A tough detective with harsh questions will be around to see him. The neighbors don't take kindly to these charlatans with their voodoo kits. They want them out, and fast.

However, ask the colored man in the know and he might steer you to one of the fetish clan. Or a washwoman may give you an address.

Claim Wide Powers

For their clients, the voodoo boys can perform a wide assortment of super stuff. The fees are what the traffic will bear. But with competition from crystal gazers, gypsies, magic healers and the like, prices have to be pared.

If you are feeling bad they've got an ointment or an incantation.

If some devil of a woman is chasing your man, that can be fixed too, for a price. Maybe the "hoodoo" calls for a little bag of powdered brick, or some pepper or beans. A secretly peddled book has recipes for such skullduggery.

Leave that little bag around your foe and it's supposed to play havoc.

And there is always the black candle or doll to stick pins in.

But that's reserved for real mean "hoodooing." That's when you're so mad at somebody you want to pull out all the stops. The idea is to stick pins in the candle or doll, and pull them out day by day.

For the object of your disaffection —that's not good.

To make things simple, there's a drug store or two in Negro sections that cater to demand for weird powders and articles used in voodoo witchery.

Suppose you want the boss to give you a raise. The voodoo doctor can rustle up some special kind of beans. But the order is to chew them and spit or their magic won't work.

Police tell of a voodoo sharpie who developed a new angle. He was strictly a free sample boy.

He opened a modest little place near some churches, and then began house-to-house canvassing, peddling his power to bring luck.

He politely refused any payments, but invited gullible clients to drop by his place and drop contributions in a collection box. He told police it was a church meeting.

These voodoo specialists are wary people, hard to contact if you're a stranger. If you can find one on a phone, their likely excuse for not talking is—"I ain't working now."

Oscar Has Trying Day---For A Skeleton

By James V. Mathis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Oscar had a helluva time Friday. People roared, gasped, turned black and lurched away when he met them.

And all the time Oscar was just doing a good deed. He had also needed fresh aid, sunshine and change in scenery.

Now Oscar couldn't help it if people didn't like him. It wasn't his fault that the diet out at Northeast Junior College had failed to fill him out. And they kept him locked up in a closet along with their other skeletons.

He had volunteered to help out with a safety photograph. Oscar was always willing to lend a bony hand when needed. Then all this reaction of the common man started. He couldn't understand it.

Things went pretty good when Edward Whatley, his keeper who doubles as a professor, turned him over to a reporter and photographer at N. J. C. He was hardened to the vulgar cracks tossed his way by the students. They didn't turn a hair on his head.

The two newspaper guys were pretty gentle with him. They were accustomed to bringing skeletons out of closets. They eased him into place in the back seat of their car and chugged away. Oscar relaxed and started enjoying the scenery—nylon scenery.

Right away, however, it started. He peeped out his window at a big colored woman at a bus stop. She turned several shades of white but couldn't move. The last thing Oscar saw was her horrified expression and he felt weak where his stomach ought to be. He didn't like to make people feel like that.

On down DeSiard they traveled, people looking in, then moving hastily away.. On Louisville he had it pretty nice until his vehicle snorted up even with a big Packard. The man and his wife inside didn't appreciate Oscar at all.

Then over on Cypress street in West Monroe the photographer pulled up alongside a youthful hitchhiker.

"Come on in. There's room for one more," he said in sepulchral tones.

The thumber got one foot in, saw Oscar. He didn't freeze. He left, sudden-like.

Out on highway 80 Oscar's driver stopped at Downing's Pines. He propped the obliging Oscar up alongside a highway 80 sign, set one foot up on a small suitcase and proceeded to make his picture. Oscar got tired of posing, turned his head to watch the passing cars. Every driver would take a fast look as they approached, then do a double take when it registered. One woman forgot what she was doing, headed over on the wrong side, almost hit a truck.

Although Oscar insisted on dropping his foot off for a rest every few minutes the photographer snapped his picture, supposed to represent "death hunts a ride," or something like that. Oscar couldn't see just how that would fit in.

He shook hands with two small boys who came out to see what was going on and wondered why their puppy shied off. Then because he had been so nice, the two newspaper guys let him sit up front with them, an arm around each of their shoulders.

Only two things marred the trip back. Once the photographer thought Oscar's knee was the shift, nearly wrenched off his leg. Then N. J. C. Coach Jim Malone, who had been after him for several years, saw him get out of the car at the newspaper office.

"Where did you find him," Malone bellered. "I need him. I'll forget the sanity code. Bring him on. Looks like a good tackle, better than I have."

But he got away from Malone. Inside the building advertising girls greeted him with wails and screams. But Oscar slipped away, headed back for the editorial office.

For several hours Oscar almost felt human again. Or maybe it was the crowd he was with. He felt like one of them, anyhow.

Late that afternoon he went back to N. J. C. and his corner in the closet.

At least he would be where Jim Malone couldn't find him. He already had his work cut out. A hard life, living for students to feel and pinch, and no old age pension coming either.

But it had been a remarkable day for him. And a little tiring for a skeleton who was beginning to feel his age.

Oscar takes to reporting like a duck to water. Rigged out in a hat and seated at the sports editor's desk, he can really make the typewriter keys rattle. He may be assigned to the police beat to seek out his brother skeletons.

One Of A Series

Know Your Officials

By James V. Mathis

By James V. Mathis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Two years ago a youthful, dark-haired Monroe attorney was appointed assistant district attorney.

He stepped into his position quietly. His actions gave little notice that within the next six months he would be in the center of a parish-wide upheaval which would end with his election to the district attorney's office.

But by January he had waded through a special grand jury session considering wide open gambling in the parish and had been largely responsible for several indictments which the jurors had returned. He had also lost his job.

Less than a year later, however, still riding the crest of his personally built wave, he was sworn in as district attorney on December 15, 1948. He had won in a walk in the first primary.

Fred Fudickar, Jr., then only 33 years old, came to the office with a background of law practice and wartime naval experience.

Born on November 18, 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fudickar, Sr., at the old family home of his mother at 1000 Riverside drive, Fudickar completed his grammar school studies at Georgia Tucker. Graduating from the Ouachita parish high school in 1931, he went directly into the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Here he completed his bachelor's degree work in 1935.

Returning to Louisiana, Fudickar entered Tulane University to gain his law degree in 1938. He immediately started practice in Monroe with the firm of Hudson, Potts, Bernstein and Davenport.

In the fall of 1940 Fudickar enlisted in the navy, with assignment to an officer's school where he emerged as an ensign. Then he buckled down to five grinding years over several seas and through several campaigns.

His first berth as a line officer was aboard a destroyer, aptly nicknamed "tin cans." Switching about on different ships he served in the Mediterranean and Atlantic. Then Fudickar shifted to a cruiser, headed for the Pacific. He was discharged in late 1945 as a lientenant commander.

Back in Monroe, Fudickar resumed his practice with the same firm in early 1946. He left for the assistant district attorney's post at the request of District Attorney George Lester in October, 1947, on the heels of the resignation of Hillyer S. Parker.

A confirmed bachelor, now at least, Fudickar lives with his parents in the home which was built in 1869 by his great-grandfather, Smith W. Bennett. His spare time is taken up with fishing, golf and meeting various civic obligations.

An early list of civic and veterans' clubs have been whittled down to five by Fudickar because of the pressing nature of the district attorney's duties. He is now active in the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Masonic Lodge, where he is in the Knights Templar commandery, the Kiwanis Club, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Fudickar was named the outstanding young man of the Twin Cities in 1948 by the Jaycees for his work in smashing gambling in the parish. Later he won further honors by being designated the outstanding young man in the state by the state Jaycee convention.

Every person who enters the district attorney's office, and they come like street cars on a busy street, gets a chance to have his troubles aired. Big and little, they find the mat laid out. If they have something, they get action. If they don't they get told so.

To get along in a district attorney's position a person must combine the cold, analytical mind of a lawyer, a nose for crime, a touch the mother confesser spirit, and a good percentage of acting ability.

Fudickar's lawyer's training gives him the first; the second "just comes naturally"; the third is a result of over a year's experience hearing the complaints and family troubles of hundreds; and the last is still developing.

Well over a hundred thousand citizens fall under Fudickar's office. Covering both Morehouse and Ouachita parishes with one assistant is a tremendous job.

But despite all its problems Fudickar finds the work fascinating. He meets every new hurdle with a quiet determination to end it and get on with another.

With several more years to go in his present post, Fudickar isn't busy making plans for the future right now. But in all probability he will be around.

FRED FUDICKAR, JR.

Hawaii Has Arthritis Wonder Drug

(By NEA Service)

HONOLULU.—(NEA)—A new ally in the battle against arthritis and rheumatic fever is thriving in the gardens of an experimental station in Hawaii.

Disclosure that the newly recognized wonder plant, stropanthus, is being grown successfully here is the latest in a chain of events that have made this year one of the most hopeful in history for arthritis sufferers.

The plant is a potential source of the synthesized miracle drug, cortisone, which the famed Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., revealed several weeks ago. Tests with cortisone have brought immediate and dramatic results for arthritis victims, although in most cases repeat injections are required as with insulin.

At Mayo Clinic, cortisone compound is produced by a long and costly process requiring 37 chemical steps beginning with a material obtained from ox bile. To meet the needs of one patient for one day requires the bile from 40 head of cattle. And in the U. S. alone, more than 7,000,000 persons are afflicted every year with some form of arthritis and rheumatic fever.

When it was found that the seeds of stropanthus, an old world tropical plant, might yield synthetic cortisone at less cost and with fewer chemical steps, the search for plants turned to Africa. The federal security agency has sent scientists there to bring back seeds and cuttings for transplanting.

Then Dr. H. L. Lyon, director emeritus of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association experimental station, quietly got in touch with cortisone researchers and told them how stropanthus has been growing in Hawaii for 17 years.

Thus far, it is not known how the plant is pollinated. But because of its sudden new importance as a source of a miracle drug, Dr. Lyon is conducting new experiments, as well as attempting to grow the plant from cuttings. The plants that have thrived on his experimental farm for 17 years, he believes, indicate that Hawaii might be an ideal location for mass cultivation of stropanthus.

Another new drug, produced in laboratories of Chicago's stockyards, was revealed just about the same time the search for stropanthus was in full cry. Derived from the putuitary glands of hogs, it is called ACTH (adreno-cortico-tropin-hormone) and is made by Armour Co., one of the big four of the meat-packing industry.

Like cortisone, its results have been astounding. In 1000 treatments at the 45 clinics experimenting with ACTH, every case of rheumatic fever has been cured, every case of arthritis has either been cured or temporarily relieved.

Also like cortisone, the supply of ACTH is pitifully small. It takes the glands of 400,000 hogs to produce one pound of the drug. Although the other three big packers—Swift, Cudahy and Wilson—along with several smaller houses are selling their hog pituitaries to Armour, the present yield is limited to 60 pounds a year.

For the mass of arthritis and rheumatic fever victims, stropanthus seems to hold the greatest hope.

Foresters Ready For Annual Fire Outbreaks

By Bert Hatten
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Forest fires have proven stubborn and disastrous in the past years and no doubt the cycle will be repeated this year. But District Five Forester M. R. Smith maintains they can be reduced with the full cooperation of campers, hunters, fishermen and farmers.

What is considered the fire season in Ouachita and the surrounding parishes has arrived. Though no fires have struck thus far, foresters are on the alert just in case. Veteran fire fighters of this area still remember the grim fight on their hands last year when they fought day and night in effort to subdue the blistering blazes.

Thousands of acres in timberland were charred in the 1948 outbreaks while rangers and their crews fought desperately week after week. Flames sprouted so fast firemen had their hands too full in one area to attend others.

Jackson parish was severely hit. Lincoln and Union parishes also suffered. Crews from Ouachita parish were dispatched to the Jackson front to help in the fight against the stubborn fires. Also joining the battle were crews maintained by larger timber concerns.

Here in Ouachita parish fires were held to a minimum with only the Fairbanks area suffering greatly. According to J. C. Tolbird, ranger in the Ouachita area, fires were "numerous but not big."

The Louisiana forestry commission's fifth district, including Ouachita and surrounding parishes, is equipped with eleven look-out towers. Four of these are serviced with powerful two-way radio sets connected with mobile units.

Alert watchmen from these towers scan their particular areas and at the first glimpse of a blaze radio the location to ground crews. Mobilized units are directly connected with the tower radio and may be directed with precision to the location of a fire.

After firemen arrive at a fire they go into action with whatever equipment they have that is most efficient in that particular type of blaze. The thickness of the undergrowth and intensity of the fire guide their decisions.

Fifth district fighters maintain jeep-plow units, and 1 1/2 ton trucks specially designed to carry a "clerac" plow which is attached to a tractor when it goes into operation.

Unless fires outnumber t[illegible]ing units, they can usually b[illegible]ght under control without too m[illegible] difficulty with the help of the fast communication system.

Forester Smith, who fought the battle of the blazes in the Shreveport area last year, expects a surge of fires to break here during mid-October when squirrel hunting season opens.

Smith, a veteran leader in anti-forest fire operations, works on the theory that "where men go, there fires are most likely to start." He says outdoor enthusiasts in most cases don't deliberately start fires, but usually through carelessness they will create fires.

He pointed out that records will prove fires begin to occur more frequently simultaneously with the opening of hunting seasons.

In cases where fires are deliberately started, Smith says they are usually touched off by persons who think it will kill insects, and snakes.

"But, what they don't know is that it has been proven that fires are not as deadly to insects as they think," according to Smith.

"Where a fire kills one insect by accident, millions of young seedlings are sure to die," the forester pointed out.

Designed to speed fire-fighting equipment to the scene of a forest fire, the above 1 1/2 ton truck is laden with a tractor and "cletrac" plow attachment. It is one of the two such outfits in service with the Fifth district forest commission which has others on order.

American Burlesque Girls In Britain Can't Shuffle

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Officials of London's famed Windmill Burlesque House said two American-born blondes will move into star parts there next month. But, they stressed, American bumps and grinds are taboo.

The Lord Chamberlain's office, which keeps an eye on burlesque and other shows, says the girls can show their bodies—absolutely all they like—provided they stand stock-still.

Rustle a muscle and it stops being art.

"Remember," they said, "we've still got the old no-wiggle rule in Britain."

The newcomers to Britain's nude attractions are Louisville-born Annette Gibson, 18, and Rae Berry, 22, of Pawtucket, R. I.

In an interview, taffy-blonde Rae said: "British audiences have just about all the nudity they like right now. They seem to go for plenty of ballet-type stuff—and that's what I'm here to give 'em."

In one number, she wears a one-piece bathing suit. However, even here, she added, "the body part is backed by flesh pink satin—that's to fox the smarties. They can't see any more than they could on a beach."

Slim-legged Rae, a 109-pounder with ice-blue eyes, was graduated from Pawtuckett West Senior High School in 1945 and plunged right up to her 34 bust in the study of burlesque and teaching ballet. The Windmill imported her 18 weeks ago.

Annette, 18, is a shade darker in the hair and an inch bigger in the bust. She is a graduate of Scotland's Edinburgh Ladies College.

Big Four Foreign Minister Soon To Meet

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A meeting of the big four foreign ministers was reported today as a prospect for the coming week.

Diplomatic sources said the chiefs may take up the Austrian independence treaty on which their deputies have been unable to agree during almost three years of on-and-off negotiations.

The deputies, who transferred their sessions from London, met in New York for the first time yesterday and agreed to consult with their foreign ministers before scheduling another meeting.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson has left New York for the weekend. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is expected to leave New York late next week.

Thus the meeting of the two with French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky would have to be some time early in the week.

State department sources said meanwhile that the deputies probably will resume meeting Monday morning. All presumably have met with their foreign ministers since yesterday's session.

At the meeting of the deputies, the western powers offered some concessions to Russia in an effort to solve the problem of German war assets in eastern Austria.

Russia's position was unchanged, but that was not unexpected and American sources continued to express hope for a settlement.

Percy Coplon Leaves To Bath, Exercise

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 24.—(AP)—After almost a month aloft, Percy (the not so fat man) Coplon came down from his little house on a pole to take a bath.

Coplon, who claims he's the original Mr. Five By Five, announced proudly today that he has shed 54 pounds during the first 30 days of his planned 100-day fast. That brings his tonnage down to a mere 304 pounds.

He climbed down a ladder from his little house atop the 30-foot pole yesterday. He said he had three objectives: to weigh, take a bath, and exercise a little.

With all three accomplished, he clambered back up somewhat more agilely than when he first went aloft better than three weeks ago.

Percy started his fast days before he moved into the little pole house. He moved up there to get away from it all—mostly food.

The five-footer, who started the hunger marathon with a 60-inch waist line, says he's going to live in the little house until December 4. By that time, he expects to be trimmed down to a slim 250 pounds or less.

Coplon said he is undergoing the fast in order to regain his health.

Federal Authorities Investigate Mob Action

ATLANTA, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Federal authorities were reported today to be investigating attempted mob action against a Negro Thursday night in the Fulton county court house.

The Negro, Mercy McKay, was whisked away from angry, threatening spectators by two Fulton county deputies. A jury, trying McKay on a charge of murdering Roy H. Chadwick, had just returned a verdict of insanity.

Fulton superior court clerks said today that the U. S. district attorney's office has requested records in the case.

McKay was charged with killing Chadwick May 6 while they were working in the meat trimming room of a packing house.

Judge E. E. Andrews, who presided over the trial, said he did not believe the action by the spectators could be termed an attempted lynching because no planned, concerted action by a group of persons took place.

He added, however, he is convinced that between three and six men "had it individually in their hearts to kill the Negro, and probably would have cut him to pieces if they had been able to get to him."

The two deputies—Leroy Stynchcomb and Emmett Bell—eluded the mob by hurrying the Negro out a side door and into an office.

Girl Can't Remember Fatal Shooting Of Police Father

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A 20-year-old college girl accused of the mercy killing of her policeman father says she can remember nothing about it, police reported today.

Police interviewed Miss Carol Paight in the Stamford Hospital where she shot her father, Sergeant Carl Paight, 50, after learning from physicians yesterday that he was incurably ill with cancer.

The University of New Hampshire student collapsed in hysteria after the shooting, and became a patient in a room not far where she fatally wounded her father with his own service revolver.

"She can't remember what happened," Chief of Police John B. Brennan reported.

City Court Prosecutor Nathan B. Silberman issued a warrant charging Miss Paight with homicide. The warrant was read to the girl this afternoon by Detective Capt. William J. Lynch in her room at the hospital.

Miss Paight was examined today by a Bridgeport psychiatrist at the request of state's Attorney Lorin W. Willis. The psychiatrist, Dr. Joseph Lesko, declined to discuss his findings with newsmen.

The hospital said the young woman's condition was favorable. A police guard was assigned to her room.

Late yesterday afternoon, some hours after a physician had informed Miss Paight and her mother that Sergeant Paight's condition was hopeless, the young woman came alone to her father's hospital room.

The shooting, not heard by anyone in the hospital, was discovered when a nurses' aide found Miss Paight sobbing hysterically in a hospital corridor.

"Please look at my father! Please look at my father!" she begged.

Paight, shot in the head, died early today.

"She (Miss Paight) didn't want to see him suffer," Chief Brennan reported after an investigation.

Mrs. Paight and her son, Carl, Jr., a student at the New Haven State Teachers' College, were in seclusion today.

The son, unaware of the physician's adverse report about this father's condition, played for the New Haven Teachers in a football game against the New Bedford (Mass.) Teachers at New Haven yesterday afternoon.

Sportswriters who covered the event said young Paight, a starting right end, played remarkably good defensive game as his team won 32-7.

CRUCIAL WEEK IS AHEAD FOR LABOR

Strikes Involving 1,115,000 Workers Slated To Be Ironed Out

(By Associated Press)

Crucial decisions affecting America's postwar economy may be made this week.

Strikes involving 1,000,000 steelworkers and 115,000 Ford Motor Company employes are set for this week. The nation will learn whether the strike of 480,000 coal miners can be settled quickly or will drag on with steadily spreading idleness.

More than 00,000 workers already are idle in strikes involving a dozen industries. A steel strike would boost this number to above 1,600,000, the highest level in the postwar period.

Negotiations between the C. I. O. United Steelworkers Union and the steel industry were in recess over the week end. They will be resumed Monday. Bergaining talks were opened Friday, but they were exploratory with neither side showing its hand.

The thrice-postponed steel strike is now set for 12:01 a. m. Saturday, October 1. The main issue is whether the companies should finance pensions and insurance or whether the workers should share the cost.

The nationwide coal strike went through its first week with no sign of a break. But John L. Lewis is slated to resume contract talks with the operators September 29. Some indication of what may happen to the coal strike may become known then.

So far the coal strike has caused the layoff of 31,000 coal carrying railroad workers but hasn't hit industry generally. Stockpiles were generally ample when the miners quit work Monday. But if a strike stretches out into a long mine shutdown, industry will suffer a crippling blow.

The miners quit work in protest against refusal of the southern operators to continue royalty payments to the miners' welfare fund. The southern operators said they refused to make the royalty payments until a new contract is signed. The walkout also was over failure of efforts to reach a new contract. The old one has expired.

Lewis says the men won't work until they get a new contract. Some of the operators say they won't agree to wage boosts.

The Ford strike is set for 12:01 a. m. Thursday, but there were high hopes that a settlement can be reached. However, the C. I. O. United Auto Workers Union has termed reports of a near settlement "erroneous and without any foundation in fact." But it said its strike deadline might be delayed if no agreement is reached before Friday.

Ford reportedly is ready to give the workers the equivalent of a 10 cents hourly package boost for pensions and insurance.

The C. I. O. United Farm Equipment Workers Union authorized a walkout at the International Harvester Company's Chicago tractor works where a wildcat strike has been under way for a week. The union said the action may make 20,000 workers idle in Harvester plants elsewhere. The Chicago plant employs 4,500. The union accused the company of contract violation and stalling on negotiations for a wage boost and other benefits.

A strike of 200 trainmen, conducters, firemen and engineers of the Lehigh and New England railroad added to the woes of coal seeking New Englanders. The line carries anthracite coal from eastern Pennsylvania to a New York terminal for trans-shipment to New England. The grievances involved claims.

Other workers idle because of strikes include:

Missouri Pacific Railroad, 25,000; B. F. Goodrich Company, 16,000; Singer Manufacturing Company plants in New Jersey and Connecticutt, 11,100; Central California Cotton Pickers, 20,000; Yellow Cab Drivers, Omaha, 315; U. S. Time Corporation, Waterbury, Conn., 150; Manufacturers Foundry Company, Waterbury, Conn., 46; San Francisco Dock and Warehouse Workers and Allied Workers, 5,000; Bell Aircraft, 1,700; Pittsburgh Steelworkers, 5,000; New York Leatherworkers, 1,000; Illinois Farm Equipment Workers, 7,000.

N. M. U. Expels Three High Unions Officials

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The C. I. O. National Maritime Union convention today gave a final okay to the expulsion of three national officers and two port agents.

The action was taken in separate votes—running more than two to one—approving recommendations of the convention's appeals committee that the expulsions be upheld.

All five men were brought up on charges in a fight between Union President Joseph Curran and what he called the left-wing element in the union.

National Secretary Ferdinand Smith, Vice-President Howard McKenzie and New York Agent Paul Palazzi had been expelled on charges of misconduct and malfeasance in office.

Vice-President Joseph Stack was ousted on charges of disrupting the normal functioning of the port of New York.

Anthony Lucio, San Pedro, Calif., port agent, was convicted of anti-union activity and "carrying out only the Communist party program which was to force N. M. U. members off union oil (company) vessels" during a west coast strike against the company.

N. M. U. Attorney Herman E. Cooper said the convention votes today made the expulsions final.

The convention adopted a constitutional amendment which would set up autonomous divisions for N. M. U. members working on Rivers and the Great Lakes.

A membership referendum must be held on the amendment.

JEWELER CHARGED

charge, Guay stared ahead blankly. The preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 4.

Mrs. Guay was 28. Six other women were among those who perished with her when an explosion in the baggage compartment swung the plane into the mountainside. Police said a $10,000 insurance policy on her life, payable to Guay, was taken out only a short time before she boarded the plane for Baie Comeau.

In addition to Mrs. Pitre, who was dangerously ill in a hospital for a time yesterday from an overdose of sleeping pills she said Guay suggested she take, officers have been questioning a pretty, 26-year-old waitress. They did not identify the waitress by name.

Mrs. Pitre, an attractive, brown-haired woman, is under police guard at her apartment. Curious crowds gathered at the apartment house. Part of the sidewalk was roped off to keep the crowds back.

Her story ended a two-week hunt for a mystery woman who delivered a package, addressed to a non-existent person in Baie Comeau, to the ill-fated plane just before it took off from this city. The package was a cardboard carton. One report said it weighed 27 pounds.

Guay was picked up last night. He spent the night in a cell.

Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion said "three search warrants have been issued and further charges are expected to be laid." He did not go into detail.

The outline appeared to parallel a case in the Philippines.

A Filipino woman and five men have been accused of a love triangle murder by blowing up a Philippines air liner flying from Daet to Manila with a time bomb last May.

The woman's husband and 12 others aboard were killed. Authorities said June 7 the lovers would be arrested and their identity revealed "at the proper time."

Two Americans were among the victims. They were Ludwig J. Sundeen, 48, of Litchfield, Minn., and Robert Parker, 27, of Rochester, N. Y.

ANTI-REDS

aimed at youthful James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O., a former president of U. E. and leader of the anti-Communist faction in that union.

In addition to U. E., there are 10 other unions which conceivably might join in a Left-Wing federation. This at the outset might give it 1,000,000 members. Anti-Communist C. I. O. leaders think that number would be quickly whittled down to actual Communist-sympathizers, because the unions would make a target for their rivals and enemies.

The other unions are Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union; the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers; Fur and Leather Workers; Cooks and Stewards; American Communications Association; United Office and Professional Workers; United Public Workers; Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers; Furniture Workers; Fishermen and Allied Workers.

There have been repeated rumors that John L. Lewis, who took the lead in forming the C. I. O. itself in 1935 and 1936, has been toying with the idea of joining forces with the Left-Wingers in a new labor movement. Lewis, of course, has said nothing on the subject.

As for his own 600,000-member United Mine Workers—now independent—Lewis keeps the Communists out by constitution. All "subversives," are barred from membership under that constitution.

If Lewis took leadership of a third labor federation it would remove some of the pro-Communist flavor, and it would give the slow-to-forgive miners' boss a chance to get back at Philip Murray's C. I. O. and the A. F. L. for past differences.

Within the C. I. O., it is not expected that Murray will reply to the U. E.'s conditions to paying the per capita tax before the convention. A union may be in debt three months before being tossed out under C. I. O. by-laws.

Murray is expected to insist that no delegate whose union has not paid the per capita tax to date can sit in the Cleveland convention, which starts October 31.

The C. I. O. chief probably will keep his strategy to himself until the executive board meeting in Cleveland October 26. The decision, because of its effect on the future of the C. I. O., will be one of the toughest which Murray has had to make since he took the gavel from Lewis at the 1940 convention.

Tomorrow, a group of public workers interested in forming a new union or an organizing committee for the enrollment of a million federal and white collar workers, will meet in Washington.

This group reportedly would like to have the C. I. O. revoke the charter of Abram Flaxer's United Public Workers.

Inroads have been made on the Left-Wing unions largely traced to the Taft-Hartley act's non-Communist affidavit requirement. Unless officers swear they're not Communists, the union cannot use facilities of the national labor relations board. That means the union can't get on a plant ballot if a rival union succeeds in forcing an election.

One after another the Left-Wing-led unions have decided to submit those affidavits.

prisoners appeared for sentencing in the same dark business suits they had worn throughout the trial. None appeared to show any emotion.

Judge Janko denounced as outrageous the actions of four of the group who were formerly high Communists—Rajak, Szoenyi, Szalai and Justus.

"They penetrated the workers' (Communist) movement," he said. "They delivered state secrets to American, Yugoslav and French agents who pretended to be diplomats. They were allies of the Fascist Tito clique, which is the vanguard of imperialism."

Referring to testimony that the plotters planned to assassinate Deputy Premier Matyas Rakosi and other key Communists, he said they "aimed to murder the most able leaders of this country."

The judge said there were alleviating circumstances in Brankov's case in that "he followed orders of his (Yugoslav) superiors."

With the exception of Rajk, all the five men sentenced said they wished to appeal for a reduction of their sentences. The appeals are made to the national council of people's courts, which has the power to reduce or increase sentences or let them stand. Rajk's was entered for him anyway by his lawyer.

Rajk said in his final statement Thursday he approved the judge's verdict in advance. He said: "It is undeniable that I became a tool of Tito, who is the heir of Hitler and follows Hitler's policy in the Balkans. But his masters are the Americans."

It was charged in court that Selden Chapin, former U. S. minister to Hungary who wsa named this week as ambassador to the Netherlands, Allen W. Dulles, war-time head of the office of strategic services in Europe, and Lt. Col. George Kovach, former member of the U. S. military mission in Hungary, were among Americans involved in the case. (All three have denied it).

The United States and Britain were represented at the trial by diplomatic observers.

campaign and is not doing so this time.

He says the extreme Left-Wingers oppose Liberal candidates such as himself and work for election of reactionaries so as to bring on the economic crash "which Marshal Stalin so anxiously awaits."

The senate fight is attracting nation-wide political interest because of the prominence of the contestants and because of the forecast it will give on the 1950 congressional elections.

Dulles, a veteran foreign affairs expert and a principal architect of the bipartisan foreign policy, is running for his first elective office. He was named to the senate last July by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey after Sennator Robert F. Wagner resigned.

However, he has promised a vigorous fight which will take him into every section of the state.

Lehman is a veteran of the political wars. He entered politics in 1928 as a Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-governor with Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was running for governor. Later Lehman won four terms as governor, a record in New York.

He made an unsuccessful try for the senate in 1946 but ran 250,000 votes ahead of his ticket.

In addition to hammering at the Communist issue, Dulles has sharply attacked President Truman's fair deal domestic program.

He said that if congress gave the administration all the powers it asked, the American people would be "on leash from birth to death to a federal bureacracy."

Lehman accepted the challenge on this issue. He said he stood squarely for "the fighting liberalism of Al Smith, Bob Wagner, Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Harry Truman, the liberalism which I upheld and sought to advance in my 10 years as governor."

tional representative of Civic Concert Service, Inc., of New York, the organization with which Monroe Civic Music Association is affiliated. He was lamenting the fact that although we insist that our children's education include studying the writings of the great authors of the ages, we often ridicule them for furthering their own mind development, or actively prevent it by shoving a comic book in their hands—they at least won't ask us embarrassing questions we can't answer about that type of literature. Mr. Walpole pointed out that fine music is just another form in which the great thinkers express their thoughts. But of equal or greater importance, he added, is the intrinsic entertainment of music, especially concerts. With a wink he asked, what is more entertaining, say, than watching a bevy of lovely young ladies performing a graceful ballet?

Well, I just couldn't help but recall this man's voice shouting at his son to turn off that darn music and read a comic book instead.

Jes' Ramblin'
Monroe News-Star—World,
Monroe, Louisiana.

Dear Sir:

Our school has grown so fast in the past year that we would like to report to the people who make our school possible, and would especially like to have a little space in your widely read column.

Selman School, located at Selman field, is the third largest elementary school in the parish. We have an enrollment of 540 pupils, with twenty teachers and eight grades. Playground space will accommodate four times as many students as we have at present.

Our cafeteria is one of the most modern in the state and the manager consistently serves excellent meals. Come visit us and see for yourself.

The library facilities are not yet adequate. We are especially lacking in reference books, but just give us time—remember we are just one year old.

Our football team plays its first game Wednesday, September 28, at 4:30 against Neville at their stadium. The cheering will be led by our newly elected cheerleader.

Yours truly,
SELMAN SCHOOL,
Publicity Committee.

Mrs. J. Glenn Jordan, who with her husband was engaged in the advertising department of the News-Star—World and later for a time operated a weekly paper in West Monroe, is back from Chattanooga, Tenn., on a visit. She runs a column in the Chattanooga daily entitled, "This Week in Chattanooga's Business and Industry." Similar pages run regularly in newspapers in Terre Haute, Ind., and New Orleans. It is regarded as one of the best advertising mediums offered advertisers.

Mrs. Jordan's many friends were pleased to welcome her here and it was her first visit since she left the Twin Cities.

The Junior-Intermediate Special left the First Baptist Church Friday at 6 p. m. bound for Intermediate territory. The four superintendents of the Junior department arranged an interesting schedule, with the party carryiny out the train and airplane scheme throughout the program.

Banquet tables were decorated with trains. Each graduate found his graduation cap at his appointed place and these were worn throughout the party.

The chief dispatcher, E. W. Edwards, cried: "All aboard." Dale Martha declared: "Fasten safety belts."

Mrs. L. B. Pilant, as stewardess, welcomed the passengers.

There was a radio message for juniors and special music.

Martha Williams sang a song with Dale Martha as her accompanist. Robert Swinney, with his electric guitar, rendered "Life's Railway To Heaven" and "Till We Meet Again." There was an accordian solo by Linda Barton and "Goodbye From Junior Land," by Stewardess H. A. Morrison. Copilot recognition was by Mrs. C. S. Todd and "Pilot Take Off," by Rev. Grant Clark.

worker; Mrs. Thompson a part-time nurse.

The Thompson's trouble began when a woman of about 40 years old and calling herself Mrs. Mary Wilkey answered Mrs. Thompson's advertisement for a nursemaid.

The day she took over her duties, both she and Ronnie disappeared. Witnesses on bus routes led police to Detroit, then to Ashton, Mich. the trail vanished there.

In Detroit Paul Jevahirian was kidnaped by a woman answering the same description.

Both the Thompson and Jevahirian families received telegrams from the abductors telling them not to worry. The babies would be returned, the wires said.

The hue-and-cry raged for weeks. Gradually it died away. Police said the babies were stolen by a ring which operated a black market in children for adoption.

They theorized Ronnie would be sold into adoption, perhaps to some couple that couldn't find a legal means of adopting a child.

Children began going to school in Dayton a few days ago. The Thompsons watched these children. They remembered their Ronnie would have been going to school this fall for the first time.

"I still hope," said Mrs. Thompson today. "Someday, perhaps, we'll find Ronnie. I wonder how he is, if he is well, if . . ."

RUSSIA AGAIN

Romulo, who is also the head of a Philippine mission to fight the spread of communism in Asian-Pacific areas.

"We did note vote for the candidates proposed by the eastern countries for the honorary offices of the assembly," Bebler said, "because of the extreme hostility of the Soviet Union toward us.

"But you must not assume that we will vote mechanically on the substance of all matters before us. We shall exercise our own judgment on each question that comes before us. We shall vote according to our general principles and our conscience.

"Our foreign policy had been consistent ever since the new Yugoslav state was born in 1943 during the war. The chief goal of this policy is the full sovereignty and the complete independence of our country.

"All our actions in carrying out this policy, both before our differences with the Soviet Union and today, are completely understandable, if you realize this point of view."

Bebler said that the big point at issue in the east-west dispute was not a clash of ideals but only of big countries trying to get domination over smaller ones.

Chile accused Russia of an imperialist, war-like Red crusade comparable to Hitler's aggressions.

Chilean Chief Delegate Hernan Santa Cruz said Russia is trying to force her will on Yugoslavia in Domestic and foreign affairs, and is a "flagrant threat to peace."

Santa Cruz hailed as "profoundly ironical" the proposals yesterday by Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister, that the Big Five make a new peace pact.

He accused Russia of double talk and threatening violent aggression toward Yugoslavia "at the very moment when she is concluding her task in China." Nationalist China already has complained in the assembly that Russia is abetting the Chinese Communists.

The Chilean delegate, who has jabbed constantly at Communist governments in past sessions, cried to the assembly: "We do not think such an attitude will lull the necessary vigilance of the democratic world."

Vishinsky's new peace offensive got expected support from two other speakers in general debate: Stefan Wierblowski, head of the Polish delegation, and Kouzma Kisselev, foreign minister of White Russia.

Both expanded on the theme developed by Vishinsky. Kisselev tried to outdo Vishinsky in his denunciation of the United States, which he accused of fomenting a new war to pile up war profits.

Wierblowski said that in the recent devaluations he saw another kind of war to force domination by a single—dollar—currency on the economic life of a large part of the world.

Vishinsky set the pace yesterday. He was the only Big Five foreign minister in the half-filled chamber at the Saturday session and he listened carefully while Santa Cruz rolled out his charges against the Soviet Union.

Kisselev was the only Soviet bloc member to speak after the Chilean. He inserted in his prepared text a sort of answer to Santa Cruz in which he called the Chilean statements "slanderous juggling."

Yugoslavia speaks up in general debate Monday. Tentatively she headed a list in which Czechoslovakia and the Ukraine would follow her in defending Russia.

Assembly President Carlos Romulo said that an evening session may be held Monday to get all policy speeches out of the way so that committee work may start in full force Tuesday at Lake Success.

Chile, long an opponent of Soviet Russia, severed diplomatic relations with Moscow early in 1948 and followed by withdrawing diplomats from Prague after the Czechoslovak Communist coup. Santa Cruz called for the United Nations to investigate the Czechoslovak government change, and drew the enmity of the "peoples democracy" bloc.

ATOM EXPLOSION

000,000,000 available for military supplies to North Atlantic treaty nations.

The senate approved this fund as part of a $1,314,000,000 outlay for foreign arms. The house bill came to a total $869,000,000 for all nations.

"I am hopeful the house will change its attitude," Connally said. "We feel that the action of the senate ought to be persuasive, particularly in the light of recent developments."

Representative Priest (D-Tenn.) predicted that the atomic news from Russia will make the house change its mind and approve a larger outlay for European arms.

Rep. Lawrence M. Smith (R-Wis.) told reporters:

"If Russia has the atomic bomb, everything we are doing, except for airpower, will be going down the drain. The theory that we have to develop the ground forces of our allies to stave off a rush until we get there becomes nonsensical."

The conflict of views between Priest and Smith illustrated the differences of opinion among lawmakers over the effect of Russian acquisition of the A-bomb on military preparations.

Senator George (D-Ga.), who tried unsuccessfully to cut the European arms fund, said the Soviet atomic explosion "confirms my contention that you can't contain Russia by land arms built up around her."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he thinks it's silly to spend money building up land armies in Europe when Russia might force them to surrender without a fight by threatening to drop A-bombs on cities.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said American military plans, efforts to aid western Europe in rearming, had been drawn with the expectation that Russia eventually would have the bomb. For that reason, he said it should bring no change in those plans.

However, Senator Bridges (R-N. H.), an appropriations committee member, said the effect of the Russian development is likely to be felt in increased funds for the U. S. air force.

The senate sliced $800,000,000 off appropriations, holding the air force to a 48-group maximum. The house had provided funds for a 58-group air force. This is one of the major differences to be adjusted in the armed services money bill on which senate-house conferees may start work next week.

The house probably will act Tuesday to name its group to meet with Connally's senate delegation on the foreign arms bill.

Representative Richards (D-S. C.), who put across the agreement to hold the first installment of European aid down to $580,495,000 won't be back from a European trip until the end of October. It offers administration leaders a chance to replace him on the conference group with someone more friendly to the larger senate figure.

The Russian atomic development continued to spark suggestions and comment among lawmakers.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) wrote Secretary of Defense Johnson urging that defense department be moved out of tthe Pentagon building in Washington and scattered around the country.

"It is quite clear that Washington, D. C., would be the number one target in the event of an atomic war," Wiley wrote Johnson.

"It is obvious further that if an atomic bomb hit the Pentagon building, the entire central nervous system of American defense and offense would be smashed. Moreover, the nation's legislative, executive and judicial branches also would be blown to smithereens."

Wiley said Soviet leaders "must be laughing up their sleeves at the American chumps who, in the face of a hostile power, continue to sleep in apathy and complacency and to ignore our suicidal over-centralization."

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) said he thinks the Russian atomic development makes the prospects for world peace brighter than they have been for a long time."

"Russia probably will be more willing to sit down and talk things over now, preferably in the United Nations," he said. "Russia apparently has had an inferiority complex. Now she may feel that her pride has been a little bit vindicated.

"She won't feel she is coming to the conference table with a shotgun at her head. Now she can do some face-saving before the world, and it would not be a shotgun settlement. That should take the chip off her shoulder."

DEMONSTRATE REVOLUTIONARY NEW "TYPESETTER"—Dr. Vannevar Bush, seated, and Dr. Samuel Caldwell of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, demonstrate the electronic typewriter that "photographs" lines of type on film, which in turn can be used to make a printing plate—all in a matter of five minutes. The system, when developed for commercial use, is expected to make obsolete the present-day metal-typesetting machines which years ago put the laborious hand-type setter "out of business." The machine contains a mechanism with a "memory," which stores up letters until a complete line is set. Margins are then evened and the line is photographed. The system is based on inventions by French scientists Rene Higonnet and Louis Moyroud.

SOVIET ATOMIC

atomic explosion. These came from a variety of sources.

But officially, the only word on this point was that given yesterday by President Truman: there is evidence that in recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in Russia.

And today highly placed informants said that the explosion which the president reported was the only atomic explosion which has occurred in Russia to date so far as the United States government knows.

The time and the place of the incident has been kept secret by the White House, state department and defense establishment for what officials describe as security reasons.

The Vatican's semi-official newspaper, Osservatore Romano, declared news of Russia's accomplishment proves the need for all nations to disarm completely.

Diplomatic sources in Manila said the development stresses the need for formation of a southeastern Asia non-Communist union.

In Washington, top authorities gave full weight to the possibility that the Soviets may be approaching a new position of military power and political force by reason of their conquest of the atom.

Nevertheless, the basic policy of the United States appeared to be unchanged: to meet the Russian challenge with the coordinated strength and total economic and political power of the non-Communist western world.

Administration officials were cheered by reports that congressional leaders may now favor loosening up on the so-called "secrets" of the American atomic bomb for Britain and Canada.

The United States, these officials said, should be able to learn much from its wartime atomic partners as a result of their independent research of the past two years or so. A full sharing of information has been barred by secrecy restrictions in the atomic energy act which was based on the assumption that the United States had an A-bomb monopoly.

Diplomats generally discounted speculation over a possible meeting between President Truman and Russia's Premier Stalin. They reasoned that the United States would weaken its relations with Britain, France and other cold war allies if it showed willingness to join in a two-handed game of power politics with Russia.

One possible diplomatic move, these observers noted, might be a direct message from Mr. Truman to Stalin urging a renewed effort, through the United Nations and in conjunction with other countries, to solve dangerous world problems and work out a system of international atomic control.

In this connection diplomatic officials stressed two points of primary concern to policy makers here:

First, assuming Russia now has the bomb, it is only a question of time until other countries are also able to make atomic weapons. So the problem of control is not two-power but world-wide.

Second, it is not the bomb itself which creates dangers and fears of war but the total political conflict between Russia and the western powers.

Mr. Truman's advisers, therefore, do not believe that the problem of international atomic controls can be solved by itself. They regard it as caught up in the general east-west struggle and link its solution to successful approaches to such other issues as the Greek civil war, the Austrian treaty, the Russian-American division of Korea and the east-west deadlocks over the future of Japan and Germany.

Considerable White House and state department attention now is centered on the United Nations where some of these problems are directly at issue and all figure at least in the background of events.

There was general reluctance to say officially that Russia has made and tested out an atomic bomb. The nearest public statement was Secretary Acheson's news conference remark in New York that what had caused the explosion which Mr. Truman announced yesterday was a Russian "atomic weapon."

But one high U. S. security official has told a reporter there is no question that it was an atomic bomb. He added: "But so far as we know Russia has made only one bomb. They'll never catch up with us."

Two security officers of the government who would not be quoted by name, said the information which the president gave out had been checked, rechecked and double checked and that hundreds of people were involved.

Public reaction to the announcement made by the President yesterday was watched closely. Evidence that people took the news in stride piled up at the state department today. Their calm acceptance of the development was generally attributed to the fact that scientists and officials had said repeatedly that sooner or later Russia would crack the secret of atomic fission.

The only element of surprise apparently came over the fact that the Russians had been able to manufacture their atomic explosive in the quantities needed for a major test prior to 1950. American government estimates on this point appear to have been off by three to 12 months.

MOSCOW SILENT

in the Vishinsky speech was heightened by the hope he would say something concerning the Truman announcement. He did not.)

The agency explained the interest in the Vishinsky speech by commenting that "the great motherland of socialism first proposed forbidding the weapon of aggression—the atomic bomb—which American claimants to world domination used to blackmail small countries."

It has become a tradition in the U. N. assembly, Tass added, that the most important questions for the people of the world are brought before the United Nations by the Soviet Union. It was the Soviet Union, Tass continued, which proposed to begin "practical disarmament."

The dispatch, summarizing the Soviet foreign minister's speech, said he charged the United States with working on plans for a new war in which a "prominent place has been allotted atomic weapons."

The other dispatch said serious conflicts" had developed in the British-American camp over atomic energy. It said Britain had made it plain she is dissatisfied with her role and is threatening to become a competitor of the U. S. in the atomic field if she is not made a working partner. These relations, it continued, "have alarmed American circles occupied in the atomic energy field."

2 N. J. C. ALUMNI ADDRESS SCHOOL

Franklin, Mitchell Give Pattern For Success At College

Achieving the greatest success in life at Northeast Junior College was emphasized by two alumni of the institution at the first general assembly of faculty, staff and students held this fall in Brown Hall Auditorium. Miss Hazel Mitchell of the N. J. C. department of languages and George Franklin, Jr., former president of the Student Council and leader in other camps organizations, spoke on qualities and their application in obtaining the greatest benefits from college experience and later life.

Miss Mitchell, former chairman of the committee on student affairs at N. J. C., used a wheel as a symbol of the assets that the well-developed student must encourage if success is to be attained.

She stressed loyalty as an essential spoke in this wheel. Loyalty to self, family, friends and organizations is a primary factor in purposeful living, she declared. The wheel also must have the spoke of faith, sufficient belief in one's own self to develop potentialities, faith in God and mankind. Ambition, a third quality, is necessary in reaching goals, giving service to the world. Kindness, the fourth spoke, involves graciousness and broadmindedness, Miss Mitchell said. She illustrated the belief in this asset by quoting Disraeli, "It is easier to be critical than correct."

Stressing honesty as a fundamental, the speaker expressed its value by declaring," Man is the noblest work of God." The truly successful person will find a fine asset in humor, the ability to laugh with others and with himself. If one possesses these six qualities and develops them, the wheel will roll happily to success, the speaker concluded.

Franklin encouraged students to work hard and play hard. He stressed the splendid combination of courses and extra curricular activities offered by the college here. Urging students to take advantage of both, he declared that the two are rich in value and essential in producing the well-rounded person, the informed citizen.

Clubs offer splendid chances to develop leadership, learn cooperation and loyalty, he said. On the small campus, such as N. J. C., students have more opportunity to participate in organizations and school life which can serve them to great advantage in later years, he explained. Through such participation, friendships may be built. One cannot place too high an estimate on such experiences, Franklin emphasized.

"The individual who leaves college with friends as well as credits is more capable of meeting the problems of life than the person who has neglected one or the other," the speaker declared.

IKINI STILL HAS TOMIC HANGOVER

cientists Still Can't Say When Natives Will Be Safe To Return

SEATTLE, Sept. 24.—(AP)—You apparently can swim safely in the blue waters of Bikini lagoon, but the food upply still carries an atom bomb angover.

Scientists still can't say when—or hether—the natives will be able to eturn to the Pacific atoll that was lasted into the limelight by the 1946 tomic bomb tests.

Three summers of intensive study the water, sea life, birds, plants and imals have not given the scientific searchers the answer.

Those were the highlights of the rst joint report today of the atomic ergy commission and the Univer- y of Washington Applied Fisheries aboratory on the Bikini research.

The report came a day after Presi- nt Truman's announcement that ussia apparently has developed an omic weapon of its own.

The multi-sided research has been der the direction of Dr. Lauren Donaldson, director of the uni- rsity's Applied Fisheries Labora- y.

The report said the surveys of both 18 and 1949 "showed no danger from diation from external sources." That eans there is no danger from radia- n from external sources." That ans there is no danger from pres- ce in the restricted area. But the port contains one "if" on that point. said there was no danger from dy exposure "except perhaps at e bottom of the lagoon, some 200 et below the surface" at the spot here the bomb was set off in the ter.

The report said the research of 1949 ought preliminary findings similar the 1947 and 1948 studies:

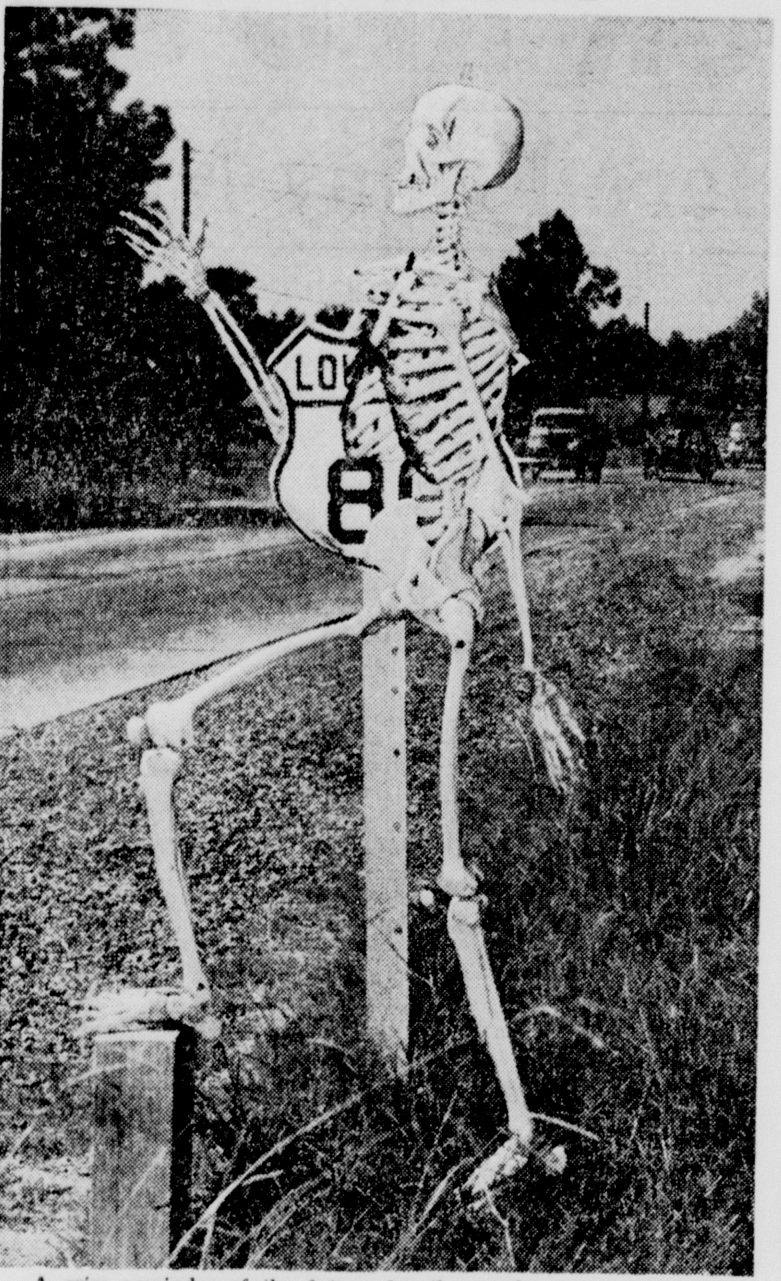
'Radioactivity is still present in easurable amounts. * * * it is still early to determine whether or not en could now subsist without harm the food product in the lagoon, the information upon which a rmination could be made was thered and is being studied.

The sand and coral continue rela- ely free from radioactivity. But nt and animal life still show traces adioactivity materials. No damage plant or animal tissue due to pres- e of these radioactive materials observed."

espite the ever-changing waters in wind-swept lagoon, where half the water is replaced every 28 s, radioactivity "has not been re- ved from the lagoon by dilution to extent which might have been ected."

ctually, Dr. Donaldson explained, re has been an increasing concen- tion in some animal and plant life. ish, for example, build up radio- ivity by feeding continually on er forms of life that are contami- ed. Plants do the same by drawing ioactivity up from the water which etrates the porous sand and coral. mals that feed on this vegetation then take the radioactivity into their life cycles.

DEATH SEEKS A RIDE



A grim reminder of the future for the careless or reckless driver stood for a while Friday three miles west of West Monroe on U. S. Highway 80. He sought a ride over the worst 33-mile stretch of highway in Louisiana, perhaps the most dangerous on U. S. 80. Between Monroe and Ruston eight lives have been claimed during the last twelve months, as compared with a total of 43 over the whole state police district of Troop "F". A particularly bad stretch exists over a two-mile section near the roadside park, eleven miles out of West Monroe. Two crashes there within the last four months have proved fatal. Officials say that although the curving road seems dangerous in itself, most accidents are caused by carelessness by one of the involved drivers. (Staff Photo by Leon C. Noland, Jr.).

RAPID-FIRE IN INDUSTRY SLOWS

After Week-Long Fury, Coal And Steel Industry Temporarily Quiet

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(AP)—An uneasy quiet today hung over America's vital coal and steel industries after a week of rapid-fire developments.

C. I. O. United Steelworkers and industry negotiators—finally brought together again at the conference table by President Truman—are girding for a resumption in earnest of their contract talks in an effort to stave off a strike next week-end.

But the picture was not so bright in coal. No prospects were in sight for an end to the nationwide mine strike as it ended its first week.

Peace did return to the fields after state police patrols squelched a mild wave of violence.

The steel furnaces and coke ovens dotting this busy industrial area continued to devour a dwindling supply of the vital fuel. In another six days—if their owners and the men who operate them have not reached an agreement—they may have no need for coal.

A brief exploratory meeting between U. S. Steel Corp. Vice-President John Stephens and Steelworkers President Phillip Murray climaxed a hectic two weeks of wrangling over conditions for their getting together.

Steel and the U. S. W. have been parleying over their new contract since June 15. A presidential fact-finding board recommended industry-financed pensions and social insurance without a wage increase.

The industry, with big steel setting the pace, balked at the proposal that management contribute the entire sum for the benefits.

Murray stands firm on the board's recommendation, but threatens to toss in a renewed wage raise demand if industry fails to go along with the pension-insurance plan.

Talks resumed after President Truman won an extension of a second strike truce to next Saturday at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Rubber Workers Set Up 'Fair Practice' Plan

TORONTO, Sept. 24. — (AP) — The United Rubber Workers of America (C. I. O.), after vigorous debate today, voted to set up a "fair practice" department to combat racial, religious and nationalistic discrimination in the employment of workers.

The move brought to a close the union's 14th annual convention.

An increase of 50 cents in monthly dues for a war chest for strike ad defense funds was voted down earlier.

The constitutional amendment on dues was proposed by the outgoing executive headed by H. R. Looyd of Akron, O.

Proceedings in the week-long convention slowed to almost a halt yesterday as bitter fractional disputes consumed the time of the more than 600 delegates from United States and Canada.

Today it was necessary to refer all 42 resolutions, proposed for convention discussion, back to the new general executive board, as the convention closed.

L. S. Buckmaster of Akron, whose slate swept all positions on the 15-man executive in Thursday's annual elections, today made a strong plea for unity in the union, split almost 50-50 along pro and anti-Buckmaster lines.

Buffalo, N. Y., was chosen as the 1950 convention site.

Talented Local Youths Will Be Given Chance

How good are Monroe's talented youngsters?

Don't know Mister, but they'll be given an opportunity to "strut their stuff" when Horace Hiedt brings his all new vaudeville variety review, "The Kids Break Thru," to the Neville High School Auditorium Oct. 31.

A Hiedt man will be in Monroe within several weeks to conduct auditions for the local talent. He will select persons who show real class for a spot on the show, a coast to coast radio program.

In as much as the program appears in six or seven cities each week, it is impossible to guarantee anyone that they will appear on a Sunday broadcast. However local talent will be considered and who knows, you might make the grade. If you try and fail, then you have at least the satisfaction of knowing you tried, don't you?

For further information concerning the auditions, watch the News-Star—Morning World.

ATTLEE URGES FIRM STANDING

Says People Of Britain Must Challenge 'Times' With New Sacrifice

LONDON, Sept. 24. — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee called on the British people today to stand firmly against a wave of inflation under the cheapened pound.

The people of Britain, he said, must meet "the challenge of the times" with new sacrifices; business and industry must hold the line on prices and the worker must produce more without demanding higher wages.

If they weaken, Attlee warned, higher prices which follow would "defeat the whole object which we have in view"—to sell more to the dollar nations and put Britain on her feet in world trade.

Although the labor government chief admitted there would be some inevitable increase in the cost of living because of the cut in the value of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80, he declared "there is no occasion for a general price increase.

The prime minister's speech at a political rally in Llandudno, Wales, was the big gun signalling a week of decision for the party that has run the government since 1945.

Less than an hour after he spoke, Lord Woolton, chief architect of the political strategy of the Conservatives, appealed to the Liberal party to join Winston Churchill and his tories in a drive to oust labor from power.

The first show of strength will come in parliament next Tuesday. The members have been called back from their recess for a three-day debate on the government's economic policy. On Thursday, the Attlee government will demand a vote of confidence.

With its top-heavy majority in commons—393 of 640 seats—the government should win. But if the vote shows a serious split in labor ranks it might drive the government to call for an immediate general election. If it is defeated it would resign.

In any case, the government must pick a date for an election between now and next July, when its five-year term expires.

CIVIC MUSIC TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Twin City Mayors Issue Official Proclamation; Headquarters Set Up

A proclamation announcing September 26 through October 1, as civic music week, in cooperation with the Monroe Civic Music Association who this week will conduct their annual membership campaign, was issued this week by Mayors George O. Breece and C. C. Bell, Jr. of the Twin-cities.

With campaign headquarters set up in the Virginia hotel, more than two hundred workers have been recruited to carry on the drive under the direction of Chairman Freeda Mickel. The more members the association has the more range they have in selecting artists of national and international reputation. Four concerts have been assured for the coming year and representative William Walpole of Civic Concert Service, Inc., New York, has definitely stated that a major symphony orchestra will be on the musical bill of fare.

Negro Teachers Get Annual Workshop Underway

Ouachita parish Negro teachers last Monday got their annual workshop underway with a meeting at the Mt. Nebo School on Jackson street.

Mrs. L. M. Allen, supervisor, said the purpose of the workshop was to improve instruction and work toward better teaching in the parish.

L. C. Henry, president of the Ouachita Parish Teachers' Association, presided at the meeting.

Hearings To Re-Design U. S. Television Set For Monday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — (AP) — Hearings which will eventually re-design the nation's television system open Monday before the federal communications commission.

They are expected to last for several weeks. Of most immediate importance from the public's standpoint will be the proposed addition of 42 new television broadcasting channels to the 12 presently available.

The addition is designed to more than treble the presently possible local television outlets.

The present 12 channels, in the "very high frequencies," will accommodate about 400 video stations in 140 populations centers. The additional channels, in the "ultra high frequencies," could be expected to expand the operating potential to some 2,000 stations in 1,400 cities, towns and communities across the country.

Most existing television receivers are made to tune in the present 12 channels only. However, in areas which may receive the new "U. H. F." frequencies, adjusting devices would be made available at relatively low cost to enable U. H. F. reception on existing sets.

The F. C. C. hearing also will consider again the question of licensing color television for regular commercial operations. This matter will be considered first, and the first three weeks of the hearings will be devoted to color alone.

Specific proposals for operating color broadcasting systems have been submitted by Columbia Broadcasting System, Radio Corporation of America, Color Television Inc. of San Francisco and Dr. Leon Rubenstein, New York inventor. In addition, Dr. Charles Willard Geer of the University of Southern California will demonstrate a special color-receiving tube and Webster-Chicago Corp. of Chicago will show an adapting device for tuning in color program broadcasts on black-and-white sets.

AMOY IN BATTLE AGAINST JUNKS

Nationalist Planes Strike Back At Red Armada On Island

CANTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Nationalist planes took to the air today against an armada of Red Junks swarming around, Amoy, island port 300 miles up the Chinese coast.

This was the word brought to Hong Kong by passengers on the last plane out of Amoy, the last good port left to Nationalist China.

These arrivals said Red artillery was shelling the Amoy airport from the mainland, and the Nationalist planes were operating from an emergency strip set up on nearby Kinmen island. Amoy island is about 35 miles around.

The Communist junks, these arrivals said, were massing off Amoy's southwestern shore with the obvious intention of landing there. If they do it, tens of thousands of Nationalist defenders on the port island will have their escape sealed off, they said.

Meanwhile the Nationalist government here conceded the loss of Changchow, railroad 30 miles west of Amoy, days after other sources reported it lost to the Reds.

This did not diminish frank spekticism which greeted Nationalist claims of two victories near Amoy. Never modest in estimating Red losses, the Nationalists announced they wiped out 10,000 Reds trying to capture Heaven Horse hill on the mainland just opposite Amoy. They also said they made an amphibious landing southwest of Amoy and annihilated 3,000 more Reds.

Other accounts said meanwhile the Reds had pressed down through the mountains of Northern Kwangtung province and had strengthened their grip around Yungyun only 105 miles north-northeast of Canton.

A Nationalist destroyer which had deserted to the Communists was bombed and left sinking in the Yangtze by Nationalist planes, stated unofficial reports. This word came from Formosa, headquarters of the Nationist airforce on the island just across the straight from Beleaguered Amoy.

In Peiping, the Red radio continued grinding out routine accounts of the fourth day of the plenary session of the political consultative conference. This body is organizing a Communist-dominated government which is expected soon to claim sovereignty over all China.

KINDER MASTERS YANKEES FOR RED SOX, 3-0

BRONX BOMBERS SEE LEAD WANE TO SINGLE GAME

Contest Today Might Be Decisive Battle In American League Flag Chase

By Jack Hand

Boston, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Ellis Kinder, a 35-year-old Tennessee "boy" with an acrobatic curve, halved the New York Yankees' lead today with a six-hit 3-0 triumph that boosted the streaming Boston Red Sox within one game of first place in the American League race.

Victory number 23, the last 13 in succession, enabled Kinder to give the Red Sox the jump in this vital series that probably will decide the pennant.

Here's the situation, going into tomorrow's final game at Fenway Park where Boston has won its last 20 starts.

	W.	L.	Games Behind	To Play
New York	93	54	..	7
Boston	92	55	1	7

It will be Mel Parnell, stylish left hander with a 24-7 record, for Boston in the finale against Allie Reynolds (17-5) for the desperate Yanks.

Beaten three times in their last four starts, the Yanks rolled over and played dead before Kinder's brilliant performance. Allie never allowed more than one hit an inning, struck out five and walked only four. Only one of the hits was an extra baser and that was by Phil Rizzuto, who led off the eighth with a double but was left cold and dry.

It was the second shutout loss for the Yanks who have never been out of first place all season. Another Red Sox win tomorrow would send the teams back to the Yankee Stadium Monday tied for first.

Ed Lopat, first of 23 enemy lefties to go the route at Fenway all season, was nicked for two runs in the second and Ted Williams' 425-foot homer, his 42nd, in the third.

That was all but it was more than enough.

Bobby Doerr shot a single to left to open the second inning when Lopat actually lost the game. He walked Al Zarilla after working him down to a 3-2 count. Billy Goodman's bunt single down the third base line, fielded by Lopat too late for a play, loaded them up with nobody out.

Doerr did not attempt to score on Birdie Tebbetts' fly to right field but Kinder's bouncer to First Baseman Tommy Henrich led to the score.

Henrich threw to Yogi Berra to force Doerr at the plate but on the attempt to double Kinder at first Zarilla sped home from second base to beat Henrich's return throw.

Alert coaching and Zarilla's speed made possible the first run of the game. Berra's throw to Henrich, trying to double Kinder, was lost but Tommy took it on the hop.

Zarilla never stopped at third and rushed pell mell to the plate, sliding under Berra's tag. Then Dom DiMaggio's single to center scored Goodman with the second run.

TIGERS DOWN INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Hal Newhouser collected his 18th win of the season today while the Detroit Tigers were turning back the Cleveland Indians, 8-5.

Newhouser spotted the Indians five runs in the first inning on two walks and four hits.

Pat Mullin's 12th home run of the year scored three Detroit runs in the third. Catcher Aaron Robinson got his 14th four-bagger in the fourth, when Detroit evened the score.

In the sixth, Cornelius Berry singled in Walt Evers with the clinching run.

It was Cleveland's sixth straight loss, and dropped the Indians three and one-half games behind the third-place Tigers.

TROPHY TO BE AWARDED TO BEST
SKEET SHOOTER

The Monroe Skeet Club's champion target buster will be awarded the trophy, pictured on display above in the show window of Sears, Roebuck department store here. The trophy is to be presented by C. D. McAdams, local Sears manager, at the conclusion of the 200-target event at the Monroe skeet range this afternoon. SKEET SHOOTERS FIRE LAST ROUND FOR BIG TROPHY

Determine Winner Of 200-Target McAdams Championship Award Today

The final round of shooting in the 200-target club championship event for the C. D. McAdams trophy is scheduled for today at the Monroe skeet range where members of the Monroe Skeet Club will be closing out their most successful season.

The trophy to the winner of the championship is being presented by C. D. McAdams, manager of the Sears, Roebuck department store here.

Glen Anderson, West Monroe, will be shooting to protect his four-target lead in the event this afternoon. Anderson, at the three-quarter mark last Sunday, had cracked 146 of his 150 birds with 50 shots more to go today.

Four targets behind Anderson ranks Jim Steele, also of West Monroe, who had a perfect 50 score for the first day's shooting in the event, but he slipped behind on his second and third rounds to post a 142 out of 150.

Ross Graves, Mer Rouge, did a fancy piece of shooting last week to pull within one bird of tying Steele for second. Graves has 141x150, and another good shoot today could possibly send Graves into the lead and claim on the trophy.

Three-round totals for others contending for the big skeet trophy are E. W. Andrews, 137; J. D. McAdams, 130; Bill Andrews, 128; and R. L. Fuller, 115.

Among high contenders who are off the pace and need to go 100 targets today to remain in the running are Bert Williams, Gene Low, Toby Bancroft, Jr., Mike Smith, and Toby Bancroft, Sr. They have fired only two rounds and for their 100 shots to date their scores are: Williams, 94; Low, 94; Bancroft, Jr., 94; Bancroft, Sr., 93; and Smith, 97.

S. K. Bernheim, who took over management of the skeet range from J. B. Thoman a week ago, last night said the runner-up in the McAdams championship event will be awarded a sportsman's ship lamp by the Monroe Skeet Club, and a table lighter from the Standard Office Supply Company will go to the consolation winner.

Other skeet awards for men in one-day shooting today will include a tie from the Alvis Men's Shop, a case of canned beer from Buttitta's Package Store, two boxes of shotgun shells from New York Hardware, a pipe from Bell's Pharmacy, dinner for two at Duffy's Drive-In, wash and grease job from Windes-Hatten Motors, and wash, grease and five gallons of gasoline from Wene's Service Station.

Awards for women skeet artists will be a slip from Field's, and a pair of hose from Keene's Shoe Store.

In the trap class, the day's best will get his choice of a $10 hat from Moore's Tailoring and Men's Wear, and the runner-up will receive a set of cuff links and a tie clasp from DeSiard Jewelry.

Bernheim reported a Remington Arms representative had checked over the traps at the range the past week, and all is ready for today's firing. The shooting is open to the general public whether members of the Monroe Skeet Club or not.

Crosley 7, Ouachita 6.

The Sixth Grade League opened grammar school football play here yesterday afternoon with Sherrouse defeating Mitchell of West Monroe, 26 to 0; Georgia Tucker stopping Barkdull Faulk, 20 to 13; and Crosley of West Monroe nosing out Ouachita, 7 to 6.

Crow made a 40-yard return of the opening kickoff to put Sherrouse out in front. May added two more Sherrouse touchdowns on reverses, and Ambrose circled end for another. Yerger and Sedberry added extra points.

Georgia Tucker broke a 13-13 lifetime tie to win when Reeves, who scored two touchdowns, broke away in the third period for the winning tally. Lewis scored one touchdown and two extra points for Georgia Tucker, and Bloomer made all the points for Barkdull Faulk.

Gonzales intercepted a pass in the third quarter and scampered 30 yards for the Ouachita touchdown to put his team in front, but Crosley came back a few moments later to tie the count when Huckaby scored on an end run. Huckaby then added the point that gave Crosley the victory.

TRIBE MAY PLAY WITHOUT SERVICE OF 'BUSTER' KING

Famed Rangerettes Will Accompany Invaders For Halftime Show

The Kilgore Rangers and the famous Rangerettes will bring the Twin Cities top football entertainment Friday night when they invade the Northeast Junior College campus. Junior college football observers will be watching this game as the top game in the nation's junior grid competition.

Coach James L. Malone said yesterday that he considers the Rangers on a par with his famous 1937 squad which went undefeated that year. Bobby Kellog was the start of this team, considered as Malone's best grid machine.

Kilgore comes to Monroe with a veteran team that defeated the Tribe last year at Kilgore, 27-0. They were powerful last season and will have a definite advantage over the inexperienced Indians, although the Redmen proved Friday night they are not to be taken lightly.

Probably the most famous of the collegiate coed marching groups are the Kilgore Rangerettes. When boys on the grid field take their half-time rests, the Rangerettes take over to thrill the crowd with some of the most intricate marching routines ever seen on a gridiron. They have performed at some of the biggest football games in the country. Always in demand to perform their stunts, the Rangerettes continue this year to bring Monroe the best in half-time ceremonies. There have been many newspaper features completely devoted to this group of charming young women. Some comments are "They are worth the price of a ticket to see them alone."

The Indians are expecting to meet the toughest team of the season in their second encounter on the schedule. Kilgore will present one of the biggest lines in junior college competition, and many of the big-time colleges would be envious of their weight.

Both tackles will tip the scales at 227 and 256 respectively. Not only will their weight be a decided help, but they tower over six feet, four inches.

The Rangers demonstrated their well balanced team against Camden in the first four minutes of a Friday night game by scoring fourteen points. They sent in the second team which was almost as effective. Kilgore runs from a single wing unbalanced line that gives them plenty of power on the offense. Forty-four men will accompany the Rangers, giving them exceptional reserve strength for junior college football.

In the backfield, the Rangers will have speed with Warren Ramsey, Frank Flowers, Joe Young and Don Tittle (no relation to L. S. U.'s Tittle). All of them were members of Kilgore's championship track team last year.

Malone did not waste any time getting his gridders into swing for the Friday night game. He ordered his squad to report for an early morning workout yesterday. Malone said that he was not punishing his team in any way, but he was making sure they would be ready for the Kilgore game. He had only praise for his boys yesterday after their upset over the strong East Oklahoma Mountaineers. He said, "We found several fundamental mistakes that almost cost us the ball game, but with plenty of hard work this week we should improve."

The Indians surprised a scrappy East Oklahoma team Friday night when they poured on the power in the first half to forge ahead 13-7. All through the first half the Tribe played a superb game only to slow down in the second half. In the final minutes of the game, the Indians came to life and scored their last touchdown. Jimmy Farish took the ball over the goal line on a hard drive from the 15 yard stripe. He also made a beautiful tackle at mid field as he hit the ball carrier with his shoulder causing the runner to turn a complete somersault in midair.

Buster King will be lost to the Tribe for the Friday night game unless his

Tallulah Trojans Wallop Oak Grove

TALLULAH, a., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Tallulah Trojans last night tamed the Oak Grove High School Tigers here with a 45-7 victory.

Oak Grove's only tally came in the fourth quarter on a 27-yard run by Right Halfback Stevens. Walters kicked the extra point for the Tiger team.

Trojan scores started piling up in the first quarter when White, left end, darted 55 yards to the Oak Grove 20. Right Halfback Clark carried the ball to pay dirt from that point.

White scored again with a four-yard smash through the Tiger line.

Sonny Clark, halfback, intercepted an Oak Grove pass on the Tiger 30. On the next play, he plowed over from the Oak Grove 30 to a touchdown.

The Trojans drew blood again with White's 60-yard scat from the Tiger 40, and again on a 52-yard run.

TO PLAY BASTROP COURSE

Cary Middlecoff (above), the former Memphis dentist who won the National Open golf championship last June at Chicago, will be a featured player in an exhibition attraction at the Morehouse Country Club, Bastrop, next Sunday. On the same program will be Frank Stranahan and Buck White, other nationally known linksmen.

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(NEA)—Gerald Francis Coleman is one of the brighter stories of the baseball season—the kid who came from nowhere to take it all.

Asked why he replaced George Stirnweiss at second base with Jerry Coleman, Casey Stengel replies: "We win with Coleman." It was as simple as that.

Coleman, taking charge of the Yankee infield in his freshman year, didn't dare hope he had a chance when he reported in St. Petersburg.

"When they brought Mickey Witek up from Kansas City, I thought it was all off—even the extra infielder job," he says.

But young Coleman caught Manager Stengel's eye when he poled a 380-foot home run with a man on in an exhibition game with the Senators in Orlando, and he's been a very prominent member of the party since.

Coleman, all arms and lefs, is a stand up and cheer infielder—makes eye-popping plays. Coleman gets his hands on balls other second baseman wouldn't go after, is remindful in that respect of the pre-war Joe Gordon.

A Marine dive bomber with 57 missions in the South Pacific, Coleman dives after balls as though he were diving into a swimming pool, literally knocks himself out in knocking off base hits. He threw out the fleet Larry Doby of the Indians the other afternoon while sprawled on the ground.

He is in no sense a power hitter, but hits 20 points more than Snuffy Stirnweiss, and is at his best with men on bases. He sprays hits all over the place, hits behind the runner.

Coleman was signed by the famous scout, Joe Devine, while a student at San Francisco's Lowell High. He played with the Keneely A. C., a semi-professional club, with teammates Bobby Brown and Charley Silvera and Dino Restelli of the Pirates.

Graduated from high school, Coleman got in only a half season with Wellsville of the Pony League in 1942 before the Marines claimed him, and he spent the seasons of 1943-44-45 belting Japs in the Solomons, at New Guinea, Luzon and Mindiano.

Mustered out, he put in six months at the University of San Francisco, but the 1946 season found him with Binghampton, '47 with Kansas City and last year with Newark.

Billy Meyer of the Pirates, who managed him in Kansas City, says he was the best third baseman in the American Association two years ago.

Making his story all the more unusual is that previous to this season he performed mostly on the left side of the infield.

His father was a minor league catcher.

Coleman, just turned 25, has jet black hair and brown eyes sparkling out of an olive complexion. He is of Irish-French descent.

Coleman looks more like Frank Crosetti than the old shortstop—in build, facial even to the profile and in playing mannerisms. They are the same weight, 165, but the boy at an even six feet is a half-inch taller.

There is a story that he mimicked Crosetti, his boyhood hero. Actually, he had no particular athletic idol, and never saw Crosetti until last year.

"But I always wanted to be a Yankee," beams Jerry Coleman.

FAMED GOLFERS TO PLAY BASTROP COURSE ON OCT. 2

Cary Middlecoff, Frank Stranahan, Buck White In Morehouse Exhibition

BASTROP, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—National Open Champion Cary Middlecoff will be featured in the golf match to be played at the Morehouse Country Club here on October 2.

Appearing on the same program with Middlecoff will be Frank Stranahan, one of the nation's most colorful amateurs, and Buck White, the Greenwood, Miss., pro who finished fourth in the National Open and Sixth in the Tam O'Shanter World Championship Tournament.

Cary's victory in the open this past June at Chicago's Medinah Country Club climaxed a meteoric rise that is unequalled in the history of professional golf. He has, in fact, been one of the top figures in the game almost ever since turning pro in March of 1947. He won his first tournament and $2,000 prize less than two weeks after dropping his amateur status. That was the Charlotte Open.

But even before that he had shown the golfing world that it could expect fabulous deeds from him. In 1945, still an amateur and an army dentist, he became the first and only amateur to win the North-South Open, and in so doing battled and decisively defeated Ben Hogan during the last 36 holes of the event.

Middlecroff reached his peak as an amateur in 1946 when he finished low amateur in the Masters' tournament. And in the same year he tied a first-day qualifying record in the National Amateur with a 68, but bowed out in the quarter-finals. Early in 1947 he was named to America's Walker Cup team to play against Great Britain's best in England, but he declined in order to turn pro.

It is indicative of the kind of golf Cary is that since the open title fell to him he continued to win big tournaments despite the added strain of being "the champ" and despite the numerous added demands that are made on his time.

Immediately following the open he tied for first with Lloyd Mangrum in the Motor City Open at Detroit and followed that with a win in the $15,000 Reading Open.

High Schools Organize League For Basketball

CHOUDRANT, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—At a meeting Tuesday at Choudrant High School a basketball league was formed mainly for smaller schools that do not participate in football.

Schools represented were Ca[illegible], Downsville, Choudrant, Jonesboro-Hodge, Simsboro, Quitman, Hodge, Eros and Chatham. The group took the title of "The North Central Louisiana League."

A double round robin schedule was worked out beginning October 20 and continuing until December 13. All schools will enter both boys' and girls' teams except Jonesboro-Hodge which will have only a boys' team at the beginning.

Another meeting has been scheduled for October 11, at Choudrant, in which all of the coaches, players and referees will take part in the discussion of the rules led by "Preacher" Vails, of Jonesboro.

A trophy will be awarded the winning boys' and girls' teams at the end of the schedule. Harold Napper, principal of Simsboro High School was elected president and Coach David Clinton of Choudrant High School was elected secretary.

Cardinal Rookie Shows Promise

By John Deitrick
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

LEBANON, Pa.—A husky young outfielder with the Class D Lebanon Chix, who hits almost .400 and runs like a rabbit, is being hailed as another Joe Medwick.

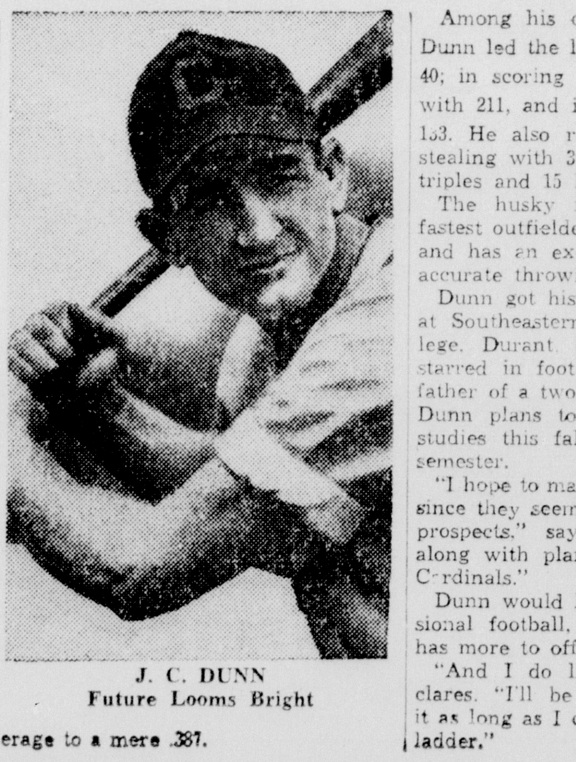
At least that's the claim of Charles (Pop) Kelchner, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals. And Kelchner should know—he sent Medwick to the majors.

The promising rookie is J. C. Dunn, a rugged six-foot, 190-pounder, who hails from Fort Smith, Ark.

Dunn entered professional baseball last spring for the first time when he attended the training camp operated by the Cardinals at Albany, Ga. He was assigned to the Lebanon club of the North Atlantic League which has a working agreement with Pocatello, Ida., a member of the St. Louis farm system.

The hard-hitting, 23-year-old speedster racked up a brilliant record in the North Atlantic circuit, finishing the season with most of the league's batting honors.

He averaged over .400 with the second place Chix until an ankle injury late in the season temporarily forced him from the lineup and cut his average to a mere .387.



J. C. DUNN
Future Looms Bright

Among his other accomplishments, Dunn led the league in doubles, with 40; in scoring with 137 runs; in hits with 211, and in runs batted in with 133. He also ranked second in base stealing with 34, and pounded out 14 triples and 15 home runs.

The husky rookie is one of the fastest outfielders in the Class D loop and has an exceptionally strong and accurate throwing arm.

Dunn got his first taste of baseball at Southeastern State Teachers College, Durant, Okla., where he also starred in football. Married and the father of a two-year-old son, Johnny, Dunn plans to complete his college studies this fall. He lacks only one semester.

"I hope to make a career of baseball since they seem to think I have some prospects," says Dunn. "I will go along with plans offered me by the Cardinals."

Dunn would like a crack at professional football, but believes baseball has more to offer.

"And I do like baseball," he declares. "I'll be happy to stick with it as long as I can keep going up the ladder."

Clarks Lumberjacks Win Over Farmerville, 12 To 0

CLARKS, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Clarks High School eleven blanked Farmerville, 12 to 0, here last night in a game which showed a much improved team in the Clarks victors.

Clarks tallies came when Wayne Johnson scored on an end run, and Glen Ainsworth went over with a pass from McDonald. Neither try for the extra point was good.

Honorably mentioned for the night's performance on the Clarks roster were Jerry Holiman, guard and honorary captain; Fred Benson, right tackle; Brussard, right guard, and Duke and Doffitt.

CRIMSONS FALL BEFORE TULANE BY 28-14 SCORE

Salem And Avinger Passes Bring Alabama Touchdowns In Last Quarter

By Hendrix Chandler

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Tulane's powerful Greenies rolled to a 28-14 win over a less experienced Alabama eleven today in an impressive debut before 37,500 shirt-sleeved fans.

With All-America Candidate Eddie Price and Big Bill Svoboda setting the pace, Tulane racked up four touchdowns with its powerful running attack.

Alabama, outcharged by a rugged Tulane line, took desperately to the air in the final quarter. Ed Salem and Butch Avinger electrified the crowd by connecting with two long touchdown tosses.

Tulane's tossers didn't do so well although they didn't do any serious passing until the game had been iced late in the final quarter.

With Big Paul Lea, Homer Dedeaux, and George Maddox opening up wide holes in the line, Tulane's backs broke loose time and again through the tackles for consistent gains.

For almost two quarters, the Greenies gathered steam. They finally broke into the scoring column two minutes before the half when George Kinek smashed four yards through tackle for the score after a 50-yard sustained drive.

Price hit pay dirt midway of the third quarter with an 11-yard run through the line that culminated an 66-yard drive.

It was Svoboda, the 212-pound powerhouse, who took up the scoring from there. He ran one yard around end in the fourth period for the score. A few minutes later he took an Alabama kickoff on his 15-yard line and ran through the entire Crimson Tide team for the score.

Alabama couldn't get its running game under way, and opened up with a passing attack late in the fourth quarter. Salem finally connected with a long one to Halfback Bill Ashton for a touchdown. The pass and run covered 78 yards. Butch Avinger then took over the tossing, and his Tom Calvin with a 23-yard heave for a second score.

Euel Davis, accurate Tulane kicker, added all four Tulane extra points from placement. Salem did both conversions for Alabama.

Tulane rolled up 343 yards by rushing against only 65 for Alabama, and added 82 yards by passes to Alabama's 30.

Tulane got off to an inauspicious start when Svoboda fumbled on the first running play and Bill Cadenhead recovered for Alabama on the Tulane 25. Alabama made it first down in three running plays that carried to the Greenies' 13-yard line. But the Tulane line held and Alabama had to kick.

It was then that Price, a swift, powerful 185-pound fullback, got his first chance. He drove the line for 45 yards, carrying to Alabama's 15 yard line. Tulane pushed down to the Alabama 14 again in the second quarter but in both cases Alabama held.

Price gained a net 19 yards by Tulane backs to impress in the crucial opener. Coach Henry Frnka also exhibited some impressive ball carriers in Kinek, Jimmy Glisson, Cliff Van Metzr, and Bill Bonar.

Price gained a net 19 yar4ds by rushing and Svoboda added 6. Tom Calvin was the principal Alabama ground-gainer with 40 yards followed by Sophomore Jimmy Melton with 14.

When Tulane took to the air it was oe Ernst and Bonar who were doing most of the tossing. Ernst completed seven tosses for 42 yards and Bonar had three out of eight for 50 yards.

Ded Lutz, a sophomore end, was one of the standouts for Alabama in the line. Others who impressed were Tackle Herb Hannah and Center Pat O'Sullivan.

Score by periods:

Tulane	0	7	7	14—28
Alabama	0	0	0	14—14

Tulane scoring—Touchdowns: Kinek, Price, Svoboda (2); Points after touchdown: Davis (4).

Alabama scoring—Touchdowns: Ashton, Calvin; Point after touchdown: Salem (2).

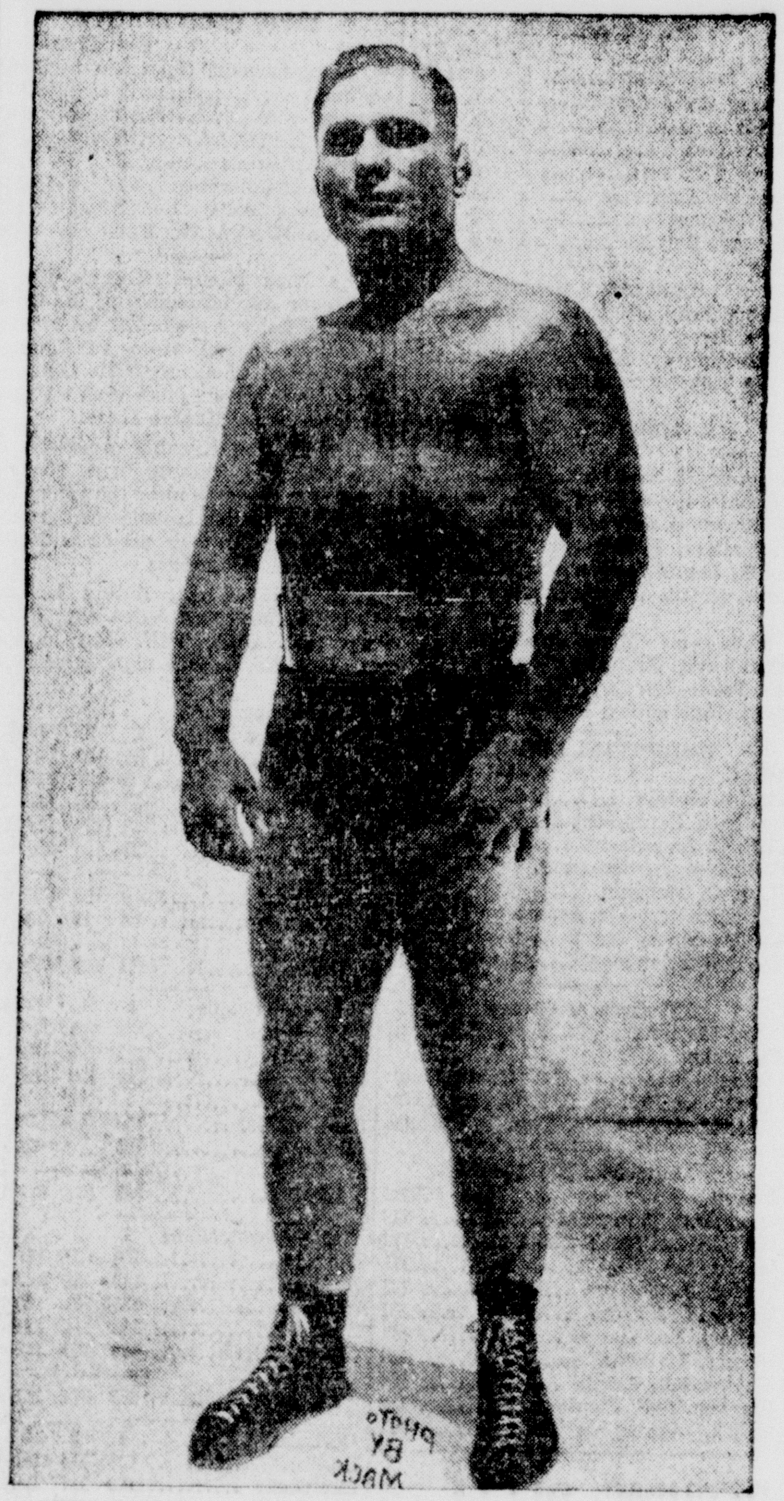
Kallio Offers Biggest Mat Spectacle Here Saturday

'WILD RED' BERRY RETURNING



"Wild Red" Berry, once the terror of heavyweight wrestling here a few years ago and a great favorite with the fans, returns to Monroe next Saturday night to appear on Promoter Gus Kallio's triple header mat card at Legion Memorial Stadium. Berry will battle Black Gusman, heavyweight champion of Texas. Two other championship matches, featuring LeRoy McGuirk, Jack Curtis and "Dangerous Danny" McShane, will also be on the program.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—One bobbled grounder next Monday could conceivably cost the Yankees the American League pennant and a large wad of dough. . . . And after seeing what the football Yankees and Los Angeles Dons did to the stadium turf Thursday night playing in the rain, it wouldn't be surprising to see more than one ground ball take a bad hop in that important game against the Red Sox. . . . What's worse, from the viewpoint of the closely-allied baseball and football Yankees, the gate for the football game wasn't enough to pay expenses, much less make up for the possible loss of the pennant. . . . They might have done better to take the game across to McCombs Dam park. . . . It took Veteran Henry Cotton to knock the last two American golfers, Johnny Palmer and Lloyd Mangrum, out of the British P. G. A. tournament. . . . That was the first time North Carolina's Palmer knew that Cotton wasn't soft.

Needlework Dept.

Outside of beating his old tutor, Jess Neely, tonight, there probably isn't anything Clemson's Frank Howard would like better than to have Bill Gregus absent from the Wake Forest lineup when Clemson plays the Deacons. . . . But when Gregus was mysteriously missing from school a couple of weeks ago, Howard could not resist temptation. . . . He wired Peahead Walker, Wake Forest coach: "With regards to Gregus, suggest you give him a 'Nub' Smith type scholarship." . . . Smith, it seems, is the kid all the Southern Conference coaches were after a couple of years ago. Walker landed him. . . . Maybe it was just coincidental that Gregus rejoined the Wake Forest squad the day after Walker got the telegram.

Sportspourri

Georgia Tech, which lost to Tennessee and Alabama last season on wet turf, has bought a nylon cover for its gridiron. . . . Wisconsin's Ivy Williamson is more than happy over the discovery of John Coatta, soph quarterback from Dearborn, Mich., and Kiski. . . . Coatta is a smooth T-formation operative and, says Ivy, "a real take-charge guy." . . . Virgil Barnes, half of the brother pitching act that worked for the Giants some 25 years ago, is an artist of note with a studio in Wichita, Kas. Brother Jess is police captain in El Dorado, Kas. . . . They laugh at Yogi Berra's addiction to comic books, but the car that looked to be full of those things when it was parked outside the stadium the other day bore the Connecticut license "Spec."

Weakend Notes

Brad Rowland, touted as a Little All-America prospect by McMurry College of Abilene, Tex., averaged more than seven yards on 18 tries in a losing game against Tulsa last week and three times tackled Tulsa runners returning his own punts. McMurry also has an end, Les Cowan, who is 6-5 and weighs 240. Who said little? . . . Coaltown, the Calumet stable speedster, is shod with a layer of piano cloth under his racing plates to protect his tender feet. . . . Maybe that's why he doesn't need tune-up races.

Wisner, Crowville Will Settle Loop Title Today

CROWVILLE, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Wisner and Crowville resume their playoff for the championship of the Pelican League here tomorrow afternoon with a possible double header, beginning at 1:30 o'clock in order to make up for a rained out date last Sunday.

If Wisner, now leading the series two games to one, wins the first game, then there will be no double header. Should Crowville win, the fifth game of the series will follow immediately to determine the championship.

Co-captains Mariano Stalloni and Jack Miller of the University of Delaware football team were high school teammates.

USUAL TUESDAY NIGHT PROGRAM TO BE OFFERED

Big Names Of Wrestling Appear In Two Title Matches On Weekend

The greatest wrestling show ever to come to Monroe has been signed by Promoter Gus Kallio who will move into the class of "big time promoter" when he puts on a triple main event that will include two world's championship matches here next Saturday night. His usual Tuesday night show is also on tap this week with the main event to determine one of the figures on the Saturday headliner.

Here's Kallio's scheduled for the week:

Tuesday Night

Main event: Charley Laye vs. Balk Estes (winner to get title shot at Jack Curtis on Saturday night).

Semi-final: "Wild Bill" Steddum vs. Bob Corby.

Saturday Night

First match: "Wild Red" Berry vs. Black Gusman, heavyweight champion of Texas.

Second match: Champion Jack Curtis vs. winner Tuesday's Estes-Laye battle for light heavyweight championship of the world.

Third match: Champion LeRoy McGuirk vs. "Dangerous Danny" McShane for junior heavyweight championship of the world.

Kallio presents his Tuesday card as usual at his Walnut street arena, but the big show Saturday night will take place in Monroe's new Legion Memorial Stadium at Bernstein Park.

Promoter Kallio has been working hard for the past three weeks lining up his triple header in an effort to give wrestling fans here something they will remember.

"One thing about it, you can't always use your own judgment about what might be a good promotion," Kallio said. "You have to get among the fans, listen to them, find out what they like, and then try to please them.

"I've had to make my programs to fit my arena, but now the American Legion has built a nice stadium that will be able to accommodate the kind of crowd that it takes to bring the big names of wrestling to town. I made up my mind to promote one card at least that the fans here abouts will never forget. Those who fail to see it will be sorry."

In order to build up his big show, Kallio contacted leading wrestlers throughout the United States, and made a plane trip to Houston, Tex., a week ago, where he was assisted by Morris Segel, Houston promoter, in lining up McShane, the mauler from Los Angeles, Calif.; and "Wild Red" Berry, the Pittsburg, Kans., bruiser who is no stranger to Twin City fans and once ruled as a favorite here at the old Roosevelt Stadium.

"I can say one thing about these wrestlers," Kallio declared. "They represent the current leading attractions wherever they appear in the country. They're the 'cream of the crop' and have attracted sellout crowds in many of the nation's largest cities."

The Berry-Gusman match, opening event on the Saturday show, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, would have been a title match also if Kallio had been able to have his way. Since Gusman, who hails from Mexico City, is the current Texas state heavyweight champion, Kallio had sought to have Texas recognize the match here as a title affair. The Texas wrestling commission denied the request, saying the Texas title could only change hands in a match promoted within the state.

LeRoy McGuirk, of Tulsa, Okla., and "Dangerous Danny" McShane might well be the class of the night's fireworks Saturday as McGuirk battles to keep his junior heavyweight throne. Jack Curtis, long a favorite with local mat fans, can look for trouble from either Estes, of Elk City, Okla., or Laye, the Knoxville, Tenn., battle who once held the crown now worn by Curtis.

NOT FOR SOFTIES — Midge (Toughy) Brasuhn is comforted by Trainer Freddie Cohen, and carried from Madison Square Garden track. The captain of the Brooklyn girls' team injured her back in nasty fall, had to retire from game with Philadelphia-Bronx side in Roller Derby World Series.

The Laye-Estes match, headlining Tuesday's show, grew out of last Tuesday night's wild tag team match in which Estes claimed Laye was responsible for the defeat of his team in the deciding fall. Estes, at the time, challenged Laye to come back and fight it out "man to man," but Laye declined. Steddum, who was Laye's partner, accommodated Estes, however, in a fast and furious mixup that settled nothing except that Steddum promised he'd get Laye to take on Estes in the Tuesday main event.

Kallio made the match even more interesting by signing the winner to meet Curtis in Saturday's title scramble.

Estes and Laye will battle over a 90-minute time limit route Tuesday with two falls to win, while the Corby-Steddum semi-final will have an hour time limit, also two falls to win.

Every match on the triple main event card Saturday will have an hour and 15 minutes time limit, two falls to win, and Claude Skidmore, Jackson, Miss., will referee all battles.

Kallio has obtained a trophy to be awarded to the fans' choice as "most popular" wrestler on the weekend card. Applause of the customers will determine who gets the trophy, Kallio said.

Meanwhile, the advanced sale of tickets for both the Tuesday and Saturday shows is underway. Only ringside and box seats will be offered in the advanced sales. The tickets may be obtained at Gus Kallio's Arena.

There will be no change in prices for the Tuesday card, but prices for Saturday night will be $2.50 ringside, $2 for box seats, $1.50 for grandstand; $1 for bleachers; and 50 cents for children under 16 years of age. A special section will be reserved for colored fans.

University of Arizona End Max Spilsbury has won the school heavyweight boxing championship three consecutive years.

Calumet Aims For Third Futurity

By Frank Eck

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

NEW YORK—The Futurity, which often decides the two-year-old thoroughbred championship, this time is a wide open affair.

The good ones, like King Ranch's record breaking Middleground and C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince, will be missing. They are ineligible for the $50,000 added juvenile classic to be run Saturday, October 1, over 6 1/2 furlongs down Belmont Park's Widener chute.

The Widener course is the straightaway at Belmont, best described by Cas Adams when he said "the Japanese could have surprised us by coming down the chute," so difficult is it to distinguish the bright silks of the jockeys as the horses run diagonally toward the grandstand.

Best Horse Wins

In the last five runnings of this race such odds-on stars as Pavot, Star Pilot, First Flight, Citation and Blue Peter have triumphed. It is a race usually won by the best horse. A colt or filly on the outside can run along the outside rail without covering any more ground than the inside rail horses.

Some experts undoubtedly will go for Calumet Farm's Rearmed, a colt that has been successful on Chicago tracks this summer. Calumet has won two futurity's, Some Chance in 1941 and Citation in '47. Citation, incidentally, is the only futurity winner of the 59 previous runnings that has gone on to win the Kentucky Derby.

With Middleground, Hill Prince, Greek Ship and some of the good western campaigners like Wisconsin Boy and Curtice ineligible, the race figures to have little bearing on the 3-year-old picture of next year.

Calumet Trainer Ben Jones with Rearmed.

Two Others Figure

After Rearmed, two other juveniles that will get good support are Brookmeade stable's More Sun, a chestnut colt that won the U. S. Hotel and Saratoga Special stakes during the Saratoga meeting and C. V. Whitney's Mr. Trouble, a Mahmoud colt that finished in the money in his first nine starts.

Other possibilities are closely bunched.

3 MINOR UPSETS FEATURE SCRAPS IN DOUBLE-A LOOP

Baton Rouge Bulldogs In Biggest Surprise With Win Over Jesuit

(By Associated Press)

Three minor upsets topped play in the Louisiana Class Double-A conference last night.

The biggest came when Baton Rouge downed Jesuit of New Orleans 13-7. A New Orleans team—Redemptorist—provided another by beating a favored St. Stanislaus of Bay St. Louis, Miss., 26-0 in a non-loop encounter.

The third came when Fair Park of Shreveport held Bolton of Alexandria to a 14-14 tie. It was Bolton's third deadlock in three games. And it was the second consecutive week that big I. E. Schroll has accounted for all of his team's points.

In other AA games, Bogalusa smashed Jennings 41-0; Warren Easton of New Orleans took Istrouma of Baton Rouge 26-0, and Sulphur downed Terrebonne of Houma 37-20.

In other non-conference games, Byrd of Shreveport won 32-6 over Bastrop; Class A Bossier City came through as expected to win 13-7 over Haynesville; and Class A Oakdale fought Lafayette to a 6-6 draw.

In the Jesuit-Baton Rouge game, it was a 30-yard pass from Tubby Watson to R. J. Bourgeois in the final quarter that won the game. But Baton Rouge had to fight off determined Jesuit pushes to hold on.

Baton Rouge first tallied on a 25-yard run by Merlin Darouse, while Jesuit got its six points on a line buck by Roy Rocker. A Baton Rouge end, Charlie Walker, received a leg injury, believed to be a fractured bone, in the second quarter.

Sulphur piled up a 31-0 halftime lead over Terrebonne, then let substitutes take over.

The Sulphur scoring was divided among four players. Pistol Pete Miller made one touchdown, Johnny Hebert two and an extra point, James Smith two and Elmo Bourgeois one.

However, it was Billy Juenke of Terrebonne who led the pack. He got all three of his team's tallies, one on a 60-yard run.

Schroll, younger brother of two former Louisiana State stars, added 14 points against Fair Park to boost his season's total against conference teams to 33 points in two games.

He made one on a pass from Ted Bullock, then another on a 7-yard run. He kicked both extra points.

The Shreveporters scored in the third quarter on a 21-yard pass from Roger Hampton to Buddy Embry and again in the same period with Hampton crashing over from the one. Fred Howell converted twice.

Bogalusa had no more trouble with Jennings than the 41-0 count indicates. Scoring were Ed Welch twice, Ralph Billings, Cliff Springfield, Charles Lane and Don Lee. Lee's touchdown came on a 45-yard pass from Springfield.

Warren Easton had almost as easy a time with Itrouma. Les Kennedy went around end from the one for the first marker. A blocked punt set it up. Joining in the touchdown march were Jack Fry, who intercepted a pass, LaCoste and Johnson, who caught a pass from Harry Willie.

Bossier City barely managed to hang on to their 13-7 victory. Bossier scored first on runs by Rony Montalbano and Donald Millen. Then Haynesville's AA team began to click. Bill Stanberry scored on a 52-yard run. The winners intercepted a pass after Haynesville had driven to the one-yard stripe in the fourth period.

A partially blocked punt set up Lafayette's score in their tie game. Billy McDaniels went over from the four for the tally.

Oakdale scored after a sustained drive from its 26. Louis Gilley went 13 yards for the touchdown.

Redemptorist had no trouble in upsetting St. Stanislaus. The winners got into the lead in the first period on a 25-yard pass from Mike Trapani to Elmo Zimmerman. Tom Ruiz made a touchdown in the second quarter and Vic Villafarro in the third and fourth periods.

Byrd took on its second non-league foe of the season and went in front after four minutes of play. Ben Johnson scored from the seven for a six-point margin.

Other touchdowns were made by Willard Rachel, Dan Barr, Bobby Ellis, and Dale Sandifer.

Leon Johnston of Bastrop made his team's only score on an 85-yard kickoff return.

Lamotta, Cerdan Fight Postponed; Champ Hurt

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The middleweight championship fight between Jake LaMotta of the Bronx and Marcel Cerdan of France, scheduled next Wednesday night at the Polo Grounds, was postponed indefinitely today because of an injury to LaMotta's shoulder.

LaMotta, who won the title from Cerdan last spring in Detroit, injured the shoulder while training on Thursday, an announcement said. Three physicians diagnosed the injury as a strain of the muscle fibers of the right shoulder.

FERRIDAY COPS 1ST 'B' VICTORY

Bulldogs Defeat Start, 6-0, On Touchdown By Hubert Horton

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Ferriday High Bulldogs found the going rough here last night as they tripped a stubborn Start High eleven, 6-0, in a battle of lines.

The Bulldogs' win was their second of the current pigskin season, but their first Class B conference victory. In downing Start Ferriday broke a three game winning streak for the invaders.

A Start fumble on their own 30-yard line in the closing moments of the first quarter was recovered by Ferriday setting up the only touchdown of the game.

With the help of a 15-yard penalty and two nice runs by Fritz Lancaster, Bulldog back, the ball was moved to the Start two yard marker.

Hubert Horton, Ferriday halfback took a handoff from Quarterback Albert Massey and plowed over for the lone six points. An alert Start line blocked Ferriday's try for the extra point.

Ferriday threatened again in the second quarter when they penetrated to Start's 15 on two sensational passes from Massey to Roark, and Enterkin, fullback, also contributed heavily to the drive as he plowed into the Start forward wall for a couple of nice gains.

However, Start buckled down and stopped the Ferriday attack and took the ball on their own 15. From then until the game ended, furious line play prevailed with neither team showing to any better advantage than the other.

The most outstanding player for Start, both offensively and defensively, was probably McGowen, lanky right end who played a whale of a game from start to finish. Pahal and Sapp, Start, also stood out for their squad. Sapp made the longest run from scrimmage of the night for either team. He broke loose momentarily once and pick up 15 yards before being hauled down.

For Ferriday, Roger Arnold was the outstanding lineman as he broke through Start's defensive setup several times and opened nice holes for his own teammates on the offense. Hammett and Storm also stood out on defense for Ferriday.

Ferriday's high riding Bulldogs face Columbia next Friday night in Ferriday in another conference battle.

SUGGS MAINTAINS LEAD IN WOMEN'S OPEN GOLF EVENT

Stellar Mrs. Zaharias Closes Gap, Only 4 Strokes Behind Leader

By Joe Ives

LANDOVER, Md., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Pert Louise Suggs still held on to her lead in the Women's National Open Golf championship today but Babe Didrikson Zaharias shaved the margin from six to four strokes.

Miss Suggs, slender Carrollton, Ga., lass, registered a third round two-over-0-4 77 over the Prince George County Club layout while the mighty Babe turned in an even par 75.

With 18 holes left to go tomorrow, Louise has a 54-hole total of 221 against 225 for the Grossinger, N. Y., pro.

Sharpshooting Beverly Hanson, formerly of Fargo, N. D., and now of Riverside, Calif., pulled into a third place tie at 228 with Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio. Miss Hanson stroked a par 75 while the Ohioan came in with 77.

Little 15-year-old Marlene Bauer of Los Angeles ranked fourth after the third round play with 231. She shot a 78.

The 1947 open titlist, Betty Jameson, one of the early starters, marked up the third round's best score with a two-under-par 73 but the Chicagoan still was way back in the field with 238.

Miss Suggs, a former National Amateur titlist but now a professional who works for a Cincinnati sporting goods company, was erratic today after building up a six stroke lead in the first two rounds, with a 69 and 75.

She scored an Eagle three on the 413-yard 13th hole and followed it with a birdie two on the 14th. But then the 115-pound Georgian drove into the water with her second shot on the 15th. Taking one penalty stroke she then piled on three putts to come out with a three-over-par seven.

Mrs. Zaharias had a little luck despite a running battle with the woodlands on both sides of the fairway. She was two under going out in 36 but eliminated her advantage when she hooked into the woods on No. 12. She went from the woods to a muddy ditch and took three more strokes for a six. She then equaled par to register her 75.

Philadelphia's Helen Sigel and National Amateur Runner-up Dot Kielty of Long Beach, Calif., were tied for fifth place at the three-quarters mark with 233.

Miss Sigel notched a 79 today and Miss Kielty a one-over-par 76.

In sixth place came Chicago Pro Patty Berg, who shot 78, and Mae Murray of Rutland, Vt., with a 79, for 235.

British Women's Queen Frances Stephens of Bootle, England, the only foreign entrant, was in seventh place with 236 after negotiating today's 18 holes in 80.

ROOKIE STAR

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Dick Gallagher, end coach and scout of the Cleveland Browns of the All-America Football Conference, predicts that George Taliaferro, rookie tailback of the Los Angeles Dons, will put the great Glenn Dobbs on the bench. Dons Coach Jimmy Phelan replies he is happy to have both the Indiana U. newcomer and the fine veteran on his club.

BUCS EDGE REDS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Ralph Kiner failed today to make any progress toward a new National League home run record but he and the other Pittsburgh Pirates used eight hits judiciously to nose out Cincinnati, 6 to 5.

Kiner, with 52 home runs to his credit and needing only five more to break the late Hack Wilson's National record of 56, barely missed getting one out of the park on his second trip to the plate. He lashed one against the center field wall that was only a few feet short of going over. It went for a triple and drove in a run.

On his other trips, Kiner walked twice and grounded out once.

The Pirates were outhit, 13 to 8, but the Reds wasted safe blows with great abandon. They had a total of nine hits in the sixth and eighth innings but got only four runs from them.

Kiner's triple was the last safe blow for the Pirates in a big third inning which netted Pittsburgh four runs on three hits and a pair of Cincinnati errors.

From there on the Corsairs never were headed.

NO. 29 FOR SPAHN

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Four home runs, three of them in succession by Bob Elliott, accounted for all of the Boston Braves' runs today as they defeated the New York Giants, 6 to 4, in the opener of a three-game series.

Elliott's three blows, bringing his season total to 17, powered five runs across, and Pitcher Warren Spahn sank one into the right field seats for the sixth. Two of Elliott's homers were

Low Spirited Neville Fans Meet With Crash

Five Neville High School fans not only journeyed over to Homer Friday night to see their team downed 21-0, but on the way home, they got "banged up" in an automobile accident.

Leon Marx, occupant of a 1948 Chrysler driven by Jack McCook, said the incident occurred at Athens at about 10:35 p. m. He said a car pulled across the road and their car rammed the other vehicle "broadside."

Also in the car were A. E. Culpepper, Jr., 111 Pargoud drive; Mrs. A. E. Culpepper, Sr., also of 111 Pargoud drive, and Mrs. R. F. McCook 2703 Hawes street. All the occupants were bruised, but none of them were seriously injured.

Marx said the Negroes in the other car were taken to a Homer, La. hospital for treatment.

"The Negro driving the car," he said, "was taken into custody by a deputy sheriff."

Bud McFadin, 235-pound junior guard at the University of Texas, also is the school boxing champion and won the wrestling title as a freshman.

Jack Stanford Sets Speed Boat Record

LAKE ALFRED, Fla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Jack Stanford, a hometown chap, set a new world record today for Class C racing runabouts in the National Outboard Championship.

Stanford, a 27-year-old citrus plant executive, piloted his sleek little boat around the five-mile course on Lake Alfred in 5 minutes, 38.02 seconds. The new record time was 53.223 miles per hour.

The old record was 50.733 M. P. H. held by Bud Wiget of Concord, Calif., who wasn't quite good enough today.

Stanford won both heats of the runabout race.

Frank Vincent of Tulsa, Okla., won thte national championship for class A Hydroplanes by a mere 18 inches. He edeged out Bobby Meyer of Kansas City, Kas., by that distance in the second heat of the event.

Vincent's best speed was 45.181 with a time of 6 minutes, 38.5 seconds.

Mabry Edwards of Jacksonville won the first heat in the class A but slipped to a fifth in the second heat which tossed him out of the running.

Championship races are run in two heats, with points given for the finishing postiion in each heat. A combination of the finishes in the two heats determines the winner.

Wiget came into his own in the C service hydroplanes, taking a second in the first heat and a third in the second. Tom Newton of Santa Barbara, Calif., however, had the best time for a single heat with 46.512 M. P. H.

Racing conditions were ideal, with very little wind.

The regatta's top race will be held tomorrow with the free-for-all open to all classes of races. Other events carded for tomorrow include class M, C, F and B hydroplanes and C service runabouts.

Crowville Bulldogs Trip Sicily Islanders, 12 To 0

CROWVILLE, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Crowville High School Bulldogs used a pass and a fumble to bring them a 12 to 0 triumph over Sicily Island in a football scrap here last night.

The Bulldogs scored first in the second quarter when Ralph Lewis passed to End J. D. French for the touchdown.

Then in the third period, Tackle Shelby McManus recovered a Sicily Island fumble behind the goalline for another TD. French tried to kick for both extra points, but both boots were blocked.

The first downs were 7 to 6 for Crowville.

Coach Leo Kay's Crowville aggragation meets Newellton here next Friday night.

BENGALS LAUNCH CLASS A SEASON HERE SATURDAY

Lions At Home To Bolton Bears In Thursday Night Grid Contest

Monroe's high school football teams play at home this week, the Ouachita Parish High School Lions appearing first against the Bolton Bears of Alexandria at Brown Field on Thursday night, and the Neville High School Tigers opening their Class A conference campaign against the Rayville Hornets at Neville Stadium on Saturday night.

Coach Bill Ruple of Neville last night announced the date for the meeting with Rayville, originally scheduled for Friday afternoon, had been moved to Saturday night.

Neville and Ouachita boast identical records for this stage of the season, each with a win, a loss, and a tie.

Ouachita, in facing Bolton, will be meeting an eleven that was held to a 6-6 tie by Neville in the Tigers' season opener. The Bengals, however, tumbled before Homer, 21-0, Friday night, and Homer had earlier been able to stop Ouachita only 14 to 13.

Coach Jim Hodgins' Lions registered their initial victory last Thursday night when they trounced the Ruston Bearcats, 25 to 7.

Hodgins also announced his team appears in pretty good shape after the Ruston contest. Although Fullback Harold "Red" Phillips suffered a head injury, he is expected to be ready to go at full speed against Bolton.

Bolton will come here with three successive ties against Neville, Baton Rouge High, and Fair Park of Shreveport, and the Bears will be thinking seriously about this one as they seek to claim their first victory. I. E. Schroll, ace of the Bruin backfield, has led all Bolton attacks this year and will be the big wheel rolling against the Lions. Although a nonconference game, it will be Ouachita's first taste of Class AA competition.

Through with their early season tests, the Neville Tigers start playing the ones that count this week as Rayville comes here for the first of four successive district Class A conference battles. The Bengals follow Rayville with Jonesboro-Hodge, Lake Providence, and Ruston before forgetting Class A play for a while to take on Ouachita in the first city championship game in 38 years years on October 29.

Aside from the general game bruises, Coach Ruple's Tigers came out of the Homer fray in good condition. Bright spots in Neville play was Halfback Kenneth Lewis' good offensive and defensive play; Guy DuPriest's improved running; and the passing of Quarterback Wayne Baugh who hit his target several times only to have the receivers drop the pitches.

Since Minden was able to whip Rayville only 12-0 Friday, Neville expects the Hornets to come up with strong resistance in an effort to avenge last year's defeat at the hands of the Tigers. Neville was able to beat Minden a week ago only 12-6.

Purdue Boilermakers Fall Before Northwestern, 20-6

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Northwestern got off to a driving start in the Big Ten gridiron championship race today by bowling over Purdue, 20 to 6.

The 1949 Rose Bowl winners, held in check during the closely played first half, shifted into high gear in the third period. In that session, a crowd of 48,000 saw Northwestern strike for two touchdowns in a total of four plays. Each team scored once in the second period at the end of long drives.

In the second period, Purdue counted when Ken Gorgal lunged over from a half yard out at the finish of a 54-yard drive. The try for extra point by Rudy Trobovich was blocked.

The Wildcats came back to travel 51 yards in 12 running and pass plays. Johnny Miller smashed for the touchdown from the one-foot line. Eddie Nemeth converted.

Organize Pee-Wee Grid Program At Ferriday

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Arrangements for a Ferriday pee-wee football team were completed at the weekly meeting of the Ferriday Quarterback Club, with Lloyd Love, president of the club, presiding at a well attended meeting of the organization.

Baker Newton, former Ferriday High School star back, who later attended the Louisiana State University, and who is now a member of the Ferriday school faculty, was appointed as coach and the weight limits were set from 100 to 125 pounds. Some of the money for the team was raised from the sale of advertisements in programs, and the remainder will come from handling of concessions at the high school games.

Thirty-three boys will be equipped. Each one will see two years of service on a pee-wee team, learning the fundamentals and when they go to the varsity team, the varsity coaches will find their jobs easier, according to Love.

Add a special cheese mixture to steak just before it is done. Prepare it this way: Mash a little blue cheese with some French dressing and flavor with a little Worcestershire sauce. When the steak is almost done season it with salt and freshly ground pepper and spread the cheese mixture over the top. Return to the broiler until the mixture bubbles and serve immediately.

Escaping injury for a change, George Kell, the Tigers' brilliant third baseman, is giving Ted Williams of the Red Sox a run for the American League batting championship.

VOLS, SOX PLAN 3-GAME SERIES

West Monroe And Point Clubs Clash In First Game At Cloyd's Tomorrow

The West Monroe Volunteers, semi-finalists in the Louisiana Delta League playoffs, and the Point Red Sox, who were also in the preliminary playoffs for the Little Eight League crown, will open a three-game series tomorrow night at Cloyd's Park, West Monroe.

Jack Saxon, manager of the Vols, said the first game will be played tomorrow, beginning at 8 o'clock, the second is billed for Thursday night at the same time, and the third game will be played next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

All games will be played at Cloyd's Park.

The Vols were knocked out of Delta's title finals by the Jonesville Blues, while Terrill's Store kept Point from opening the Little Eight finals today with Calhoun. The Vols and Sox were powerful rivals last year when the Volunteers also competed in the Little Eight.

Manager Saxon last night said he would use either Warren Halley or Rufus Yossett on the mound tomorrow with Harry Maxey doing the catching.

Chester Hinton, the Point skipper, is expected to have Robert Taylor pitching and J. T. Savage catching.

Notre Dame Blasts Hoosiers, 49 to 6

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 24.—(AP)—It was the same old juggernaut Notre Dame, plus some frisky new hands, as the Fighting Irish touched off a bid for a fourth straight unbeaten season with a 49-6 clouting of Indiana's outmanned Hoosiers today.

From a modest 16-6 halftime advantage, the Irish rolled up 20 points in a devastating third period and 13 more in the final quarter for their 29th straight game without defeat.

An inaugural crowd of 53,844 watched the Hossiers start gamely and then collapse under the rapier thrusts of Notre Dame backs and bludgeoning defensive play of Irish forwards.

New Quarterback Bob Williams did a commendable quarterbacking job, but it was 'Old-Timer" Emil Sitko who wielded the heavy shillelagh for the Irish.

Sitko, making his first fullback start after three halfbacking seasons punched across three of Notre Dame's seven touchdowns. The pudgy veteran, labeled "Six Yard" Sitko last sason, upped it to an eight yard average in today's game with 64 yards in eight tries.

IN THE MONEY—Pancho Gonzales signs a contract as a professional, and has some money for a change.

Delhi took the lead with one run in the third when Creed, running for Saxon, came home on two successive wild pitches. Jonesville tied it up in the fourth.

The Oilers went ahead again in the seventh when Beaumon, Delhi hurler, slammed a 400-foot homer over the center field wall with a mate on base.

Hits by Rabb, Aplin, and Ware enabled Jonesville to tie up the game in the eighth, forcing the contest into extra innings.

In the top of the eleventh, the Blues tallied to go ahead, but Delhi knotted the count in their half of the same frame on successive doubles by McClusky and Saxon, and then the Oilers sewed it up in the twelfth when Bryan led off with a double, took third on LaBeff's grounder, and scored on a game-winning single by Jim Ware.

SUB BACK LEADS TECH ENGINEERS PAST VANDY, 12-7

Buster Humphreys Guides Jackets Past Favored Vanderbilt Eleven

By Sterling Slappey

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Buster Humphreys, a sub fullback last year was a swivel-hipped hero today as a small, fast and smart Georgia Tech football team upset Vanderbilt 12-7.

Before the game Vanderbilt was ranked second highest in the Southeastern Conference and well up in the nation. Tech was considered weak, too tiny and almost without a midsection in the line.

A crowd of 39,000 saw differently when it counted. Tech scored eigh plays after the game began and si minutes before it was over. Vandy touchdown came in the third quarte on one of the Tennesseans numerous drives.

Many of those pushes were stopped by fumbles when Tech's line pulled itself together and tackled tellingly.

The game for both sides was loaded with injuries, fumbles and backs thrown for losses. Each team los scoring chances when the ball squirted out of runner's and pass catcher's hands. Neither team passed well even though both were supposed to have fine passing attacks.

Vandy protected its passers well and Jamie Wade completed eight out of 1 Tech completed only four out of 1 for 104 yards with Quarterback Jimm Southard doing the bulk of the throwing. However, one of them was touchdown maker.

Tech's first touchdown was sudde and chilling for Vanderbilt. On th eighth play Southard got a little pro tection for a change and tossed per fectly to End Jack Griffin. The lank end took the ball on the 15 yard line untied himself from a Vandy tackl and went across. Fullback Bobb North's point after kick was low an outside.

Vanderbilt returned after the ha thoroughly mad. They needed on five plays from scrimmage to move yards. Herb Rich covered 46 of tho yards after a double reverse. ripped through the Tech line from t yards out for the touchdown. Po after specialist Cannon Mayes kick the placement.

Vandy dropped the ball again Tech's 11 and a mass of alert Georgia covered it. This was Tech's chance to win and they took it. 10 plays Tech's Humphreys w around ends and through the mid and finally over the goal for the w ning five-yard touchdown. No missed the point after try.

KENTUCKY WHIPS LOUISIANA STATE, 19 TO 0

TIGERS' SPOTTY DEFENSE UNABLE TO CHECK 'CATS

Babe Parilli Is Driving Force That Puts Skids Under Bayou Bengals

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Kentucky poked passes and plunges through Louisiana State's spotty defense here tonight for a 19-0 Southeastern Conference victory.

Quarterback Babe Parilli was in the drivers' seat but it was the hard running of his backfield mates that hurt L. S. U. Parilli handled them like a fighter handles his dukes, sending first one, then another at the Bayou Bengals.

Parilli connected with several telling passes, to Halfback Dopey Phelps and End Ben Zaranka, especially. Phelps was easily the outstanding running back on the field, nipping through short lived holes.

The Bayou Bengals showed flashes of good form in the first half, but bobbled four times. Kentucky recovered all but one. In the last period, L. S. U. seemed headed for a certain score, pushing 67 yards to the Kentucky four. A goal line stand ended the threat.

Parilli threw a touchdown pass the first time he touched the ball. The play traveled 33 yards, with Phelps scoring unscathed. Kentucky Center Harry Ulinski made things tough all night for L. S. U.'s running game.

L. S. U. Quarterbacks Kenny Konz and Carroll Griffith directed a creaking pass and run attack at the tight Kentucky defense. The desperate Bengals, thirsting for a score, at times attempted passes while practically leaning up against their own goal post.

Only in the third period was Kentucky unable to hit pay dirt. In the second quarter, the Cats tallied in the last minute on a pass, Phelps to Jim Howe for 16 yards. Full Back Clayton Webb added the last touchdown in the final period on a 12-yard jaunt around end after a Parilli pitchout. Bobby Brooks placement kicked the conversion.

Kentucky's Phelps Drew running assignments 14 times. He gained 65 yards, lost 11, for a 3.8 yard average. He was a constant thorn in the bruised side of the L. S. U. line. When he wasn't running he was catching passes from Parilli.

L. S. U.'s Ebert Van Buren came alive in the last quarter, after running at right half back, he switched to full back and barrelled through for dusty gains. Lee Hedges ran his heart out for the Tigers, averaging five yards per try for the ten times he carried.

Sophomore Jimmy Roshto and Dale Gray, Bengal backs, made most of the tackles when the Kentucky runners got into the secondary. With a lesser sleight-of-hand artist than Parilli at quarterback, they and the other tiger defenders may have had more luck at caging the Wildcat offense.

Line play on both sides was better than average. The going was rough throughout the game. Neither squad's passers had too much time and the holes that were opened didn't stay that way long.

An estimated 30,000 fans saw the game, Louisiana State's first of the season and Kentucky initial conference tilt.

Stanford's Indians Crush Harvard's Supposed Power

PALO ALTO, Calif., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Stanford sounded a stirring challenge to all future football rivals today with a resounding 44-0 victory over a supposedly strong Harvard team, a legend dissipated before some 38,000 fans gathered for the intersectional conflict.

The sophomore dotted Stanford club, Marchie Schwartz has assembled this season made ole man Harvard look inept. The youngsters with a few vets steadying the pace, ran over, under and around the distinguished visitors from the Ivy League.

Stanford took command from the start. It hardly was a contest. The red shirted, inspired Indians ran for a touchdown just after the start. They passed and pounded for two more and a safety before the half ended.

Mighty Michigan Barely Gets By Michigan State

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Michigan, the nation's mythical football champion, kept alive a three-season victory string today by defeating a stubborn Michigan State squad, 7-3.

It was the closet squeek since the string was started midway during the 1946 season.

Michigan State College thus became Michigan's 24th consecutive victim. But the newly-admitted member of the Western Conference lost no prestaige in making a nip-and-tuck fight of it all the way.

The whole story was told in the first 18 minutes. Michigan State took a 3-0 lead on a field goal by George Smith. Michigan retaliated with an 11-yard touchdown pass from its second-string signal-caller, Bill Putich, to Veteran End Irv Wisneiski, and converted.

Bradley Comes From Behind To Defeat Louisiana Tech

BULLDOGS HANDED 20 TO 18 DEFEAT IN CLOSE CONTEST

96-Yard Run In Closing Minutes Enables Peoria, Ill., Team To Win

By George V. Lofton
(Managing Editor, News-Star-World)

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Bob Flanagan led Bradley University to a 20 to 18 football triumph over Louisiana Tech here tonight on a 39-yard pass reception and a 96-yard run in the closing minutes of play.

After trailing 12 to 0 at the half, Bradley came to life with a pass from Gib Carl to Bill Bushell for a third quarter touchdown.

The game was played in ideal football weather, with the temperature 61 as the game started. A crowd of 5,000 was in the stands at the opening kickoff, which was preceded by a colorful ceremony in which an American Legion color guard raised the flag and the mayor of Peoria tossed out the football to start play. A Confederate flag decorated the Tech bench.

Tech won the toss and elected to receive. Jimmy Harrison, Bulldog safety, received in the Tech goal line and returned 35 yards before he was stopped.

Tech failed to gain on two plays and a 63-yard quick kick by Harrison rolled into the Bradley end zone. With the Braves in possession of the ball, Tech used a seven-man defense in the line against the heavier Bradley team. Bradley gained only seven yards in three downs and kicked poorly out of bounds on the Tech 48.

The Bulldogs gained five yards in two running plays and then made the first down of the game when the Braves were penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct. That gain was immediately erased, however, when Tech drew a 15 yard penalty for holding on the next play. Two successive passes from Harrison to Gilbert advanced the ball to the Bradley 20 and Harrison picked up seven through the middle. Harrison reached the five around right end but the Bulldogs were again set back by a 15-yard penalty for holding. An intercepted pass by Heiniger on the Braves five stopped the Louisianians drive. Again Bradley was penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct. Placing the ball on the Braves five. After an exchange of punts Tech started driving again but was forced to punt and the scoreless first quarter ended with Bradley holding the ball on their own five-yard line.

Bradley was forced to kick early in the second period and Tech, taking possession in midfield, unleashed a passing attack with Harrison doing the throwing that reached the seven yard line. A pass from Rabb to Gilbert brought the Bulldogs the first touchdown of the game. Humphries try for extra point from placement hit the upright and bounded back into the playing field and Tech led, 6 to 0.

Bradley drove to midfield after the kickoff and then Red Rawls intercepted a Carl pass and raced from the Tech 40 to Bradley 17. Arnold Matthews then skirted his left end for the second Bulldogs touchdown. The kick for extra point was wide. Score: Tech 12, Bradley 0.

Bradley again drove to the 50 after receiving the kickoff but Flanagan fumbled and Germanis recovered for Tech on the Bradley 48. Tech was forced to punt and a beautiful pass from Carl to Calanca was good for 48 yards, giving Bradley its deepest penetration, to the Tech 35. A pass from Carl to Bushnell gave the Braves another first down to the Tech 24.

Three plunges by big Bill Bushell gained eight yards but a pass on fourth down fell incomplete in the end zone and Tech took over on their 17 yard line. A beautiful run by Arnold Matthews advanced the ball to the Bradley 35, a gain of 48 yards. It was the best run of the game and brought the big crowd to its feet. Humphries fumbled, however, on the next play and Bradley recovered. The half ended with the Braves in possession on the Tech 17 after a pass from Carl to Flanagan and another from Carl to Wilson had thrown a scare into the Bulldog camp.

Rawls kicked for Tech to open the second half, Flanagan receiving the ball on the Bradley five and returning to the 25. After an exchange of punts, a long pass from Carl was ruled complete on the Tech 20 because of interference. It was the closest the Braves had been to the Bulldog goal. A pass from Carl to Bushell gave Bradley its first touchdown. Stamp's kick from placement was good and the score was Tech 12, Bradley 7.

Five plays later Gene Knecht intercepted a Bradley pass in midfield and Jewell Humphries drove to the 15 on two thrusts through tackle but Tech was penalized 15 yads for holding and was forced to kick, Harrison's boot going out of bounds on the Braves 12-yard line. Another pass interference penalty enabled Bradley to reach the Tech 45 and then Carl heaved a long pass to Flanagan in the end zone, and the Braves went ahead as the Bulldogs pass defense seemed to have gone to pieces. Parks kicked the extra point and Bradley led 14 to 12.

Tech took the kick on their 15 and drove to the Bradley 35. With Matthews and Humphries carrying the ball, as the quarter ended.

TENNESSEE SOPHS MAKE DIFFERENCE IN ROUGH BATTLE

Volunteers Defeat Stubborn Mississippi State Eleven, 10 To 0

By Oscar Thompson

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A potentially fine pack of Tennessee sophomores proved the margin of difference today as the Vols downed stubborn Mississippi State in a Southeastern Conference opener, 10-0.

An Indian summer crowd of 32,000 saw Tennessee score with sudden swiftness in the first four minutes and then sat back for the expected rout that never came off.

A light but scrapping Mississippi State line saw to that. Although outweighed about 15 pounds to the man, the Maroon forwards constantly outcharged the Vols. They made Tennessee backs fumble twice when the bobbles proved most costly—within sight of State's goal.

Bert Reichichar, 180-pound halfback from Bellevernon, Pa., was the brightest of the sophs that Coach Bob Neyland unveiled. He scored all of Tennessee's points and also was a defensive thorn to the Maroons.

Don Robinson's fumble on the second play of the game gave the Vols a quick opportunity. Ted Daffer, a sophomore guard who performed brilliantly, recovered for Tennessee on State's 20.

Co-Captains Hal Littleford, halfback, and Ralph Chancey, fullback, rushed to State's seven in four running plays Then Littleford nailed Reichichar with a pass in the end zone for the score. Reichichar converted from placement.

The field goal, which Reichichar kicked from the Maroon four-yard line, climaxed a drive sparked by another sophomore—Hank Lauricella

Lauricella, subbing for Littleford at tailback, connected with three straight passes to cover 45. Two quick ones to Vince Kaseta, sophomore end, put the ball on State's 13. Then he hit Halfback Ronald Bergmeier on the four With only 12 seconds to go, the Vols elected to try the field goal, which was successful.

The Maroons' only real threat came in the first quarter. Then they marched from midfield to Tennessee's 17 before losing the ball on a fumble by Halfback Cliff O'Connor. Robinson and Fullback James Pittman sparked the march. Pittman picking Chilean Seeks False Teeth Plates In U. S.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)— A set of false teeth may help build up foreign trade with Chili.

A native of Valparaiso, under the signature of Julio Segura Del C., is asking International House in New Orleans to help him get material for his plates.

He wrote that a set of false teeth in Chili costs $6,000 in Chilieau pesos, and is seeking a lower price.

International House is trying to fill the order in promotion of trade and better understanding, said Vaughan Bryant, public relations director.

Increasing Hurricane Heads Toward Mexico

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A small gulf hurricane increased in power today as it moved slowly toward the Mexican coast.

A 5 p. m. (E. S. T.) advisory from the New Orleans weather bureau reported the hurricane was centered about 110 miles east of Tampico, Mexico.

"It is moving very slowly west-northwestward three to five miles per hour," the bureau reported, adding that the winds have "increased slightly since morning."

The bureau said that a reconnaissance plane reported winds 80 to 90 miles an hour over a small area near the center, with gales extending outward about 60 miles.

Caution was advised for all vessels in the storm's path, and the bureau said that small craft on the lower Texas coast should remain in port.

The 11 a. m. (E. S. T.) advisory reported winds of nearly 75 miles per hour.

W. R. Stevens, chief forecaster of the bureau said in addition to the advisory it was his opinion that the hurricane would probably strike the Mexican coast somewhere north of Tampico sometime Sunday morning.

The next weather bureau advisory is expected at 11 p. m. (E. S. T.) tonight.

Bartender Shoots Wife, Self In Store

JEANI 'TE, Pa., Sept. 24.— (AP) —A crowd of late afternoon shoppers was thrown into a turmoil at a dress shop today as a 30-year-old bartender killed his wife, then shot himself fatally.

The victims were John Brasili, 30, and Peggy Brasili, 22, a clerk at the store.

Two other clerks ran from the sore screaming, "he shot her, he shot her."

Police found Mrs. Brasili slumped against a counter. Her husband was in the middle of the floor, his smoking pistol beside him.

Officers said the couple, parents of a three-year-old son, had been separated.

Jeanette is about 25 miles east of Pittsburgh.

University of Arizona football tackle Bob Morrison is playing for his fifth varsity letter this season.

FARMERS DESIRE STABLE INCOME

Republicans Decide Growers Want Less Instead Of Greater Controls

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Sept. 24.—(AP)—National Republican leaders concluded today farmers want a program assuring them a stable income based on fair market prices and a mininnum of direct government subsidies.

Further, they decided growers also want less, rather than more controls, greater farm participation in administration of programs, and reduced taxes.

These conclusions—put into words by Senator Mundt of South Dakota—were based on testimony of several score farmers and farm organization spokesmen presented at the G. O. P.'s two-day national farm conference closing today.

In short, the conference leaders—including party farm leaders in congress—heard very little support for the controversial Brannan plan of the Truman administration. This plan has a dual goal of lower food prices for consumers and high returns to farmers. It would use government subsidies to keep farmers prosperous.

President Truman has indicated that he will press for election of a congress next year committed to the Brannan plan.

In a speech summarizing the conference, Mundt said farmers' testimony showed general agreement on these points:

1. The farm problem is a price problem.

2. The farmer "desires and deserves parity prices in the market place" as contrasted with lower prices supplemented with direct government subsidies or checks.

(Parity is a legal standard for measuring farm prices, designed to be equally fair to producers and consumers.)

3. The farmer opposes any plan which makes agriculture the "scapegoat" for high prices or for economic maladjustments which restrict the under-privileged to an inadequate diet.

4. Farmers recognize that "parity prices must not be used to produce unmanageable surpluses."

5. Farmers strongly resist "all unnecessary invasions of their traditional freedoms."

Mundt said the farmer views will be used by the Republicans in drafting a farm program to offset the Brannan proposal.

Guy G. Gabrielson, chairman of the party's national committee, promised that the G. O. P. "will try to work out a plan to insure the stability and prosperity of the biggest business in the United States."

Obviously pleased with criticisms of the Brannan plan, the G. O. P. leaders and their farmer audience applauded loudly today when President Chris Milius, Omaha, of the Nebraska Farmers Union, took exception to support of the Brannan program by his national organization, the National Farmers Union.

Declaring the Brannan proposal would lead to "complete regimentation," Milius said he had been unable to find any sentiment for the plan among Nebraska farmers.

A young Woolsey, S. D. farmer, Elmer Kochert, made a hit when he struck at "a trend among farmers to seek government grabs."

Scheduled to end at noon today, the conference was continuing during the afternoon to give additional farmers a chance to be heard.

Girl Found Beaten To Death In Locust Grove

LIMA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The beaten body of 11-year-old Joanne Lynn, missing since Monday, was found tonight in a grove of locust trees two miles south of Lima.

State police said the girl's head was a mass of blood and that she apparently had been beaten to death. She was lying face-down, about 600 yards off Route 15-A.

Norma Marsden, 14, daughter of a nearby resident, found the body while gathering hickory nuts near this western New York community.

The spot where the body was found was only about five miles from the stretch of highway where the sturdily-built schoolgirl disappeared.

Joanne had left her rural home near Hemlock Monday on her way to school. She had not been seen since. She was believed to have been picked up in an automobile.

A Rochester man and his son told police they saw a girl answering Joanne's description walking toward an automobile on Route 15-A at about the time she was reported to have disappeared. Bloodhounds brought in for the search lost the trial in the middle of the highway.

Lewis Has Substitute For His 'No Comment'

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, bushy-browed president of the United Mine Workers, didn't once say "no comment" when interviewed today.

Lewis, passing through here reportedly en route to Illinois for a visit with his mother, was approached over a cup of coffee at a local hotel.

A reporter from an Indianapolis newspaper tried the human touch. "Going to see your mother?", he asked the U. M. W. chief.

"Who are you?" snapped Lewis.

A question about the current coal walkout brought the answer, "I have nothing to say." Another concerning the recent three-day work week in the mines produced: "Young man, you are impudent this morning."

Lewis left his coffee and headed for the hotel lobby. The reporter also changed his course. "Been driving all night?" he queried.

"Young man, please don't follow me around." The young man had no comment. He left.

EVENING CLASSES WILL START WORK

125 Already Registered At N. J. C. Night Sessions; Registration Still Open

Several evening classes that have been recently organized at Northeast Junior College will begin regular work in the near future. Class rolls, already totaling 125 students, are being held open, however, for late registration in many subjects, announced A. S. Huffman, representative of the general extension division of Louisiana State University through which the studies are offered.

Late registrants may enroll in the following classes: human anatomy and physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, sociology, American history, history of western civilization, college elgebra, mathematics of business and measurements, elementary accounting, advanced accounting, typewriting and public speaking.

In addition to courses listed above, the evening school at N. J. C. has plans for classes in English composition, shorthand, newspaper reporting, retail store organization and management, English literature and poultry production. Some students have already enrolled in these classes which will begin as soon as a sufficient number of persons register.

Classes are held at times most convenient for the students, Huffman explained. They can, in most cases, be conducted at a location selected by the class personnel. Groups are meeting at N. J. C., the St. Francis School of Nursing and at other off-the-campus places.

Courses in the evening school give the same credits as those completed in the day school at Louisiana State University or any of L. S. U.'s branches.

Huffman stressed that classes will be organized in almost any subject requested by enough persons of this area of the state. Complete information about courses may be secured by getting in touch with him at the college by visit, letter or call over telephone 4201 between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The purpose of the extension division is to make college more accessible to more persons, Huffman explained. By offering classes during the evening, the opportunity to do college work is extended to those who hold jobs or housewives who find it inconvenient to register for courses during the regular day schedule.

Deadline On Schedules For Vets Set Nov. 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The veterans administration set a new deadline—November 1—for the enrollment of veterans who seek to reenter training or to change courses under the G. I. bill.

Originally, V. A. had set an effective date of September 12 for enforcement of regulations under a new law which prohibits veterans from using the G. I. bill for recreational or vocational courses. The law also prohibits them from taking courses in institutions which have been in existence less than a year.

Carl R. Gray, Jr., veterans administrator, explained that he ordered the extension to prevent possible hardships to veterans who had not had time to complete plans for entering schools before the original deadline.

After November 1, a new type certificate will be required. It will show the course and school the veteran intends to enter. V. A. said this will enable a quick screening of applications to make sure the training sought is permitted under the new law.

World Oil Production Takes Dip During July

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Following United States cutbacks, world crude oil production during July dropped two per cent to 8,890,800 barrel daily, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The domestic trend plus a decline in Saudi Arabia more than offset slight production gains in Venezuela, Iran, Iraq and some other countries.

According to the Journal, United States output of crude oil in July at 4,733,000 barrels per day was approximately 170,000 barrels under June's daily average.

An upturn, however, is expected in the wake of demand for heating oils.

The periodical attributed Saudi Arabia's July drop of 80,000 barrels daily to the Middle East dollar shortage. Production in that area averaged 1,412,600 barrels of oil per day.

In Europe, Germany posted its highest daily figure since the war with 17,400 barrels. Venezuela, world's second largest producer, had a July average of 1,307,000 barrels, the Journal estimated. Small increase were also reported for Canada, Mexico and Colombia.

Refinery Shutdown Is Ended Last Wednesday

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A ten-week refinery shutdown which company officials said began with a new type of sit-down strike ended Wednesday.

Crown Central Petroleum's Pasadena refinery had been closed since July 7. At that time, the firm said, union members began a sitdown strike by spending most of their company time writing out grievances.

The union, which ratified a new contract yesterday, claimed there was no strike and that the shutdown was a lockout. The action of workers in writing and rewriting grievances was permitted under the Taft-Hartley act, the union claimed.

About 350 members of the oil workers international union, C. I. O., were involved. Terms of the new contract were not disclosed but both sides agreed wages were not a primary issue.

Asks Power Commission For Units In Louisiana

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — (AP) — Mississippi River Fuel Corp., St. Louis, Mo., asked the Power Commission Thursday for permission to install additional compressor units in Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri.

The company said the expansion will enable it to meet increased demands of its present customers, deliver natural gas to 29 communities in Arkansas and Missouri now without such service, and serve additional main line customers for industrial purposes in Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois.

The proposed construction program calls for installation of compressor units totaling 13,000 horsepower in three new stations at Glendale, Ark., Biggers, Ark., and Twelve Mile, Mo., and additions totaling 3,000-horsepower to two previously authorized compressor stations at Perryville, La., and West Point, Ark.

The three new stations, to be constructed by a third party at an estimated cost of $2,470,000, would be leased to Mississippi River Fuel. The facilities to be added by Mississippi to its existing stations are expected to cost about $57,000.

The communities which would receive natural gas service are:

Missouri — Kennett, Caruthersville, Campbell, and Hayti.

Arkansas — Corning, Pocahontas, Paragould, Leachville, Blytheville, Luxora, Osceola, Nettleton, Bay, Trumann, Lepanto, Marked Tree, Tyronza, Wilson, Evadale, Walnut Ridge Airport, Bradford, Cotton Plant, Brinkley, Palestine, Forest City, Wynne, Marianna, West Helena and Helena.

Three different types of oysters are taken from U. S. waters, the large native eastern oyster, the small native Olympia oyster found on the west coast and an imported, large, Japanese oyster.

U. S. PRODUCTION TAKES OIL SLUMP

Oilers See Week Of Minor Changes; Michigan Reports Largest Increase

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—United States crude oil production slumped during the week ended September 17, the Oil and Gas Journal reported, averaging 4,836,825 barrels daily for a decrease of 10,325 barrels.

It was a week of minor changes either way, with Michigan reporting the greatest increase, up 1,500 barrels to 42,200 barrels.

Other sizeable gains were in Kansas, up 1,300 barrels to 250,000; Wyoming, 1,300 to 126,500, and Oklahoma, 1,050 to 387,350.

Continued activity in Utah brought that state another increase of 2,000 barrels to a total daily average of 2,100 barrels. Montana increased 300 barrels to 27,300, Alabama gained 300 to 1,405 and Louisiana was up 400 to 485,950.

The week's losses were scattered throughout the major producing areas, with the largest the 4,000-barrel slump to 177,700 reported by Illinois.

SALES SLIP

DURANGO, Colo.—(AP)—Every time Vernon Bodo makes a dollar sale at his sporting goods store, he collects the sales tax with the comment, "and two cents for the governor." After he had sold some merchandise to a tall, lean man, Bodo said: "That's $5 and 10 cents for the gov---er, 10 cents for sales tax." Just in time he'd recognized the tall customer as Colorado's Gov. Lee Knous.

The Russian books in the U. S. Library of Congress outnumber those in any other library outside Russia.

U. S. Oilers Fighting For Cut In Foreign Oil

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Independent oil men have not given up on their fight for cutbacks in foreign crude imports.

The one-vote senate defeat of a plan to limit imports to 5 per cent of domestic production was a sharp set back. Late this week, however, the foreign crude opponents were reorganizing.

Most still are at a loss as to just what the next move should be. Two other developments also have confused the issue.

Widespread devaluation of foreign currencies has been accompanied by fears Britain has gained a price advantage in settling oil.

There also is a growing belief among the independents there will be further increases in imports the remainder of the year. The senate vote, they believe, leaves the way open for continuation of the upward trend.

The next move in the anti-imports campaign may be developed October 3-4 at the annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America at Fort Worth.

I. P. A. A. was organized in conjunction with a campaign against imports. Its membership long has led the Washington fight for curtailment.

Immediately after the 40-41 senate vote on the imports quota amendment to the reciprocal trade agreements act, Russell Brown, I. P. A. A. general counsel, called upon the Fort Worth convention to chart a new course.

A Texas independent this week suggested the solution may be included in the Anglo-American oil treaty, pigeon-holed long ago by the senate foreign relations committee.

Jake L. Hamon, Dallas, member of the National Petroleum Council's imports investigation committee, recommended the treaty be given new consideration.

The document, already ratified by the British, originally drew bitter opposition from independent domestic operators.

Without urging them to change their position, Hamon reminded the independents:

"The original idea behind this treaty was formation of an international body which would attempt to regulate world production to demand."

He then added:

"If we are to keep healthy we will have to solve this import problem."

Another Texan predicted currency devaluation eventually may force United States firms with foreign holdings to join domestic producers in seeking a restriction on imports.

E. I. Thompson, executive vice-president of the Texas Independent producers and Royalty Owners Association, said devaluation definitely gives the British a price advantage on things they want to sell here.

"Abroad, it will give the British a 30 per cent edge in building up an industry with E. C. A. dollars," he said.

"There now is even more urgent need for a law restricting crude imports."

World Crude

Domestic and foreign crude production averaged 8,890,800 barrels daily in July, the Oil and Gas Journal reported this week.

The figure is a 2 per cent decline from the June estimate.

Bureau of Mines officials initiated a world production survey report. They estimated January's world output of crude at 9,387,000 barrels daily, February was placed at 9,410,000.

Domestic production slumped again last week after a brief rally as Texas increased its allowables.

American Petroleum Institute said production averages 4,845,300 barrels daily, a decline of 5,250 from the previous week. Production a year earlier was 5,294,350 barrels daily.

Investigation

Another congressional investigation of the oil industry is to begin soon in Washington.

Senator Maybank (D-S. C.), has announced his senate banking committee wants to find out why recent price increases were made for heating and fuel oils.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16ths-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 15 cents a bale lower at 29.73 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 30.30; middling 7/8ths-inch average 28.25.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The cotton futures market was quiet today. Price changes were small with dealings mixed.

New Orleans dealers sold, presumably against hedging, with some of the local trade also offering contracts. The market was supported by spot house buying which was regarded as covering requirements for textile mills as well as for export.

The quiet market conditions were said to reflect a desire on the part of traders to await developments at Washington next week where the senate was scheduled to take up the Anderson farm bill.

The market was 10 to 20 cents a bale lower. October closed at 29.77; December at 29.60 and March 29.57.

Futures closed 10 to 20 cents lower than the previous close.

NEW NASH LINE DISPLAYED HERE

Important Improvements Are Listed For Two New Lines For 1950

New 1950 Nash Airflyte cars with many exclusive features was placed on public display Friday, when dealers opened their doors throughout the nation.

Two lines of the 1950 Nash cars are offered, the Nash Statesman in the low medium-price field and the Nash Ambassador with fully automatic shifting in the medium price field. The "Statesman" replaces the "600" series. Two and four-door sedans, as well as a club coupe, will be available in standard-priced "Super" and higher-priced "Custom" models, according to H. C. Doss, vice-president in charge of Nash Motors sales.

Foremost among the mechanical improvements of the 1950 Nash Airflyte Ambassador models is the famed Hydra-Matic drive combined with the Nash developed Selecto-lifting starting offered as optional equipment. The new starter control, a feature exclusive with Nash, operates merely by lifting the Hydra-Matic selector lever and eliminates separate floor or instrument panel starting.

Standard on both new cars is the conventional transmission. Nash also offers in both cars as alternate optional equipment the fuel-saving automatic overdrive, which gives four forward speeds, long a Nash feature.

The front end views of the new 1950 Nash Airflyte also emphasize their scientifically conceived aerodynamic design, comfort-creating width, and road-hugging, low center of gravity. Front and rear bumpers, with new and more massive bumper guards, follow the general streamlined styling and accentuate the aerodynamic lines of the new cars with curved contours that blend into the fender shapes to become an integral part of the cars.

In profile, length and streamlined sleekness are emphasized. Fully enclosed front fenders blend into the straight-sweep sides of the body and continue in line through the similarly enclosed rear fenders. Rear ends of the rear fenders taper gracefully to form an aerodynamically correct shape that reduces gasoline wasting air turbulence or "drag."

New standards of riding comfort and safety are claimed by Nash engineers in the body-building methods they pioneered in developing the Airflyte. It features a built-in structural frame welded into a single steel unit of exceptional strength with shock cushioning distribution of weight. The all-steel bodies have box section sills for greater strength and rigidity. The Airflyte-type body, it is claimed, makes possible an exterior design offering less air resistance, with larger interiors, gasoline economy, and an automobile body unusually quiet and free of common squeaks and rattles. The 1950 models are 62 inches high and are 15 1/2 inches wider than they are high.

The new Airflyte Ambassador is powered with an improved high compression 6-cylinder overhead valve engine developing 112 hp. Compression ratio has been increased from 7.0 to 7.3 and it packs almost 1/2 horse power in each of its 235 cubic inches of displacement. It is designed to operate with a high degree of efficiency using "regular" gasoline. With minor modifications, the engine compression ratio can be stepped up in future models as higher octane fuel becomes generally available. It is fitted with a new compression head and the 7-bearing crankshaft is now more rigid for increased smoothness. As an important new engine feature, the Ambassador is equipped with "Seal-Flex" oil control piston rings (in the lowest of the 4-ring grooves). The new type rings were given exhaustive dynamometer and road tests by Nash research engineers before adoption. Their findings disclosed that the new rings give double the life of the older types.

The Nash Airflyte "Statesman" is powered by an L-head type, 6-cylinder engine retaining the traditional Nash ("600") economy of more than 25 miles per gallon at average highway speeds. Improvements made in the "Statesman" engine include the new "Seal-Flex" piston rings.

IT'S THE 1950 NASH AIRFLYTE

Graceful aerodynamic styling and luxury are emphasized in this photograph of the new 1950 Nash Ambassador and Statesman models. Features of the new automobiles include fully enclosed front and rear fender openings, massive "wrap around" bumpers and bumper guards and an overall aerodynamic design that achieves reduced wind resistance and greater beauty.

GLOBAL FLYING MONROYAN HERE

Eddie Pohl Visits Home Ere Leaving For Cairo, Egypt

According to information received here Eddie B. Pohl, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Pohl, of Monroe, is being transferred from Washington, D. C., to Cairo, Egypt.

Young Pohl, who is employed by the United States department of state as a diplomatic courier, is now home on a short leave prior to reassignment. When asked about his work he reported that while the work is pleasant the position entails a tremendous amount of travel.

Since joining the federal service in January he has traveled over 200,000 miles in North, Central and South America. His most recent trip was to Honolulu. Mr. Pohl said that practically all travel conducted along this line is by air and that he averages 160 hours of flying time a month.

The new assignment will be approximately of two years duration and while assigned to the Cairo office he will travel through South Africa, the middle east and India.

Prior to joining the department of state, Mr. Pohl worked as field secretary for Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High and of Louisiana Tech. While a student at Tech he majored in journalism.

Mr. Pohl said that of the many American embassies scattered around the world that all are serviced by approximately 90 carrier couriers. The official description of his duties as a diplomatic courier is "the safe-hand accomplishment and delivery of diplomatic correspondence of a classified nature."

He stated that at a later date that he hoped to leave the courier service and to receive an appointment with the consular service of the department of state.

Maternal And Infant Clinic Triples Chest Dollar Value

(This is the fourth of a series describing the work the Community Chest dollars does in each of the agencies on the Red Feather list).

By James V. Mathis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Twelve years ago a group of Monroe and West Monroe women, alarmed over the increasing maternal and infant mortality rates in the lower income classes, stepped out to do something about the situation.

Today they have proved their worth the hard way. Hundreds of expectant mothers have been benefited. And they have moved into official status with the state board of health, St. Francis Sanitarium and the Community Chest.

The organization is the Monroe Maternal and Infant Welfare Clinic; its sponsors, the Court St. Matthew Catholic Daughters.

The maternal clinic operates from offices in the Ouachita parish public health center building. They have one paid staff member, Mrs. L. V. Tarver who doubles as secretary-treasurer and social and welfare director.

Funds for operation of the clinic come through three different sources. From the state board of health the clinic receives an office, the clinical physician, nursing services, laboratory facilities, and both pre-natal and post-natal information and care. The St. Francis Sanatarium cooperates to the extent of slashing hospital bills to allow for hospital delivery, and providing a local physician.

About the only contribution in cash is from the Community Chest. We are still following those dollars.

Chest funds go toward administrative costs, food for the mother and child until the child reaches six weeks of age, clothing, linen, medicines, X-rays, ambulance services, and emergency hospitalization.

Only about two per cent of the overall Chest budget goes to the maternal clinic. This amounted to slightly over $2,400 for 1949.

Assistance of the clinic can be obtained only by low income families. Applications must be made to Mrs. Tarver, where they are checked and a case history made on each application. There are no color lines drawn.

Once an expectant mother has been accepted she will be cared for until the child reaches six weeks of age. Each week, on two afternoons, the women gather at the health center where they go through a thorough checkup. Illnesses are diagnosed. Where there are venereal diseases, prompt treatment is started to insure a clean, healthful child.

The clinic has compiled an amazing record during their twelve year period. Only two mothers under their care have succumbed during that time. During the last year they have lost one mother and one child.

Mrs. Tarver figures that the value to the mother and expected child is great, but she places more stress on the value to the community as a whole.

Should a mother die, Mrs. Tarver says, her previous children will be thrown out upon the community. Other departments will be forced to take over.

With the comparatively small budget the clinic is allowed, Mrs. Tarver says, they can and do get amazing results, with a constant betterment of community standards.

Destroyer Voyages To Visit Elderly Lady

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A wish came true today when a diminutive 79-year-old lady stepped aboard the steel deck of a 2,200-ton destroyer brought to Charleston at her request.

Arrival of the U. S. S. Ingraham came after Mrs. George Ingraham Hutchinson, of Summerville, mailed a postcard to U. S. Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D-S. C.) asking that the vessel be sent to visit her.

As a rule, the navy doesn't go sending its warships to different ports at the whim of a mere citizen, but Mrs. Hutchinson's request carried a little more weight than most.

The destroyer was named for her grandfather, Duncan Nathaniel Ingraham, who served with distinction as an officer in both the United States and Confederate navies.

Moreover, on a wintry day in 1944, Mrs. Hutchinson had smashed a bottle against the vessel's bow and watched her slide down the ways at a New York shipyard.

Today Mrs. Hutchinson again was the center of attraction at brief ceremonies aboard the Ingraham. This time she was accompanied by some 35 members of the Ingraham family who watched as she turned over treassured momentos of Captain Ingraham to Commander Hart Hait. He is skipper of the illustrious fighting ship which rolled up an impressive war record in the Pacific in World War II.

Following an address of welcome by Commander Hait, Mrs. Hutchinson presented the heirlooms to the ship. They included pictures of Captain Ingraham in both U. S. navy and Confederate navy uniforms, a picture of his ship, the U. S. S. St. Louis and his sword.

Twenty-nine states have no laws requiring vision tests in schools, according to the American Optometric Association.

DELTA RHO DELTA AIMS ARE OUTLINED AT RECENT SESSION

Delta Rho Delta's aims and purposes include, "The Intellectual, Social and Cultural Betterment of the Business and Professional Woman, and the cultivation of lasting friendship," Archon Dorothy Horton announced at the last meeting of the sorority, held at the home of Mrs. Aline DeLaduarantaye. She also announced the eighteen lectures, cultural and educational, which comprise the 1949-50 lecture season.

Following the reading of "Delta's Code of ethics" by Mrs. Vaughn Phelps and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the operating committees were called on for their reports of activities. Several suggestions were made as to ways and means of raising money for the extensive social service projects of the chapter for the coming year.

Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, counselor of Sigma chapter, spoke on cooperation and the essential fact that it is to the success of an organization. "Just how far the sororities beams and aims reach depends on the interest, study and work of the members in the chapter and in the community," Mrs. Metcalf said. "The safest guide and the best compass, as Dr. Lehmberg pointed out in a recent lecture, is that gleam which shines from within, she asserted. Its power is the "understanding of ourselves and our fellow men."

Enabling the sorority to effect the plans outlined by national headquarters, Sigma chapter will depend to a great extent upon the planning and action of several committees, other than the operating committees. Those named by Miss Horton at this meeting comprise the following: ways and means, silver committee, finance, vocation information and membership committee.

The highlight of the meeting was the announcement by Miss Horton of the visit of Mrs. Helen Giese, national counselor from Fort Worth, Tex. and Mrs. Irene Davitt, national secretary-treasurer of Arlington, Tex. on Sept. 25 and 26. Mrs. Giese and Mrs. Davitt are from national headquarters and plan to remain over Monday evening for the lecture program, it was announced.

Mrs. Aliene DeLadurantaye, hostess for the meeting, served delicious refreshments to the following members attending: Mrs. Vaughn Phelps, Mrs. James Simrall, Miss Bernice McCrary, Mrs. Alease Norris, Miss Violet DeCuir, Miss Mary Humble, Miss Ann Mickel, Mrs. Johnnie T. Butler, Miss Sara Guy, Miss Eloise Helm, Mrs. Raymond Sackett, Miss Marjorie Ewing, Miss Theresa Thomisee, Miss Lillian Glenn, Miss Alam Lufcy, Mrs. W. M. Harrell, Mrs. Bertha Patterson, Miss Dorothy Horton, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, Mrs. W. J. Fields, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf and the hostess, Mrs. Aliene DeLadurantaye.

FALL IS TIME TO GET BUSY IN THE YARD

September is a busy month in the yard. It's time to clean up the beds and borders, burning all old plants which may harbor insects. Twice monthly fertilize chrysanthemums with liquid manure, dissolving two cups of 4-12-4 in one gallon of water.

In October you can prune your broad leaf evergreens and fall blooming shrubs. The following seed should be planted the last of September or October: Sweet Peas, Sweet Alyssum, Candytuft, Coreopsis, Corn Flower, Chinese For-get-me-not, African Golden Daisy, English Daisy, Shasta Daisy, For-get-me-not, Four o'clock, Larkspur, Petunia, Phlox, Pinks, Gaillardia, Gypsophelia, Poppy, Blue Salvia, Snapdragon, Stock, Sweet William.

October is the time to set out Calendula and Pansy plants, so spade the beds and get them ready.

Tulips just don't do too well in this climate, but if you feel you must have a few, choose the Darwin type and plant them in December, after they have been stored in your ice box for three weeks.

Please don't burn the leaves. Make a compost heap. Select a secluded spot, like behind the garage. Make a frame 4x4 and 4 ft. high. Put in this frame leaves, grass clippings and discarded plant material that is free from disease and insect damage. Pack firmly. Then when the plant material is 1 ft. deep in the frame, scatter 6 1/4 lbs. of commercial fertilizer over this. Add another foot layer of leaves, then another 6 1/4 lbs. of fertilizer, and so on until the frame is full. This will give you excellent fertilizer next spring for flowers, shrubs and gardens.

Watch the social calendar in the daily paper for notices of demonstrations to be held this fall and winter.

MARY ELIZABETH TALBOT IS WED TO GEORGE DEKLE BUSBY IN RUSTON

The First Baptist Church was the scene recently of the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Talbot, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. H. Talbot, of Ruston, and Mr. George Dekle Busbee, son of Mr. Perry Green Busbee and the late Mrs. Busbee, of Vienna, Ga. The Rev. G. Avery Lee performed the double-ring ceremony at 5:00 p.m., against a background of white bridal flowers interspersed with greenery.

Across the chancel, artistically draped in white, were garlands of smilax, tied with white satin ribbon, linking tall baskets of chrysanthemums and gladiola. From either side of the choir loft, low arrangements of white asters were used in cascade effect illuminated by the glow of multiple white tapers which burned in floor candelabra. On the steps, also draped in white, feathery palms in white urns were used to accent the path of the bridal party.

While the ushers, Mr. Irvin L. Fallin and Mr. James Hardy Bradley, seated the guests, the groomsmen, Mr. Travis Melton and Mr. Courtney Reed, Jr., lighted the candles. Mr. Marshall Bretz rendered a program of nuptial music, including "Prelude to Lohengrin" act 1 and "Prize Song," by Wagner. He also accompanied Mr. Kendall Hearn, who sang "Until," by Sanderson, and "Because," by d'Hardelot. "Clouds," by de Bussy was played softly during the ceremony. The traditional wedding march by Mendelssohn, was used in conclusion.

Miss Jessielynn Pirkle was the bride's only attendant and maid of honor. She wore an aqua satin dress fashioned with a fitted bodice which featured a yoke of illusion and off-the-shoulder bertha of chantilly lace. The full skirt was of marquisette over taffeta. On her head she wore a dainty half hat of aqua satin with Shecarriedacrescentshapedbouquet ribbon streamers in rainbow colors. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of cream glamelias, edged with pink and tied with ribbon matching those of her hat.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, the bride approached the altar on the arm of her father and was met by the bridegroom, his best man and uncle, Mr. Nicholas Guest. Her gown of ivory slipper satin was designed with a fitted bodice, coming to a point in the front and back. Covered buttons fastened the long sleeves which tapered to graceful points over the hands. A yoke of illusion with double folds of satin, trimmed with chantilly lace gave an off-the-shoulder effect. The full hooped skirt swept into a fan-shaped train. Her Juliet cap of chantilly lace held her three tiered veil of illusion, caught by a fold of delicate maline. She carried a white Bible topped with white orchids and stephanotis from which showered single blossoms tied with white satin streamers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs Talbot wore a floor-length dress of pink chiffon fashioned with a sequened trimmed bertha of chantilly lace and long sleeves pointed over the hands. Mrs. Nicholas Guest, aunt of the groom, chose a floor-length dress of toast brown lace with a corsage of gold Peruvian lilies.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot, at 907 Jones street. Bouquets of white chrysanthemums, gladiola and asters were beautifully arranged throughout the reception rooms. Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Lillian Talbot and welcomed by the hosts, the bridegroom's aunt, and the bridal party. Miss Virginia Dekle and Mrs. B. H. Talbot, Jr., asked guests to sign the bride's register. Miss Aline Ruple played a number of piano selections during the ceremony.

The bride's table was laid with a Florentine lace cloth and centered with silver candelabra holding tall white tapers placed on reflector. On one end was a white wedding cake, embossed with white roses, while on the other end was a crystal punch bowl, surrounded by tube roses.

Using a silver server, the bride and groom cut the first slice of cake which was later served by Mrs. O. O. Goyne. Assisting in the serving courtesies were Mrs. Annie Mae Bradley, Mrs. J. J. Bennett, Mrs. J. W. Lindsey, Mrs. I. O. Gahagan, Mrs. Ralph Talbot, Mrs. G. C. Hilman and Miss Helen Woodward.

Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. R. W. Davis, Mrs. William H. Talbot and Mrs. H. Henderson.

When the couple left for a wedding trip through the mountains of North Carolina, the bride was wearing a light gray suit, trimmed with dark gray. Her accessories were dark gray matching the trim of her suit. She wore the orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Busbee is a graduate of Louisiana Tech where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. She is employed at present as a medical technician at Athens General Hospital in Athens, Ga. Mr. Busbee attended Duke University and currently is studying law at the University of Georgia in Athens where the young couple plan to make their home. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and served in the naval air corps during World War II.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Kieth Pyburn, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Beene and Miss Betty Jane Beene, of Shreveport; Justice and Mrs. F. M. Odom, of Bastrop; Mrs. H. J. Odom, Mrs. R. C. Odom, Mrs. W. H. Harris and Mrs. L. H. Pratt, of Bernice; Dr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Talbot, and daughter, Nancy, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Tait, Mr. Ed Walker Stinson and Mrs. Mattie Lou Stinson, Mrs. D. W. News From The Parish Library

As the first days of fall approach, the publishing business, which has been sluggish during the summer months begins to show signs of great activity. New books come off the presses with such speed, that it is almost impossible to keep up with them. It is a problem for librarians to know which books to buy and which books to avoid. If the publishers announcements alone were read, every book coming off the press would be a necessary purchase. Book reviews in the impartial book reviewing periodicals are not always infallible, but they are the best source of information open to the purchaser.

Since the first of September many new titles have been added to the collection of the Ouachita parish public library, titles to appeal to every taste and type of reader. "West of the Hill" by Gladys Hasty Carroll is a simple story of kindly people. It is the type of book which can be read by any member of the family. The setting is in Mine which Miss Carroll knows so well. Rafael Sabitini has produced his first new book in years. It is "The Gamester," a story of intrigue and adventure. It will be interesting to see whether his fans like it as well as his earlier stories. "Live with Lightning" by Mitchell Wilson is a story as modern as the atomic bomb. Don't miss this. "The Lily and the Leopards" by Alice Harwood is a historical novel well worth reading. "The Bound Girl" by Everett and Olga Webber is a spectacular story laid in the early days of the American colonies. It could never be called a great novel, but it is an entertaining one. "The Green Room" by Hamilton Basso has for its scene the theatre and is concerned with the effect an older woman actress has upon a young actor and his career. It is well done and makes interesting reading.

Eudora Welty who lives in our neighboring state of Mississippi is considered one of the most promising modern writers of fiction. Her new book is called "The Golden Apples." It is a chronicle of a town she calls Morgana, Mississippi. We see the people and the events of Morgana from differing points of view and at different periods of time. Her characters are drawn with compassion and humor. You will not want to miss this book. "Pemberley Shades" by Dorothy Bonavia-Hunt bids fair to be a sensation in the library world. It is a sequel to "Pride and Prejudice" by Jane Austen. It is a daring feat for a modern author to attempt to write a sequel to one of the best loved novels of English literature, but Miss Bonavia-Hunt carries it off very well. If you liked "Pride and Prejudice" you will want to read this book. "The River Journey" by Robert Nathan is a dreamlike story in his usual style. It is concerned with a lady who took her life savings and bought a boat for a trip down the Mississippi river. It is beautifully written and Nathan admirers will like it.

Margaret Campbell Barnes is an English writer who has made quite a study of the period of Henry VIII. Her latest story "Brief Gaudy Hour" is the story of Anne Boleyn, one of the most fascinating women who ever lived. She wanted to be a great queen, but is remembered as a beautiful and passionate girl who reigned briefly as the wife of Henry VIII. Here is a spetacular story rich with the grandeur and color of England at the heighth of the Tudor magnificance. Joe David Brown, author of Stars in My Crown" has written a strong story in "The Freeholder." It is the story of Horatio Tench whose motivating force was the preamble of the American Constitution. He heard it on the docks of Yarmouth, England, and immediately decided to come to America. He paid for his passage with five years of his life an an indenture servant. How he finally achieved his greatest desire makes a story that will not soon be forgotten.

Mystery writers will be interested in these new titles: "Call for Michael Shayne" by Brett Halliday; "Engaged to Murder" by Mary Violet Heberden; and "The Second Confession" by Rex. Stout. Two of these writers already have their following. Miss Heberden is a new writer in the mystery field and the critics say very good.

Non-fiction is becoming more popular every day. Five new titles of this type are now available at the library. "The Miracle Drugs," by Dr. Boris Sokoloff is a history of all the new drugs that have been discovered during the past few years. "Life With Mother," by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse is the dramatized version of Clarence Day's book, which is a current hit on the Broadway stage. "They Came Here First," by D'Arcy McNickle is a brilliant summary of Indian life in America before the days of the white men. "Out of My Life and Thought," by Albert Schweitzer is the autobiography of Albert Schweitzer, the missionary to Africa, who is conceded to have the most universal mind since Goethe. "Painting and Paper Hanging for the Home Owner," is a practical book which should be widely used.

Books on every type of information and books for pleasure are available at the Ouachita parish public library. If you are not making use of its resources, register at the branch which is most convenient for you.

THELMA PICKENS BECOMES BRIDE OF MR. JOHN ROBERT ARTHUR RECENTLY

The First Baptist Church was the scene of one of the loveliest weddings of the season when Miss Thelma Pickens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Uriah W. Pickens, became the bride of Mr. John Robert Arthur, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Arthur, recently.

The Rev. L. T. Hastings, church pastor, performed the impressive double ring ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

Baskets of white mums and tube roses interspersed with tall white tapers, held aloft in branched candelabra, stood against a pyramidal arrangement of clustered magnolia leaves to form the beautiful floral setting.

Fluffy white tulle bows marked the pews for members of the two families.

Mrs. B. D. Albritton played the nuptial music. She accompanied Mr. Dale Martha who sang "O Promise Me" and "Because," and played the traditional wedding marches to begin and end the service.

Miss Margaret Pickens served her sister as maid of honor and wore a floor-length gown of orchid taffeta. The long bodice was tight fitting and the bouffant skirt featured rows of length-wise shirring at the hips. Mrs. Billie Franklin was the bridesmaid and wore pale green taffeta made identical to that worn by the maid of honor. They carried white Bibles surmounted with tube roses in shower effect, and also wore white blossoms in their hair.

Mr. James Pittman served the groom in the capacity of best man. Mr. Uriah W. Pickens, Jr., was the other groomsman.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and wore a gown of white lace over satin. Her short veil of illusion was caught to a cap of lace finished with sprays of tube roses.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and tuberoses showered with lengths of white satin ribbons caught at intervals with the tuberoses.

The bride's mother chose a model of teal blue, while the groom's mother wore a wine crepe dress. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

After a wedding trip to south Louisiana, the bride and groom are at home at 408 Benton avenue, Monroe.

Mrs. Arthur is a member of the nursing staff at Conway Memorial Hospital and Mr. Arthur is employed in the local post office.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS DISCUSS VARIOUS PROJECTS MONDAY

The regular meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America was held Monday night in the Knights of Columbus hall with Mrs. Gladys Watkins, grand regent, presiding.

Because this was the first meeting since June, the grand regent appointed additional committees to fill various posts necessary for the progress of the court.

The attendance committee, divided into the purple and gold teams headed respectively by Mrs. Lorethia Monica and Mrs. Anna Mae Vicknair, had notified all members. The "team" idea originated three years ago and has not only stimulated interest in attendance but has also increased enrollment in the court.

Mrs. Stanley Hodges, out-going regent, was appointed library chairman to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mrs. Sarah Pracker who is leaving the city.

Ten members from the court were appointed as group chairmen to work with their committees for the Community Chest. They are: Mrs. Gladys Watkins, Mrs. Lucille Theriot, Mrs. Margaret Burgoyne, Mrs. Marguerite Morrison and Mrs. Rose Haddad, Mrs. Marie Mulhearn, Mrs. Mona Gardner, Mrs. Daisy Carr, and Mrs. Allye Moore. All will act under the leadership of Mrs. Marchman, general chairman of the women's division of the drive. In addition Mrs. Mattea Colquette will serve as chairman for individual donations for the Catholic Daughters of America; Mrs. Mary Louise Scalia as chairman of the flower committee; Mrs. Rose Pyler, chairman of the sick committee; and Mrs. Allye Moore as publicity head.

Volunteers for perpetual rosary were Mrs. Stanley Hodges, Mrs. Mary L. Scalia and Mrs. Rose Pyler.

Miss Leona Biggar, general chairman for Guardian Angel Sunday school, reported the activities have been kept up during the summer months, the work of teachers comprising story telling and general recreation. In October this program will be resumed on schedule.

Miss Biggar, chairman of the board of trustees, gave a full report of board recommendations to the court. This chairman also gave a comprehensive report of the officers of the diocesan conference held in Alexandria. After having heard the many accomplishments achieved by various courts throughout the state, members were enlightened of the great work that has been done.

The meeting was attended by Mrs. Gladys Watkins, grand regent; Mrs. Rose Haddad, treasurer, and Miss Biggar, who substituted in Mrs. Lana Slater's absence.

Mrs. Marie Mulhearn, vice-regent chairman for the polio drive, thanked her co-chairmen for their cooperation.

The membership drive was launched at this time under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Shackleford.

The guests present enjoyed the large window fans that had just been installed through the efforts of the organization. Hostesses for the September meeting of the Welcome Garden Club were Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. W. C. Fisher, Mrs. J. B. Brown, Mrs. J. F. Stone and Mrs. J. F. Shannon, the meeting held in the Methodist Youth building in West Monroe.

Tiger lilies arranged with greenery were used in effective arrangements for the decorations.

Mrs. Norman Jardine, the president, called the meeting to order and presided during the business period when the club voted to give a substantial donation to the polio drive.

Announcement was made of the chrysanthemum show to be held the first Thursday in November and chairmen were appointed at this time.

Mrs. B. E. Gambrell, program chairman, introduced Mrs. O. R. Brauer, who talked on "Winter House Plants." Mrs. C. C. Lucky's interesting topic was "Blue Ribbon House Plants."

Mrs. Gambrell read the following lines written by Lillie Stopple:

"September day, how gallantly your promise you fill;
Preparing hearts for autumn-time, while summer lingers still."

The tea table was attractively decorated and refreshments were served to Mesdames M. W. Montgomery, J. H. Scoggin, Jr., G. M. Gleason, C. C. Lucky, G. Swayze, W. N. Reynolds, John Lewis, W. B. W. S. C. S. PLANS UNUSUAL PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

The circles of Woman's Society of Christian Service along with the Wesleyan Service Guild are planning an interesting program for Tuesday night, September 27, at 7:30 p.m. based on their current study, "China, Twilight or Dawn." Mrs. George Pearce, Jr., will review the book, "Meet Mrs. Yu." There will be a social hour following the program. An invitation is extended to all ladies interested.

NUTRITION IS DISCUSSED AT A SHERROUSE SESSION

"Health is the first objective of education," stated Mrs. Keene, nutritionist with the state department, as she spoke to a large attendance of parents and teachers Wednesday when the Sherrouse P.-T. A. held its first meeting of the school year.

This statement was made with reference to the school lunch program and Mrs. Keene further said that now most all school children are eating in the lunchrooms. She favors this practice and believes that much can be learned by the child from such a social atmosphere. This tends to establish better food habits than eating at home in a rush.

It was also pointed out that malnutrition affects the way we act, the way we look, and the way we feel. Not getting enough of the right kind of food keeps a child from learning. Also the lack of a good breakfast lowers the ability of a child to learn.

Mrs. Keene pointed out that the daily food needs of a child are: 1 serving of good protein, 4 glasses of milk, three servings of whole grain cereals or bread, 1 serving of citrus fruit juice, 1 egg, 1 potato, 1 green vegetable and 2 fruits. The average school lunch menu provides one-half of the child's daily need and it is up to the mothers to see that the other half is supplied at home, she declared.

After this informative message, Mrs. J. D. Kelly, president, invited each parent to come to eat once in the school cafeteria during the year to see what the children are being served.

Also included on the program was a talk by Mrs. L. N. Blair, kindergarten teacher, on the subject, "Getting Children Ready For School" and a talk by Mrs. Bob Burns, first grade teacher, on "Who Says Your Child Can't Read?"

During the business session which followed Mrs. Henry Long was unanimously elected to the office of first five-president to succeed Mrs. L. G. Corley who recently moved away. Reports were given by the committee chairmen and the budget for the year was adopted.

Announcement was made of the teacher visitation program which will get under way next week. It was also announced that this year there will be an elementary study group as well as the pre-school study group which has been functioning for several years. Officers and committee chairmen were urged to attend the Twin City council's school of instruction on Monday, September 26, at the First Baptist Church. Plans were told of the outdoor festival, including a Tom Thumb wedding, to be held on October 18.

Mrs. L. C. Richardson was in charge of the refreshment period which followed.

OPERA CLUB HAS OPENED SEASON

The Opera Club of Monroe, under the guidance of their new president for the year, Mrs. P. A. Colvin, opened the season on Thursday, September 8, at the home of Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. P. A. Poag, co-hostess.

After a delightful social hour, when very appetizing refreshments were served, the meeting was called to order and all business attended to, then the program committee took charge, inaugurating a new course of study for the year.

With a view toward a performance of "The Barber of Seville" at the close of the year's study (for members only), the opera is being literally taken apart for better understanding of the story and characterizations. To get into the swing, a paper on the life of Rossinni, composer of the music for the opera, was given by Mrs. Rodney Cline. To refresh lagging memories, the story was briefly outlined by Mrs. C. W. Caraway, after which the overture was beautifully presented as a piano solo by Mrs. J. C. Liner, Jr. To further familiarize the members with the opera as a whole, Mrs. B. B. Martin gave an interesting delineation of all the characters, also recalling many of the most amusing incidents occurring throughout the play.

Subsequent meetings will be devoted to a detailed study of the opera, including settings and costumes, as well as presentation of many arias by the members, both vocal and instrumental.

Present at the meeting were: Mrs. P. A. Colvin, Mrs. A. M. Serex, Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. M. L. Padgett, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. Paul Newman, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, Mrs. Rodney Cline, Mrs. Duncan M. Smith, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. J. C. Liner, Jr., Mrs. J. N. Coon and Mrs. C. W. Caraway, members, with two guests, Mrs. Curtis Seamon and Mrs. Wheelis.

Glorify your church services with this magnificent organ music!

Now—thanks to the new Hammond Organ—your church can have glorious organ music that is second to none!

Here is a range of tone and wealth of color that cannot be equaled by any comparable instrument—a quality of music that will be an inspiration to all in your church.

Here, too, is music of cathedral quality for your church, regardless of its size. For the Hammond Organ creates — within itself — the majestic reverberating quality produced by towering walls and vaulted ceilings. No other organ has this exclusive Reverberation Control.

The Hammond Organ, too, is the only organ which cannot get out of tune in any kind of weather. It is installed without requiring any structural changes in your church—and upkeep is negligible.

But you must see and hear this wonderful instrument to fully appreciate all that it can mean to your church. Then you will know why 15,000 churches, large and small, already own the Hammond Organ.

You will understand why, since its introduction, more churches have bought the Hammond Organ than all other comparable instruments combined.

To hear, see, and play the new Hammond Organ, you are invited to stop in soon. There is no obligation.

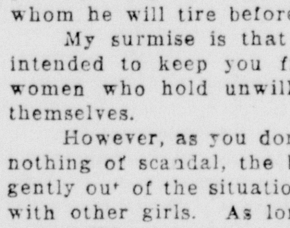
DOROTHY DIX

Premature Entanglements

Teen Age Betrothals Uncertain Basis For Permanent Happiness

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy of 18 and have been going with a girl of the same age for about a year. I thought I loved this girl, but I have changed my mind since I met another girl. The other night I suggested that we both go with some one else for a while, and told her that I didn't love her any more. Immediately she got her father's gun and was about to shoot herself when I stopped her. I promised I would try to learn to love her again, but it is no use, I can't. Don't tell me to try to reason with her because it is impossible.

PUZZLED LAD



DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: I trust this unpleasant experience will teach you a lesson that will do much to safeguard your future happiness. That is not to get yourself entangled in love affairs until you are grown and your taste in women is formed.

Every boy in his teens thinks he is in love with every pretty girl with whom he is thrown in contact. That is normal and a good thing; because, before a man picks out a wife with whom to spend the balance of his days, he should have known many women who appealed to him in different ways and he should have thought himself in love and found out that he wasn't often enough to learn to distrust his emotions. Then he won't be so likely to mistake a passing fancy for an eternal passion and get married to a woman of whom he will tire before the honeymoon sets.

My surmise is that this girl's threat of suicide was a gesture intended to keep you from leaving her. It is the stock trick of women who hold unwilling men to them by the threat of killing themselves.

However, as you don't want to be involved in any scenes, to say nothing of scandal, the best thing for you to do is to ease yourself gently out of the situation. Don't go to see her often, and go around with other girls. As long as you are not married to her, she has no possible right to supervise your stepping out.

It is hopeless to try to revive a dead love. When you've lost your taste for a girl, you've lost it, and that is all there is to it.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What is bothering me and a lot of other business girls is that we see so many men cheating on their wives and they are wives who are everything that a wife should be, good looking and cheerful and not naggers. Why is this? What makes men who are honest and honorable in other things turn out to be sneaks and liars to their wives? And how are girls, who see this every day and who have to telephone wives that their husbands are in conference or called out of town on business or are meeting country customers, when they are really stepping out with some doll, to keep from becoming too disillusioned to consider marrying any man?

JUST A STENOGRAPHER

ANSWER: Why men who are married to beautiful and charming women can't be satisfied to stay within the fold but must jump the bars now and then nobody can explain. Perhaps it is just the nature of the beast. Perhaps, as Mr. Howell once said, after 2000 years of Christianity, men are still imperfectly monogamous.

But there seems no remedy for it. Unless a man is born of the domestic type no one woman can hold him, no matter if she is as beautiful as Venus. Always he will see the flutter of a petticoat up the street and start chasing it.

Nor is there any way in which the business girl can retain her illusions about men when she works with them every day. She is like Eve after she ate the apple, knowing good and evil and all the tricks and manners of men.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: What do you do with a husband when he simply states that he is tired of married life? We have one child, a little girl 2 years old. He seems to be crazy about her and makes a wonderful father and husband when he isn't drinking or isn't wanting a drink or isn't wanting to get away from married life. Also, he says that at times he is in love with me and that at times he isn't. What would you suggest?

BABS

ANSWER: I should think that the best thing to do would be to let him go, for that uncertain kind of husband would be small loss. The chances are that if he tried single life again he would find out that he had lost his taste for that and be glad to come back home.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: Why is it so desperately hard to convince the modern girl that there is any such thing as a really righteous young man whose thoughts are pure and noble and whose intentions are honorable?

DONALD

ANSWER: Probably because she has seen so few of them. It is hard to believe in prehistoric animals even after you have seen their skeletons in the museums.

HOUSE PLANTS ARE PLEASING

Can Be Cultivated With Little Cost And With Minimum Trouble

By Mildred G. Swift

Now is a good time to be thinking of some growing things we can have in the house without too much trouble. The heat, the gas fumes and the dry air in our houses in winter are all hard on house plants. So I'm going to suggest, first, some very simple things to you that you can have with no expense and with very little trouble.

Save some grapefruit seed, let them dry, then plant them in a pot of earth. As they grow keep the tips pinched back to make the plants branch so they are full and bushy. The shiny green foliage is very attractive.

Another plant can be made from a pineapple top. Slice the top from a pineapple, then plant in a flower pot. It will grow and make an interesting plant.

Another nice plant can be grown by cutting the top from carrots, leaving just about an inch of the stems. Then cut a thin slice from the top of each carrot. Plant these top carrot slices in a bowl of waer filled wih pebbles. Each carro top will send up a feathery mass of green. Beets may be treated the same way, but you get an entirely different effect with the red purple tones of beet leaves.

Have you ever tried growing a sweet potato in water? Get one that has started to sprout and partly immerse it in water in which a piece of charcoal has been placed to keep the water sweet. As the vines grow keep the ends pinched off, so the plant will keep branching. Change the water often so it will stay fresh and sweet.

What could be lovelier or more useful than a pot of parsley convenient to the kitchen? A few leaves finely chopped adds zest and flavor to many a dish. Parsley seeds germinate very slowly. Soaking them for 24 hours before planting often makes them sprout more quickly. Fill your flower pot or box with medium rich garden soil. Sow the seed on the surface and then press firmly with a flat board. As the plants grow, thin by pulling out some of the plants. Keep the leaves clipped so your plants will grow thick and bushy.

Louisiana Baptist Home Reaches 50th Milestone

Even as the cry of the baby Moses moved the heart of the Egyptian princess, so the appeal of destitute children finds a warm response in many a benevolent heart today. The Louisiana Baptist Children's home is soon to celebrate its 50th anniversary, 24 years of which have been here in Monroe, marked by continuous progress. Today the home operates at full capacity yet many urgent requests for admission are of necessity turned down for lack of dormitory space, states D. C. Black, superintendent.

Back in 1898 Louisiana Baptists in convention here discussed the need of a children's home and named a committee for further study of the subject. On July 13, 1899, the convention then in session named a board of trustees with authority to solicit funds and to decide on the location of the new institution. This marks the birth of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home.

When the first report of the board of trustees was rendered July 14, 1900, it recorded enrollment of three children in an orphan's home in Baton Rouge. Later temporary housing was secured in Keatchie in a college dormitory. In 1902, the property at Lake Charles was purchased and twenty-five children started as occupants.

In 1919, the board voted to purchase 420 acres in Monroe of J. P. Parker and to erect a permanent home here. On June 9, 1925, this new home was occupied. There were 125 enrolled at the time of removal to Monroe.

There are now the following large brick buildings: Mary Goss, erected in 1925; Monroe, 1945; Smitherman, 1925, Compere, 1925, Oakes, 1925, Murrell, 1947, Gayer, 1947. Also the handsome "Daddy" Flowers Memorial chapel, 1942, and the Health Center and food supply house, 1949.

Today the home has a property value of well over a half-million dollars and is debt free. A total of $27,000 is now on hand toward the erection of another dormitory.

Superintendent Black is housed in a commodious, two-story home which was erected for "Daddy" Flowers, the first and much beloved superintendent here, but who died before the house was completed.

The formal celebration of the home's fiftieth anniversary will be held in connection with the Louisiana Baptist Annual Convention held in Monroe in November.

Louisiana Vets' Toothaches Bad

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(Special)—Louisiana veterans had a lot of toothaches in the past year. The Veterans Administration reports that it paid $390,386 to private dentists in Louisiana during the past fiscal year for treatment to veterans.

Veterans are entitled to free treatment for service-connected dental conditions. The Veterans Administration handled only 16 per cent of such cases itself with its own staff dentists, with private dentists being paid on a fee basis for the rest.

In Louisiana VA staff dentists handled 1,327 cases, while private dentists handled 4,917 veteran patients.

The Veterans Administration is stringent in enforcing the service-connected requirements for free dental treatment, revealing that 37 per cent of the claims presented in the last year have been disallowed. However, treatment was given to 430,000 veterans at a cost of $38,813,560 in fees paid to private dentists. A valuation of $8,345,000 was placed on the work done by VA staff dentists.

Dawkins To Give Memorial Address

Judge Ben Dawkins, federal judge for this district, will deliver a memorial address in New Orleans Oct. 3 at services for the late Judge Elmo P. Lee, who died July 26 in Shreveport.

Lee was in the U. S. circuit court of appeal. He succeeded Judge Rufus E. Foster in 1942.

Judge Dawkins said he had been asked to address the attendants at the services "because Judge Lee and I were class mates in school and enjoyed each others' friendship for many years."

He said Judge G. L. Porterie, of Shreveport, would take his place here for the opening two days of district court which is slated to convene Oct. 3.

Guess who's losing sleep over this one?

For years, folks have talked about the "low-priced three" in the car business.

For a generation these have been the same three cars, unchallenged for position simply because they were lowest priced.

But take a look at the beauty pictured here and ask yourself:

How would you like to sell against it, with its wealth of Buick features?

How would you like to compete with it when it wears a price tag any new-car buyer can reach, gives you straight-eight performance for less than many sixes?

Truth is, this one sets a lot of standards that are going to be hard to match.

This styling is certainly something to start other designers tossing in their sleep.

This handy size—a dream in traffic, yet generous in interior room—is a "must" for cars yet to come.

The lift of high-pressure Fireball power—the level-going comfort of the Buick ride—the luxury of Dynaflow Drive, here optional at modest extra cost—all these are wanted things others just can't overlook.

So why not do the obvious thing and go see the car that's causing sleepless nights in Detroit?

Study its smartness, test its room and comfort, try its handling, note the precise figures of its delivered prices.

You can do all that on a single trip to your Buick dealer's—and make your selection of a wide choice of equipment and colors at the same time.

TENSAS PARISH SEEKS TO WIN

Enters Mrs. E. W. Lofton As Outstanding Home Agent Of Louisiana

The Louisiana Home Demonstration Agents Association selected Mrs. Effie W. Lofton, agent in Tensas parish to receive national recognition at the Chicago meeting this fall. Mrs. Mildred Swift, reporter for the association states that Mrs. Lofton will compete with agents selected from almost every state in the Union.

Looking over "Mrs. Effie's" record, we easily see why the agents felt that she should be selected. Eighteen and one-half years service with agricultural extension department, as home demonstration agent and as assistant state garden and food preservation specialist have won a place in the hearts of those in Tensas parish and agents throughout the state. Four years teaching prior to induction into extension gave the agent valuable training with children.

Effie is now first vice-president of Louisiana Home Demonstration Agents Association, this being her second term. She was on the first committee for drawing up constitution and by-laws of this organization, and at the same time for State Home Economics Association. The Louisiana Home Demonstration Agents Association selected Effie to represent Louisiana at the national meeting last year.

The Tensas agent is a member of the Parish Garden Club, Cosmopolitan Club, Eastern Star, (grand worthy matron), Methodist Church, Weslyn Service Guild, Red Cross, Cancer Society, United States department of agriculture council, nutrition committee, overseas relief, agriculture planning committee, American Home Economics Association, Epsilon Sigma Phi. The Delta Fair Association elected her member of their board of directors.

Sixteen Home Demonstration Clubs with a membership of three hundred adults, and six 4-H Clubs with a membership of three hundred and ninety-one are supervised by this progressive agent. She has trained seventy-six in unorganized groups and still has time to work with seventy-two other groups. The state office has sent eight new agents to Effie for training. These agents are now workers throughout the state.

During the time Mrs. Lofton has been agent in Tensas parish, she has had eight 4-H Club girl winners in state contests who received trips to National Club Congress; three selected as most outstanding club girls in the state and won trips to national camp. A picture of one of her club girls was featured in McCall's magazine for winner in food preservation work. 4-H Club girls have been featured in Progressive Farmer and Farm Journal for outstanding work. When the Illinois Central Railroad took a 4-H Club train throughout north Louisiana, one of Effie's girls was selected as a hostess. Other winners were in District Better Methods Contests and state sweepstake winner in Good Provider Contest.

Effie has time to reach over two thousand Negroes in twenty-two parish meetings each year. With such a busy life given to public service Mrs. Effie Lofton has time to raise a vegetable garden and many beautiful flowers. And, believe it or not, she is a good fisherman.

Louisiana Home Demonstration agents are proud of Effie's accomplishments and happy to submit her name for national recognition.

MRS. E. W. LOFTON

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23.—(AP)—You'd expect Ramon Novarro to be sentimental about returning to work at the studio where he scored his triumphs as a romantic star.

But he isn't at all. "It's just as though I've never been away," said Novarro after a 15-year absence from M. G. M. "I suppose I should be excited or worried, but I'm not."

The actor left the studio in 1934 after making "The Night Is Young" with Evelyn Laye, Una Merkel, Charles Butterworth and Edward Everett Horton. He ended 14 years with M. G. M., during which he reigned as a screen romantic idol second only to Valentino.

"Every time I walked through the studio gate, I told myself it might be the last time," he reflected. "I never worried about being washed up. One day I said to myself, 'you'd better get out before they kick you out.' So I quit."

He attributed the wind-up of his early career to the inflexibility of Hollywood casting in those days.

"If you were a romantic star, all you could do was make love and look pretty. If you were a heavy, you had to be mean all the time; you couldn't even pat a dog or water a flower. There was no change of pace."

The illustrated with a film he did with Wallace Berry as the comic relief. Novarro pulled Berry's hat down over his eyes for a gag ending. The scene had to be re-shot. Novarro was reprimanded: "We pay Mr. Beery to be funny; you to make love!"

"A big executive once told me if I ever slapped a woman on the screen, I would be dead in pictures," the one-time star remarked. "Look at leading men today! They slap women around like crazy."

Novarro looks older than his 44 years in his white goatee and make-up for "The Outriders." But his enthusiasm for his new career as a character actor is youthful. He finds the roles much more interesting than being the dashing, stout-hearted star.

What about the future?

"The future is merely the prolongation of the present," he mused. "Do your best in the present and the future will take care of itself. That's why I never worry about what will come.

"I don't want to work too hard; I have no desire to be a millionaire."

"But weren't you once?" I asked.

"Well, I never counted it up," he smiled. "But I think maybe so."

V. F. W. PLANNING ON CONCESSIONS

Will Have Lively Group Of Stands At Franklin Parish Fair

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The spirit of the fair entered the regular meeting of Hanna-Richardson Post No. 3155, Veterans of Foreign Wars of U. S. A. held Thursday night, states Julian Duncan, post adjutant. Definite plans were laid for "going in business" again at the oncoming fair to begin October 12, lasting through October 15. Working with the members of the post this yaer will be the ladies of the newly organized and very active post auxiliary, and greater success and more fun than ever is expected this time.

"By going in business at the fair," states Adjutant Duncan, "I mean we are going to operate a hamburger-hot-dog stand as usual—we will sell drinks, candy, etc., also. In addition, and as in the past, there will be given away a bale of cotton the last night of the fair. All funds will be turned over to the building fund for a new post home that is to be erected on the Franklin Parish War Memorial Fair Grounds."

Along with the hamburger stand there is going to be a free display of war trophies which has proven to be of great interest to sightseeers in past years at the fair. I. T. Robinson is the chairman of the war trophy display and is at this time collecting souveniers for display. Any veteran having a trophy to display is urged to leave it with Mr. Robinson at the Diamond-Hawthorne Center. Good care of it is guaranteed.

MARINE BAND'S MATINEE CHARMS

Sousa's Productions Always Initiate Afternoon Performances

There is especial charm, and a certain "something" which is never forgotten, in the afternoon concerts given by the famed marine band on tour. Then it is that Maj. William F. Santelmann and his distinguished fellow artists of the world's greatest band relax somewhat, in matters of program selection—though Major Santelmann's uncompromising good taste holds every item of every program to a high musical standard.

On week-day afternoons on this tour of the marine band Major Santelmann offers less of the symphonic fare—for which the band is so justly famous—and provides some of the brilliant and clever compositions from the works of contemporary composers as well as from the masters of music of a former day. Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" starts the afternoon concert, and the mood then shifts as the band plays the graphic and descriptive overture of the "Flying Dutchman" by Wagner.

One of the fine novelty numbers of the program is the amusing descriptive composition "At the Circus" with its clever narration by Musician Dale Harpham.

The title "Rhapsody in Rhumba," by Bennett is self-explanatory, as is the title "Caribbean Fantasy" from the pen of Morrissey. These South of the Border numbers will tap the toes of the most phlegmatic audience and the originality and brilliance of their interpretation will be a revelation to music lovers of any age.

And those who have not yet heard a solo on the marimba, that exotic Latin-American instrument which is played by striking wooden bars with a pair of mallets, will hear a noted exponent of that instrument Charles Owen play "Zapateado" by the Spanish composer, Pablo Sarasate. The technical skill of Musician Owen is beautifully displayed in this solo number and his audiences never cease to marvel at the fine musicianship displayed in combination with the terrific physical co-ordination demanded by this exacting composition.

The Aurora Borealis is a display of light in the high levels of the earth's atmosphere, associated with high sunspot activity and world-wide magnetic-electric storms.

Better Style, Quality Are Keynoting Fall Furnishings

New Collections In Stores Feature Smart Designs At Moderate Prices; Raw Materials Take Drop In Costs

The new fall home furnishings which are currently being introduced in the stores all over the country are really big news for the manufacturers and designers have recognized the fact that the majority of Americans demand well-designed and well-made merchandise at sensible prices, and this time, they've done an outstanding job of meeting this popular demand.

With raw materials lower-priced than they have been in recent years, and with increased labor productivity, price reductions have been made possible with the result that Mr. and Mrs. Consumer are actually paying less for the same quality—or, as in some instances where the prices have not been reduced, the quality—of the design—the finish—the construction—or all three has been greatly improved so that the merchandise is actually a better value for the same amount of money

From the standpoint of design, furniture has never been as attractive and functional as it is today. Modern pieces have become more graceful—the old soap box type is rarely seen—and the finishes, while still in the lighter tones, have lost that "raw" look, and are, instead soft and mellow, and far more pleasing to the eye. In general, "tawney" or "honey" tones prevail in modern design. Contemporary fabrics, used for upholstered pieces, and draperies, too, are less flamboyant with smaller patterns and toned-down colors predominating.

Among the traditional styles which include 18th Century, French Provincial, and Early American, you'll find that, although, the basic designs remain unchanged, that ingenious designers have incorporated more function and utility into these new pieces than the originals ever had. There are more drawers in bedroom and dining room pieces, for instance, sized to suit every need—more dual-purpose designs which are adaptable to practically every room in the house—tables that may be used together or separately as individual trays—or with spacious shelves to hold books, radios, etc. There is also a noticeable trend to the simpler traditional designs and a trend away from the elaborately carved, dust-catching styles.

In short, the new furniture collections emphasize the fact that good taste, fashion, and function in home furnishings need not be prohibitively expensive but rather that an attractive, liveable home is within the reach of even the most modest budget!

Small Room Pieces Size Is Indefinite

Now that the smaller house with its corresponding small rooms has become to much a part of the American scene, the question of how best to furnish a small room has become an increasingly important one.

Large Pieces

There are, at present, two schools of thought on this subject and the home-furnishings experts have lined up on both sides. One school believes that a few large pieces in a small room are better than a number of smaller pieces. They maintain that a number of small pieces create an interior that presents a cluttered effect while fewer and larger pieces are less distracting to the eye and make the room look more spacious.

Small Pieces

On the other hand, the second group argues that large sofas, chairs, and tables are out-of-balance in the small room and make attractive room arrangement and conversational groupings extremely difficult to achieve. They firmly believe in using the smaller, lighter scale pieces that manufacturers have recently brought out especially for the small house.

Undoubtedly, there is much to be said for both opinions so regardless of which theory you follow in selecting your furnishings, you're bound to win the nod of approval from some of the experts.

Avoid Bulky Designs

But, just as a word of warning, if you settle for the large pieces, be careful not to choose heavy, down-to-the-floor designs but look for those with raised bases and graceful lines, so that your room will not present an unattractive picture of solid bulk.

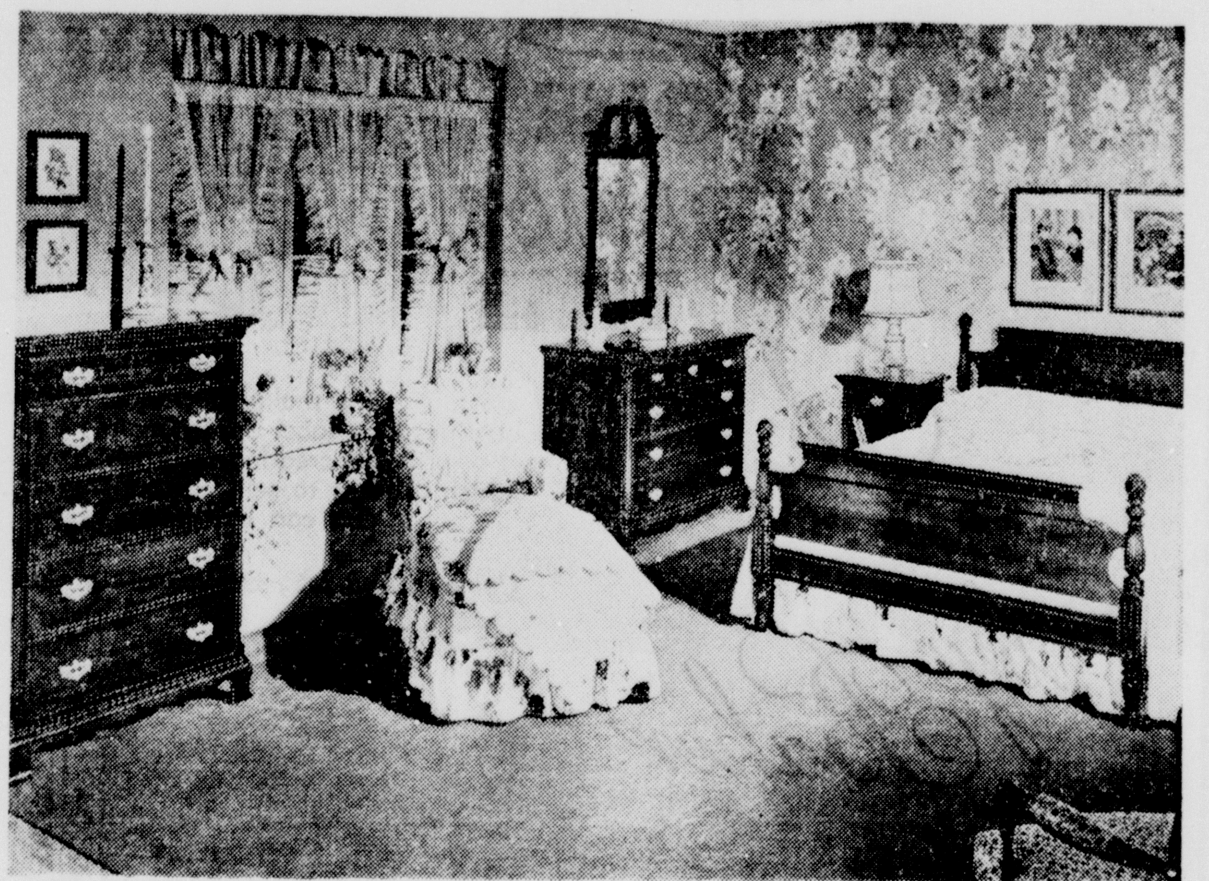
Formal Designs Appearing In Traditional Showings

Noticeable in the fall furniture collections are the more formal traditional styles—namely, Empire, Regency and Biedermeier. Extremely handsome, they have a great appeal for those who prefer furnishings of formal and elegant character.

COLONIAL PERIOD CHARM



Mengel combines charm of the colonial period with modern features in the Melrose solid mahogany group. Gleaming claret finish is accentuated by a warm color scheme—rose carpet, medium green walls, rose and white accessories. Group includes a selection of formal and informal pieces. Modern features are adjustable drawer partitions, pin trays, and foam rubber vanity bench.

RICE MAY GIVE PRICE-CUT TEST

Cubans Eat Huge Quantity But Grow Only Fourth Of Needs

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Rice may provide a test soon of the government's program to cut living costs.

Cubans eat rice in huge quantities, but grow only about a fourth of what they need. It is their main staple food.

The import quota of 445,000,000 pounds is to be filled by Nov. 1. The government then will have to choose one of two courses, neither very popular. It may increase the amount of the quota, and let domestic rice growers yell. Or it can let the price of rice go up, and hear the angry protests of Cubans who eat rice at least once every day.

President Carlos Prio's government is pledged to lower living costs. Cuba has the highest living costs of any nation in this hemisphere, except Venezuela. The government lowered food prices last year by appealing to distributors and retailers to make smaller profits. It cut rents 10 per cent.

But prices are still high, and Cubans are complaining.

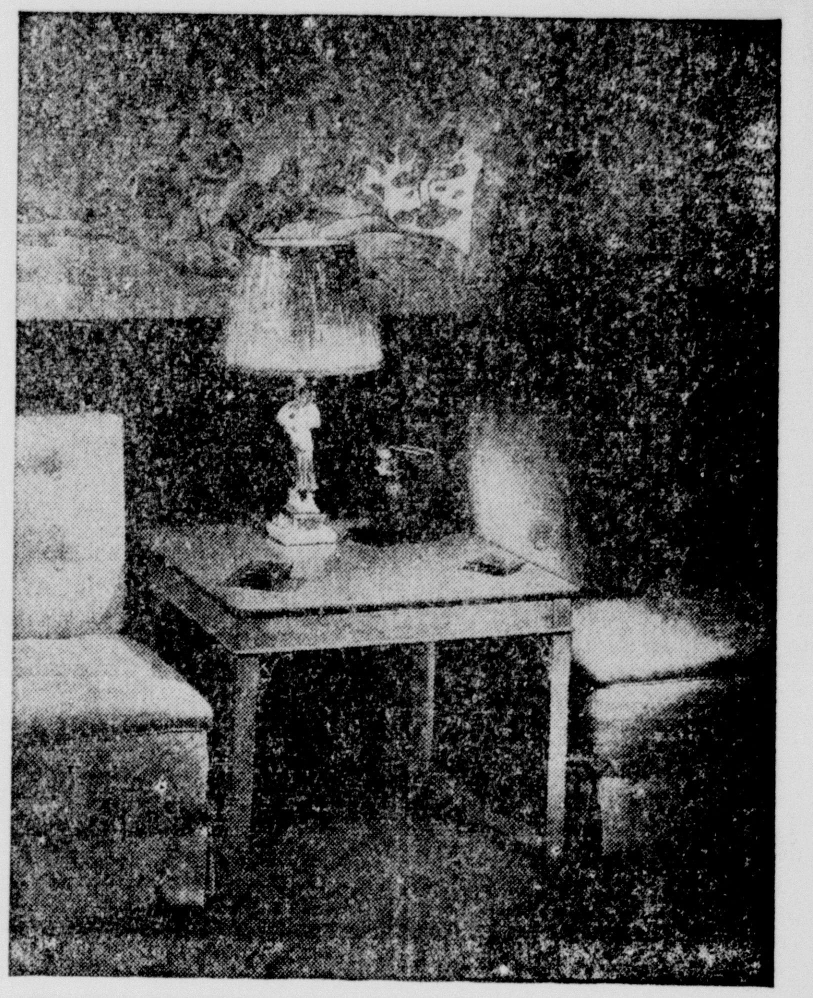
If prices went up, labor promptly would demand higher wages. They are saying now that wages still are too low.

That would mean higher prices not only for rice but for everything.

The situation resulted from Cuba's decision to put into effect a world agreement on food imports. The agreement was designed to encourage each nation to produce more foodstuffs. It enables a nation to double taxes, or duties, on imported foodstuffs after estimated quotas have been received. But Cubans are eating more than the 575,000,000 pounds their government figured on for 1949.

Rice imports now pay a duty of $1.85 per 100 kilos (220 pounds). If the trade agreement were put into effect, the duty would double to $3.70. That would increase the price of rice nearly two cents a pound, and also tend to restrict rice consumption.

The lower consumption would hit rice growers in Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas, where Cuba buys most of its rice. But aside from what U. S. rice growers might say—and they have a big crop this year—it would be polite parlor conservation compared to what the explosive Cubans would tell their government about increasing the price of rice.



This distinctive Chinese Chippendale table is a smart accent piece for either an 18th Century or Contemporary room. Delicate Chinese fretwork decorates the legs and adds interest to the design. Shown in green, red, or black lacquer finishes, or in blond mahogany.

Early American furniture in the new, soft honey-tone finish, is used to create this charming Colonial dining room. The drop-leaf table, which folds down to console size is an interesting convenience feature. The hooked rug is an early Provincial design, Provincial pattern wallpaper, ruffled white curtains, and brass accessories complete the setting.

Home Decoration Has Slow Climb To Common Practice

Elaborate decoration, once the prerogative of kings is now available for every home. Mr. C. G. Pearce, Sr. offers the following interesting story concerning home decorating.

During the long-ago days of the Middle Ages, kings and nobles lived in lofty stone castles which, despite their magnificance, were drab and cold. As a result, they constantly sought new means of achieving warmth, color, design, and livability. For a time they depended entirely on costly hand-woven tapestries, but these took a lifetime to make. Late in the fifteenth century, however, there was developed in France wall covering, undoubtedly adapted from century-old paper panels which the Chinese used to decorate their homes.

Almost miraculously, these wall papers provided a feeling of warmth, color and design which was in welcome contrast to the drab monotony of the plain walls of that day. These papers were made in small squares and were decorated entirely by hand. Consequently, they were prohibitively expensive for all but the nobility and the wealthy tradesmen.

In later years the art spread to many craftsmen, including painters, silversmiths, engravers and etchers. Designs gradually improved and the cost naturally decreased as knowledge of the wall paper art and its techniques increased. Many of the very early wall papers and later reproductions may still be seen in museums. These relics prove that designers of today turn back to the artistic traditions of past eras for much of their inspiration. Some modern wall papers are adaptations of old designs. Others are predicated on the tempo of today's life and the continuous march of progress.

Today, thanks to modern methods of production, the great advantages of wall paper are accessible to each and every home—no longer limited only to the wealthy.

Wall paper is not a fad. Its widespread use stems from the human desire for a versatile, decorative wall covering which, when properly used, can pull together into a harmonious whole all the factors of line and color, of utility and comfort that make a house a home.

The history of wall paper is a proud one. Its traditions are as old as gracious living. Yet its choice as a decorative background is as modern as tomorrow's newspaper. Into present-day wall papers have gone centuries of development, invention and skill. Therefore, wall paper is as essential to better decorating as is rugs, draperies, furniture and other decorating appurtenances.

Among the foremost lines for quality, beauty, balance of common sense with today's gracious living, we consider papers by Thomas Strahan and Brice to be the leaders.

Kitchens Lose Old Chrome Finishings

Formerly relegated to the kitchen or breakfast nook, chrome furniture has been improved so greatly in design that we now find it gracing the dining rooms or living-dining rooms of some of our smart new homes!

A 'Natural' For Modernists

The trend to modern architecture and furnishings is partially responsible for the increased popularity of metal furniture for its form, color and texture makes it a "natural" for contemporary interiors.

The gay colors of the easy-to-keep-clean plastic table tops and seat covers—and the simplicity of the frames devoid of dust-catching ornamentation has a strong appeal for modern-minded, practical homemakers.

Tables Now Extend

Along with improvements in the appearance of their products, chrome furniture manufacturers have also added to its utility and comfort by incorporating extension features in the tables so that they now open out to seat as many as ten. You'll also discover that chairs are more deeply upholstered than they used to be for better seating comfort.

Traditional Designs

And, for those who like the practicality of chrome but not the modern styling, there are several new adaptations of eighteenth century designs such as Duncan Phyfe which have been successfully interpreted in this material.

Cabinets And Buffets

Recently, matching china cabinets and buffets have been added to some of the chrome lines, so the problem of combining a metal table and chairs with wood pieces no longer exists, and it is now possible to have an attractive dining room furnished in chrome.

Early American Wise Choice For Young Set

Early American furniture, which has retained its popularity for generations, is an ideal style for newlyweds who are furnishing their first home.

Improved Styling And Finishes

Lighthearted in feeling, simple in design, and sturdily constructed, it reflects the young American spirit. In recent years, the styling has been refined, and the soft, caramel or honey-color finishes have been substituted for the harsher, reddish finishes which used to be associated with Early American.

Wider Choice Of Fabrics

And, there is a far wider selection of upholstery fabrics than ever before—charming Provincial and Documentary prints, or smart textured weaves in decorated colors are seen in all of the new designs.

Simple Inexpensive Accessories

Made of native American maple or cherry, this style is well within the reach of young budgets and by virtue of its simplicity, inexpensive accessories including cotton draperies, braided or cotton rugs, decorative pieces of brass, copper or pewter may be used with it to create a completely charming room.

Streamlined Kitchens Are Planned Very Carefully

Properly Placed Cabinets Offer Step-Saving, Easier Work Hours; Utility Closets For Cleaning Articles Also Big Need

Kitchen planning calls for careful consideration, not only of the basic equipment, sink, range and refrigerator, that go into it, but also of pans, storage and work surfaces.

Why wait until your home is finished before deciding where your best china will be kept? Where you will stack your trays? Where the vacuum cleaner will be stored? It is far more practical to determine in advance how large a space will be needed for your highest pitchers, how much room is needed for your widest platter. Then you will be able to select storage cabinets that will accommodate everything from strainers to glassware.

You can decide how many cabinets will be needed in every section of the room so that all the equipment you will need in one place actually is stored in the same area.

The first step in answering these questions is to determine how much equipment you have to store and how big it is.

In a recent survey, it was found that the average family of four plus persons uses approximately the following quantities of cooking equipment; four electrical appliances, sixteen surface cooking containers, twenty-two baking containers, thirty-seven large and small utensils (shredders, apple corers, tea strainers, colander, etc.), twenty-three cups, bowls and spoons, thirteen pieces of cutlery, one brush, fourteen pieces of clean-up material and three trays.

Close Inspection

Add china, glassware, silver, packaged and canned foods, staples and condiments and the sum is an almost staggering number of articles.

When you're selecting cabinets it is worth your while to inspect them closely. Look at the construction to see if it feels flimsy; try the doors and drawers to see if they open and close easily and stay in the position in which you place them. Find out how many cabinet accessories are available. Scrutinize the finish for a fine gloss without any flaws (check with the dealer to see if the cabinet is bonderized, for this process assures a longer life in the wear of the finish).

Also keep in mind that in the future you may be need more cabinets and will want them to fit in with those you're now purchasing. So, inquire if the manufacturer has a complete line of cabinets. Then, when that day arrives, you will have no trouble in finding exactly the sizes and style to match the rest of the kitchen.

One of the best ways to set up your kitchen storage space is to divide the kitchen into three parts, the preparation center, the clean-up center and the cooking center. Then plan your cabinet placement accordingly.

The First Step

For instance, at the cooking center, besides frying pans, roasting pans and cutlery used at the range, you will want cereals, packaged puddings and canned soups that do not need diluting, gravy boat, potato masher. Everything you will use in your first step of cooking or immediately after.

At the clean-up center you will want cabinets to hold towels and cleansing materials, kettle, water pitcher, potatoes, dried fruits and vegetables, etc., any container of food that requires water as a first step.

A good example of this distribution is preparation of prunes, since they require the addition of water before being cooked, it saves steps to store them near the sink.

For your cutlery and small pieces of equipment, you will want a cutlery drawer, a sectionalied tray that will separate the various types of utensils; vegetable brush from paring knife, etc.

Your preparation center will have the largest amount of food and equipment and as a rule is set up near your refrigerator. A cabinet placed over the refrigerator will hold all your refrigerator dishes as well as other preparation equipment. Other cabinets over and under your working surface will have the essentials for the start of food preparation and containers for prepared foods.

For instance, in baking a cake most of the work is done at the preparation center. It is started and finished in the same spot. Therefore, you will want your flour and sugar bins, flavoring and spices, mixer, measuring cups and spoons, cake pans and cake plate all in the same area.

Sliding Shelves

A cake and bread bin fitted into a drawer should be in this center, and there should probably be another cutlery drawer.

The cabinets will be more convenient to use if they are equipped with sliding shelves. Thus a housewife can draw the shelf forward to reach a required article stored in the back of the cabinet.

Another useful cabinet accessory is a condiment rack. Expanding condiment shelves can be adjusted to hold as many condiments as the housewife has, making them more accessible.

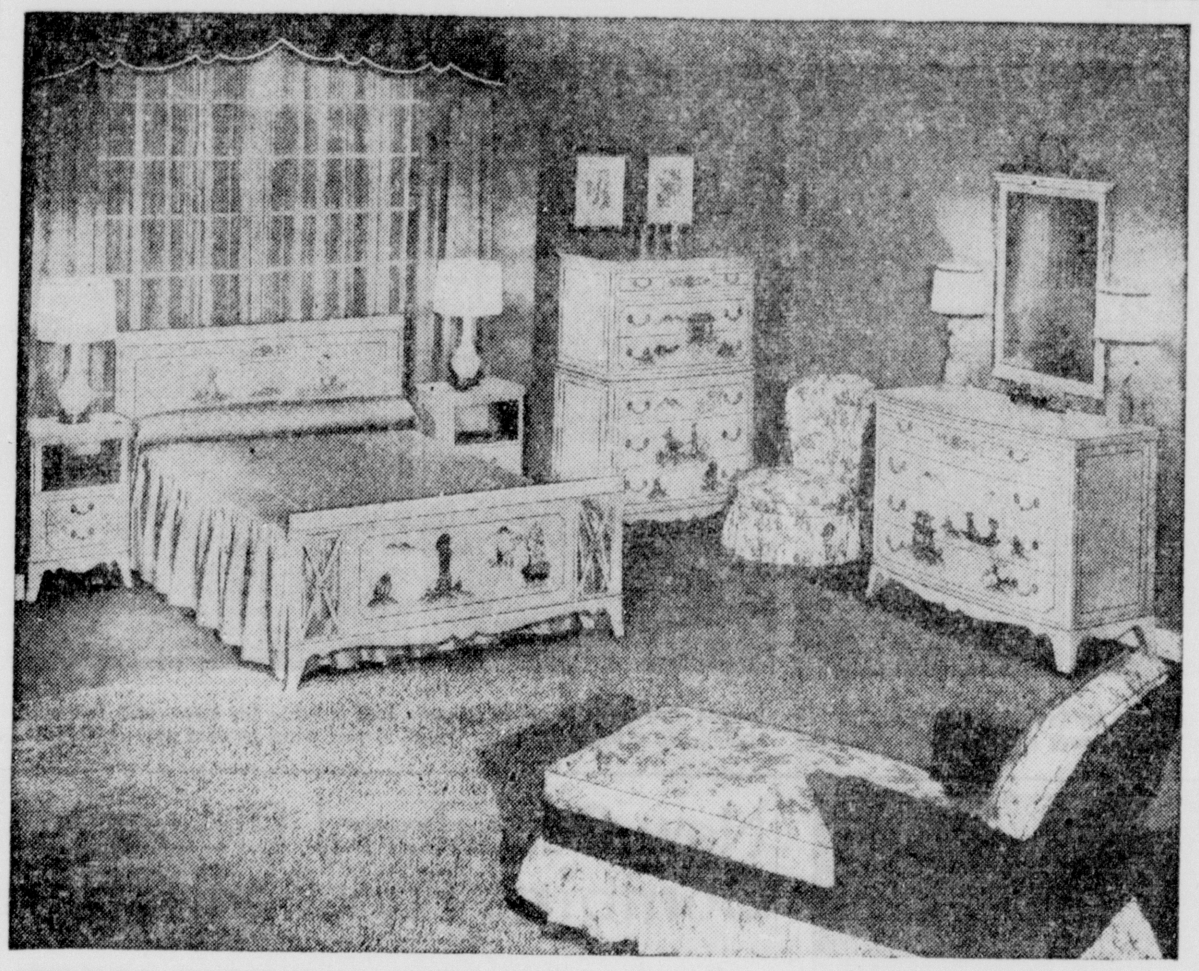
You will also want a cabinet for your small electrical appliances, near the spot of use. The toaster, coffee maker, grill and waffle iron can be kept next to the breakfast nook where they will be available first thing in the morning.

There are probably many other items that you also want in your kitchen that will need storage space. Why not plan for a good utility closet, a place for the vacuum cleaner, mops, brooms, brushes, etc.?

Waxes, polishes and dusters can be hung on metal racks attached to the inner side of the door, and a few hooks above them might be included to hold the children's play coats. A small bin will keep their rubbers and galoshes from getting lost.

Several shelves built into the wall will hold books over the comfortable breakfast benches. Several more can show off the pretty bric-a-brac that every housewife adores and collects.

In other words, there is enough room for everything to be in its proper place in the kitchen, when storage space is given a little forethought.



High-fashion describes this lovely Chinese-inspired bedroom group. The traditional style mahogany furniture is finished in a soft "Parchment" color and decorated with delicate Chinoisserie designs. The same designs appear in the chintz covers of the Chaise lounge and slipper chair.

Members To Attend Jersey Exposition

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Nelda Ann Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mitchell, and Howard Culpepper, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Culpepper of Jonesboro, will be among the 23 Louisiana 4-H Club members who will attend the fourth All American Junior Jersey Exposition and Judging Contest to be held in Memphis, Tenn., September 26, through October 1. This event will be staged at the Mid-South Fairgrounds and is being sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Club and the Mid South Fair Association.

Nelda Ann is in the eighth grade and a member of the Jonesboro Elementary 4-H Club, Howard is in the ninth grade and a member of the Jonesboro-Hodge High School 4-H Club. Both pupils are outstanding in 4-H Club work.

The purpose of this junior exposition is to teach the fundamentals of good dairy husbandry, to emphasize production and quality in dairy cattle, to stress the breeding of better dairy cattle, to demonstrate the finer points of showmanship and to provide for the boys and the girls doing Jersey dairy work, a finer annual climax to each year's effort.

The Louisiana delegation will be held by R. G. Calloway, associate dairy specialist, L. S. U. agricultural extension service, Herd Miller, county associate agent in Washington parish, C. B. Carroll, associate county agent in Saline parish and Mrs. Ettie K. Stacy, associate home demonstration agent for Rapides parish.

They will leave from Alexandria September 26 and will make the trip by chartered bus.

Freezer Cuts Big Food Expense

Foods that are going to be stored in a home freezer for no more than two weeks do not have to be wrapped in moisture-vapor-proof heat-sealed packages.

According to the General Electric Consumers Institute, even highly perishable hamburger can be safely frozen and stored simply in a covered container, if it is to be eaten within a fortnight.

However, if there is even a faint possibility that food may be kept longer than two weeks, it should be wrapped for long-time storage in containers and materials specially prepared for the job.

Thrifty homemakers can buy a week's supply of bread at a time, keep out whatever they need immediately and put the remaining loaves in the freezer in their original waxed paper or ordinary cellophane wrapper.

Rolls, coffee cakes and nearly any other baked goods can be frozen right in the cardboard box in which they were sold.

Hamburger should be shaped into patties, or a loaf, and placed in a covered container. Refrigerator dishes with glass or oiled-silk covers are satisfactory for this short-time storage.

Planned Wiring Will Increase Efficiency

Carefully planned wiring can increase the efficiency of your kitchen; lower the operating costs, too.

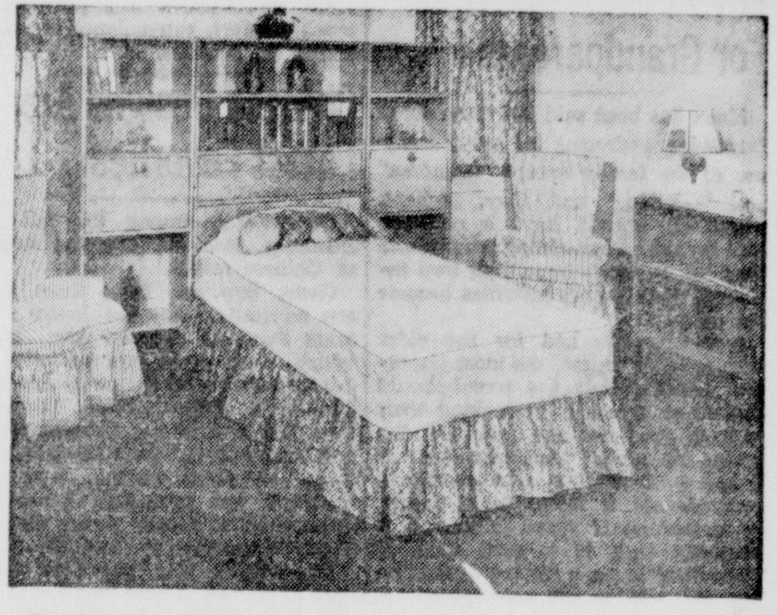
Recent studies by electrical technicians have shown that a roaster plugged into an overloaded circuit takes 28 per cent more time to reach require cooking temperature. Under the same conditions the roaster uses 19 per cent more current.

To get the maximum cooperation from your kitchen, every nook must be "workable." Here are some efficiency-boosting tips for you who are planning to build or remodel.

Use one good wall-switch controlled ceiling light for general illumination over the range, sink and work counter. Install small lights in cabinet and closet interiors. This helps keep the floor free from beef stew and shattered dishes.

For portable plug-in appliances have duplex outlets placed elbow high, every four feet of work area in your kitchen.

Europe has seven midget principalities: Trieste, Andorra, Liechtenstein, San Marino, Monaco, Vatican City and Luxembourg, the largest (999 square miles).



Any teen-age girl would love to have a room just like the one shown here. The separate, sectional headboard in smart blond finish is actually three sections and provides space for books, radio, accessories, and studying as the doors drop down to form a shelf. The box spring and mattress mounted on legs, is covered with a crisp cotton coverlet in soft yellow to contrast the perky, brown-and-yellow print dust ruffle which matches the cottage-style curtains. Low sectional bookshelves and twin chairs complete this fashion-right and functional grouping.

Let's Plan A Room For Grandparents

Much has been said and done about furnishing bedrooms for every member of the family except "Grandma" and "Grandpa" and they, perhaps, above all, should have a pleasant, well furnished bed-sitting room where they can quietly pursue their own interests, when family activities become tiresome.

A comfortable bed for the older person, is, of course, the most important essential but the room should contain an armchair or rocking chair with a good reading lamp of the bridge, or junior floor type next to it, and a night-table large enough to accommodate a lamp, radio, books, or magazines. If space is limited, a magazine rack is a good idea. If "Grandma" sews, a sewing cabinet on legs will add to her convenience. A small writing desk that can double as a card table, or a dining table are other practical suggestions.

From a decorating standpoint, the room should be cheerful with soft, warm colors predominating.

The style of the furnishings is relatively unimportant as long as the room is attractive and provides as much comfort, convenience and liveability as possible.

Chinese Designs Are Latest Favorites

Outstanding among the fall 1949 furniture fashions, are the designs of Chinese origin.

Gone, however, from these modern adaptations are the heavy elaborate carvings, and the pearl inlays which were once representative of the Chinese pieces shown in America. Now, the designers have borrowed from the best of the Chinese pieces, and have adopted their straight, pure lines, exquisite colors, interesting fretwork, and beautiful Chinoisserie decorations to create pieces that are highly acceptable to us, today.

You will see this "Far East" influence expressed in both traditional and modern styles for living-room, dining-room, and bed-room. In a wide choice of colored lacquer finishes, in dark teakwood, or in light almond, these attractive new designs are now available in your stores in all price ranges.

FROM THIS TO THIS AND THIS

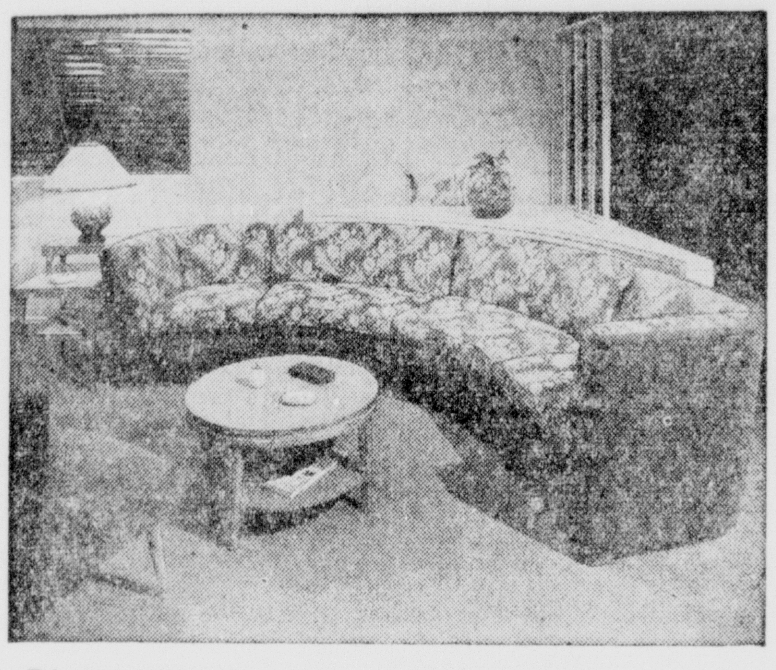
Whether it's breakfast for two—luncheon for four—or dinner for twelve—this wonderful table is capable of filling every requirement! With the leaves down, it's a smart console and a table for two—with the leaves raised, it's a table for four. Then, if you want to seat six, eight, ten, or twelve, you simply add as many of the five extra leaves as you need! Note that its graceful styling gives no hint of bulk when table is closed.



Television enthusiasts will be especially interested in this stunning four-piece, sectional sofa because of its large seating capacity. Sections are easily moved and permit a wide variety of room arrangement. Cushions covered in a leaf design fabric are a smart contrast to the solid color textured fabric used for the outside back and base.

New Occasional Pieces Now Combine Function, Charm

Things have been happening to occasional pieces which used to do little more than look decorative and hold the lamp and ashtrays. Now, all of the smartest ones have acquired brand new features which add immeasurably to their usefulness, and detract nothing from their original beauty.

Lamp tables, for instance, instead of being made with just four legs and a top, now boast a drawer, several drawers, or a shelf deep enough to hold a radio. And, some of these clever tables even conceal built-in coasters in the sliding drawer for the convenience of your party guests while others are equipped with removeable trays hidden under the top. Then, there are the large, corner tables, wonderful to use with sectionals, and which are built with a hinged top which opens to reveal a compartment deep enough to store extra bedding. These are especially practical for the den-guest room or the one-room apartment where closet space is at a premium.

The functional trend is also apparent in the latest coffee or cocktail tables with a few of the modern designs growing longer and longer until they now run the full-length of an extra-long sofa! Others are made with double tops which flip open to double their utility, and still, others swivel up from cocktail height to become a small dining or card table. Drawers and trays have also been incorporated in many of these designs.

Nor, have record cabinets and chests been neglected by the designers for the new record cabinets will hold your books or display your bric-a-brac as well as store the record albums. Many of them are also scaled to be used as commodes on either side of the sofa. And, chests, in some instances, have become combination desk-chests complete with three wide drawers in the base, sliding writing tray, pigeon-holes for correspondence, and open or closed shelves built above to house books, china and glass, or art objects.

In all styles, 18th Century, Provincial, or Modern, and in prices ranging from moderate to high, these newly-functional occasional pieces, are sure to please the most discriminating customer for they're just as handsome as they are practical.

Handsomely styled and budget-priced is this new wool-faced, room-size rug. Woven in a very small all-over textured design to give the effect of frieze or a high piled woven surface, this rug is especially designed for the homemaker who can't afford an all-woven rug. Its hair cushion back give it enough resilience to make a rug cushion unnecessary and the use of Latex adds the special finish which securely "locks in" the wool fibres. Shown in beige, green, rose, burgundy, tan, and gray, the 9x12 foot size is priced under $30.00.

CIVIL AIR PATROL SEEKING CADETS

Monroe Squadron Wants Youth 15 To 18 To Study Aviation

The Monroe squadron of the Civil Air Patrol is making a drive to recruit teen age cadets, 15 to 18 years of age, to be trained in the basic principles of aviation.

The local squadron of senior members, which numbers more than 50, is now well organized and ready with equipment and instruction material to begin training classes.

Courses of instruction are planned at the next regular meeting in the Civil Air Patrol building (across from the new terminal building) at Selman Field, Monroe Municipal Airport, at 8 p. m., Monday. All teen-agers interested in this training program, as well as senior members, are invited to attend this meeting.

The sponsoring organization of Civil Air Patrol is making available to CAP equipment to assist in training programs. Included in this is the L-4 aircraft which is shared between the Monroe and Ruston squadrons. This airplane is used for CAP pilot and observer proficiency in search and rescue work—or for actual search and rescue missions if heed for such arises. It may also be employed in aerial navigation and photography training.

Other equipment which has been turned over to the local CAP unit includes a Link instrument flight trainer and several walkie-talkie radio sets.

Activities of interest to CAP cadets and senior members include a two week training tour at an air force base each year. Participants in this training course are flown to and from the base in air force aircraft. While there they engage in aviation ground and flight training activities.

At the forthcoming meeting of the local squadron, it is planned to begin training by offering weekly courses in three principle aviation ground school subjects: aerial chart reading, aerial photography and radio communications.

The senior and cadet members at the meeting will be divided into three groups in accordance with subjects. Classes will be scheduled thereafter on a weekly basis.

CAP cadets should be boys or girls who have reached their 15th but not their 18th birthday and who are interested in aviation. It should be clearly understood, however, that CAP does not teach flying, but members, including senior men and women and cadet boys and girls may fly in air force and CAP aircraft when on official CAP business. Flight orientation and observation work in the CAP L-4 aircraft constitute official CAP business.

Prospective cadets who wish to attend the next meeting and do not have transportation to Selman Field should contact Captain Jack Hover, telephone 834.

The Conestoga wagon used in the U. S. covered wagon days was 16 feet long and its wheels were as high as a man.

SUGGESTIONS FOR ONE-ROOM LIVING

Small Apartment Can Be Made Into Nice, Livable Home

Present day designers have come to the front with so many clever innovations in furniture designs intended for the one-room apartment that furnishing a room for living, dining, and sleeping no longer presents a problem regardless of how limited your budget may be.

Improved Sleeping Units

Browsing through the stores and the Home Fashion Time displays, you'll see new and improved versions of dual-purpose, sleeping equipment in the form of conventional-looking sofas and love-seats in modern or traditional styles—smart one-armed modern sofas, sofas with matching lounge chairs, sectionals and studio couches with adjustable back-rests for greater seating comfort. Offered in a wide choice of styles and fabrics, there's a combination sleeping unit to please every taste.

Sectionals As Dividers

Then, there are all the new sectional units which include storage chests, record cabinets, china cupboards, and bookshelves all designed to be used together in any number of combinations. These may be used to form a wall unit or so arranged that they form a divider between the living and dining areas.

Multi-Purpose Designs

Two of the newest designs on the market especially adaptable for the one-room apartment is the "Hostess Desk"—actually a handsome, kneehole mahogany desk in traditional design, which easily converts into both a card table and dining table —and the "Magic Hostess" a combination chest, desk and dining table. Both of these pieces are handsomely styled and add decorative interest as well as function to a room.

There are also many new and smart versions of the convertible table which expand from console size to seat from four to ten persons. New and practical, too, are the large, low coffee tables which swivel up to dining height when necessary. And, some of these conceal additional leaves under their tops and can be opened up to full dining-table size.

Then, there are the complete storage-wall units which provide storage space for practically everything and may be ordered to fit your indvidual requirements.

Decorative Screens

Decorative screens are another suggestion for the one-room apartment. Covered in textured fabrics or wallpaper or made of flexwood, wood panels, or rattan, they're an excellent way of concealing the kitchen or dividing the room into two areas.

So, if you're a one-room apartment dweller, make it a point to visit the Home Fashion Time displays in your local furniture stores, for ideas that are fresh and original, and contribute to the joys and comforts of one-room living.

BEST-MADE PLANS, ETC.

CHICAGO. — (AP) — Ricardo Nelson runs a travel agency. He has mapped tours for many vacationists. His interest in his work was more than professional. He had the urge to go places, too. Finally, with the summer rush over, Nelson planned a nice long motor trip for himself. He got everything ready with practiced ease. Then the night before the takeoff date the brick wall of his garage collapsed. His car—and his plans—were ruined.

TREND IN NEW TABLE SETTINGS

China, silver and linen are being closely bound in design for the new table settings. Each piece is distinguished by its conformity to the central motif so that the assembled setting is completely harmonious in style and coloring. This is a far cry from the conglomerate settings of other days. The new trend has the charm of a new approach—a fresh dignity and exquisite simplicity characterizes the tables. After you have selected the motif you prefer, you will find the creative artists of the various manufacturers have coordinated their various efforts to make it easy for you to set a one-pattern table. The table setting shown here is designed around the ever popular "rose" motif. Lenox china in Rhodora pattern holds a single perfect rose in the center of its creamy, translucent body. Gold leaves in the pattern are 24 carat gold. To complement Rhodora pattern, Arthur Palmer of Palmer-Smith designed a special table cloth of Irish linen embroidered with matching gold leaves in Metlon, non-tarnishing thread, and rose. To complete the setting there is the attractive Damask Rose Heirloom sterling flatware and a centerpiece of fresh roses.

Experts Forecast 1949-50 Colors

Reports from the homefurnishings experts prophesy that the fashionable colors for now and the coming year are: Stone and slate gray, yellow greens and deep forest green, spring navy, chocolate and cocoa brown, and coppery biege for background colors in livingroom and dining room.

For bedrooms, they say, shades of blue ranging from cool kingfisher to soft, warm hyacinth. And, for a strictly feminine bedroom, a fresh, delicate pink.

The smartest accent colors to team with their basic-color choices are: Flame, bittersweet, tangerine, citron yellow, clear pink and ruby red.

You'll find all of these colors appearing in the Home Fashion Time, displays for manufacturers of furniture, fabrics, floorcoverings, wall paints and papers, have combined their efforts to make it easy for you to plan and complete your color scheme around these smart style-right colors.

Subdued Patterns New Fall Trend

Smaller patterns and softer colors keynote the new fall collection of decorative fabrics.

Large scale patterns in flamboyant colors have been gradually giving way to designs that are less conspicuous both in scale and color. One of the reasons for this new trend is the growing feeling among homefurnishings experts that fabrics should serve as a background for the furnishings in the room instead of emphasizing their own importance.

Many of these new patterns are designed with the small modern home in mind. With one room serving as living-and-dining room, fabrics are often used to create a dividing wall between the two room areas and as a fabric with a large, splashy pattern would be overpowering when used for this purpose, the need for less obtrusive designs was evident.

While colors are less vivid than they have been in recent years, they are not at all muddy or dull. Outstanding colors in the fall showings include the beautiful Chinese blues, reds and greens which follow the current decorating trend to furnishings of Chinese inspiration.

Radiant Heating Not Injurious To Carpets

If you're planning to build a new house and installing radiant heating, it will be good news to know that recent experiments conducted by the Carpet Institute have shown this type of heating will not harm rugs and carpeting.

As a radiant heating system is installed in the floor itself, the question of its effect upon floor-coverings has naturally arisen.

Moisture is of course, injurious to rug backing, so in houses without basements, the danger of moisture seeping through or condensing upon the concrete and damaging the rugs was long considered a possibility.

However, it has been discovered that radiant heating stores enough heat in the floor to prevent condensation of moisture, and as an extra precaution, a vapor barrier can be employed between the fill and the concrete slab.

Juvenile Furniture Is Now More Functional

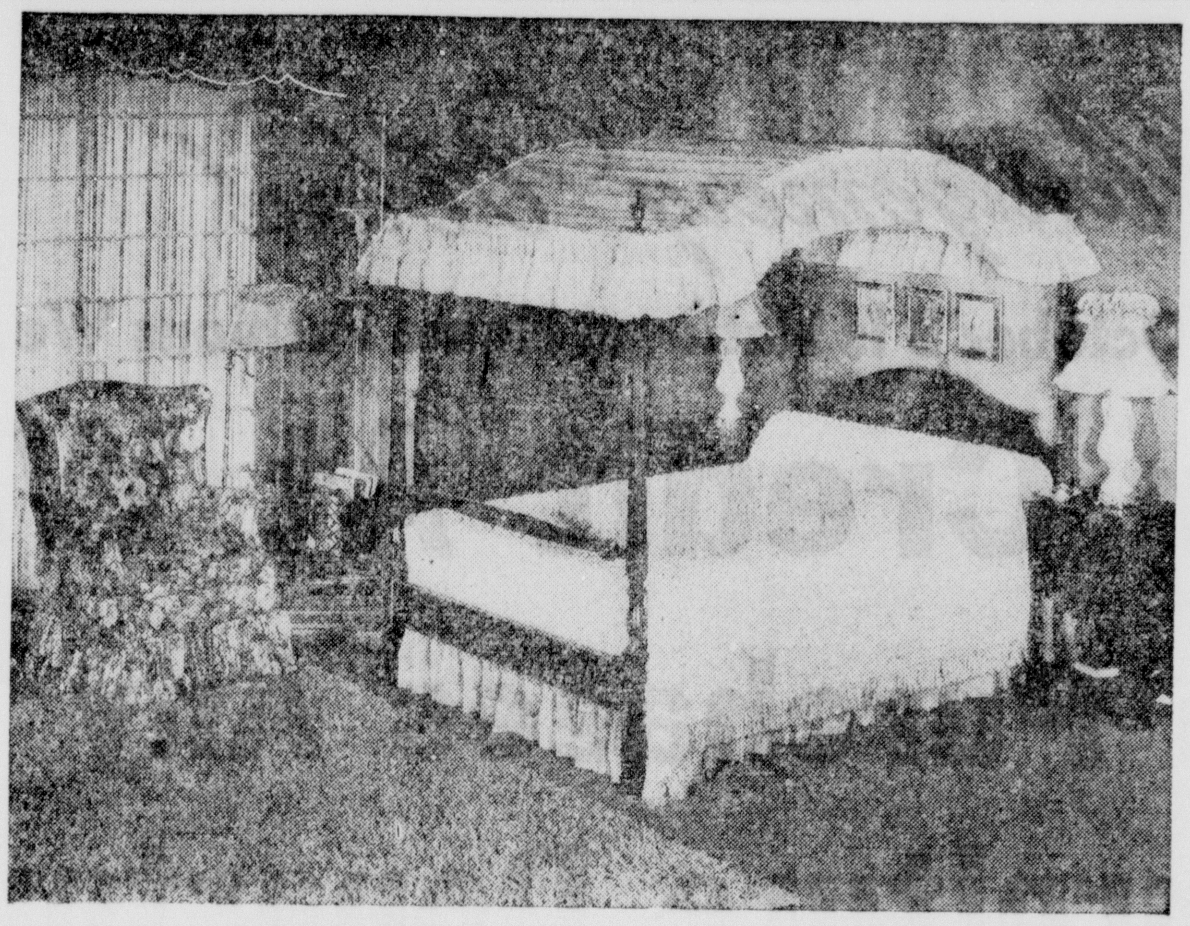
Borrowing from the functional furniture styles of adults, Juvenile furniture is becoming more and more practical.

The new modern functional groups designed for the younger generation feature larger chests with partitioned drawers, sectional bookshelves for books and toys, beds with removable safety sides, and table-type desks with matching benches large enough to seat two.

The styling of these new groups is simple and straight-lined, and the finishes are natural or honey color, all of which means less work to keep it clean.

In addition to the new contemporary styles, there are also some juvenile editions of French provincial and early American which are shown in maple, cherry, or painted finishes.

With all of these new developments in juvenile designs, the children's room can now be a miniature copy of mother and dad's.



This pleasant, comfortable bedroom is especially appropiate for older people who feel the need of retiring from the hustle-and-bustle of family activities. A quiet reading corner is provided by the comfortable wing chair, bridge lamp, and magazine rack, while the two large commodes can accommodate a lamp, books, personal accessories, a small radio, and ash-trays. Not shown in the photograph, is a small writing desk which can also serve as a card table or a dining table for one or two.

Make The Most Of Your Entrance Hall

Does your entrance hall look cold and empty or does it reflect charm and hospitality?

Since it is the first and last room your guests see and sets the character of your home, every effort should be made to furnish it attractively and this can easily be done without straining the budget.

If it's large enough, a chest of drawers flanked by two chairs, and a large mirror or picture grouping above it, makes a smart and practical arrangement. The entrance hall is a good spot, too, to place one of the well-designed, drawer-front cedar chests.

If space is limited, a console table with a mirror or picture arrangement above it is another decorative suggestion.

Wall treatment, is very important in this room, and the walls should either match, harmonize, or contrast the walls of the adjoining rooms. If the walls of these rooms are plain, a figured wallpaper repeating the wall color creates an interesting contrast. Or, if the walls of the adjacent rooms are covered with a patterned paper, the entrance hall may be papered with stripes in harmonizing colors, or covered with a plain paper or paint in the predominating color of the wallpaper.

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Business and industry steered around a rising tide of unfavorable developments at home and abroad this week to maintain a strong forward stride. In some lines activity was at the highest point since early last spring before the mild summer recession set in.

Taking no notice of the deepening labor crisis except where forced to do so, industrial production made favorable comparison with the best weeks of the budding fall upswing. The so-called strong lines of activity—automobiles, steel and construction—again paved the way for the overall performance.

Retail trade was a bit spotty because of a let down in consumer spending in areas having special problems such as the widespread idleness in the coal fields. But heavy forward buying for inventory accumulation more than made up for the slack at the corner grocery store. Prices in a long line of consumer goods duplicated the firmness that has been apparent in recent weeks.

Devaluation of currencies around the world sent shivers up the spine of textile markets. Trading simmered down to a quiet routine turnover, a far cry from the large volume of business that has marked this industry since it was discovered early in the summer that too many firms had let inventories drop too far and re-entered the market on the buying side.

All types of textile goods are likely to feel the pinch of foreign competition now that goods have been cheapened in such big textile countries as England and France.

Just how much American business will be hurt by this rash of currency tinkering and what lines will be hurt most is a question time alone will answer because of the many factors involved. Some competent international trade analysts lean heavily to the theory that the bark of foreign competition will be much worse than the bite.

There were additional factory re-openings this week and in a few other cases hours of work were lengthened, all of which added up to an improvement in the unemployment situation. While the ranks of the idle were swelled considerably this week by strikes and other labor troubles, those out of work because of the lack of a job were less numerous.

Steady to higher stock and bond markets apparently reflected strong belief that a solution would be found to the thorny labor problems now hanging over such basic industries as steel, coal, motor cars and railroads. While the matter averages of stocks listed on the big board ended the week unchanged, the individual action of such important groups as the rails and utilities bore a message of quiet confidence.

Just how much steel was produced this week was something of a guess because of precautionary measures taken in advance of a possible strike in the industry. Mills started out at an estimated operating rate of 86.2 per cent of capacity and on that basis were calculated to turn out 1,589,100 tons of finished products.

But as soon as a good start had been made on this schedule, sails were trimmed here and there to get plants in shape for any emergency. The big Bethlehem plant at Buffalo cut operations 25 per cent in anticipation of a walkout at the end of the current truce in the industry which expires next Saturday. Similar measures were taken in other producing districts.

Just how major steel consuming industries are fixed with stocks also is something of a guess and varies widely from firm to firm and even from plant to plant. Best guess is that the automobile makers are better situated to take a stoppage in steel plants than any other major user of steel.

Any prolonged interruption to output would be felt strongly in the currently booming building construction field because few if any builders stock upon this necessary material because few have any facility for storage.

A good idea of how fast this big industry is moving to fulfill all commitments before the onset of bad weather can be had from the contract closings in heavy construction this week. The total grossed $188,659,000, a comfortable gain over $156,021,000 in the previous week and far ahead of $100,303,000 in the like week in 1948.

Home building kept in step with the fast pace in the heavy field and there were additional commitments for large housing projects in various sections of the country which will call for a lot of bricks, cement, lumber, and other ingredients that go into a housing formula.

Automobile plants kept up a feverish production pace this week but some of them cut off overtime work as opinion gained ground that it won't be long now before dealer stocks are built up to a point where you can get any car you want without waiting and at list price.

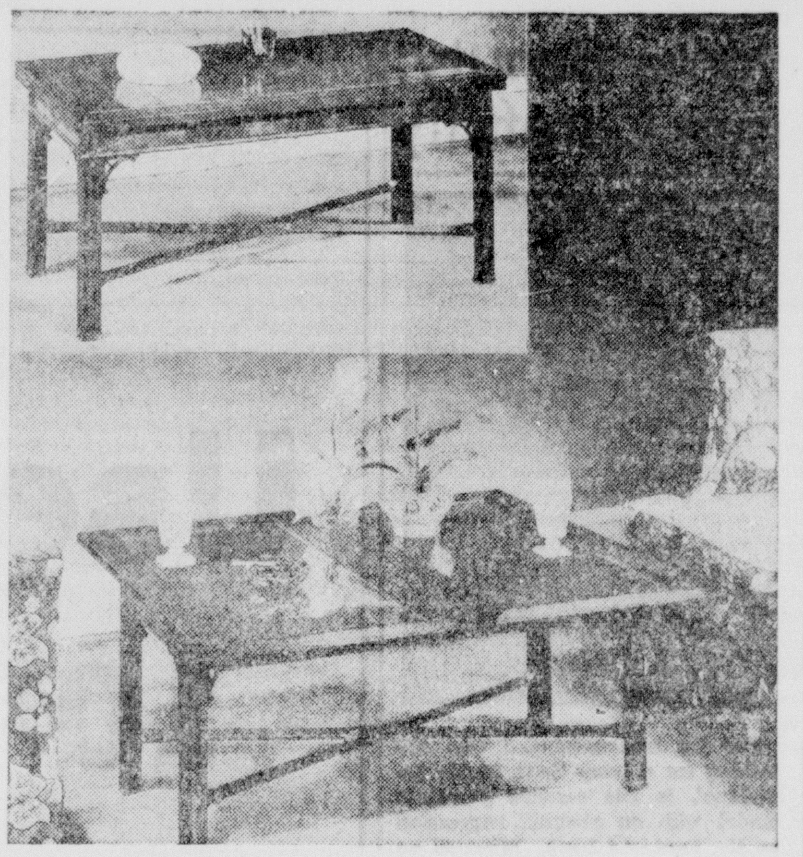
This week's output of 155,134 units in the United States and Canada compared with 159,493 in the previous week and 98,394 a year ago.

Electric power production ran up to 5,579,105,000 kilowatt hours the highest in any week since last February 19. This is a seasonal jump in line with shorter days and also reflects the constantly growing number of customers added to power company lines all over the country. Last week's output was 5,258,090,000 kilowatt hours and last year it was 5,426,247,000.

Freight carloadings were ahead of last week but far under a year ago as has been the case right along for many months; crude oil output was in line with that of the previous week but a trifle under last year and soft coal output faded into insignificance as all but independent miners stayed away from work because of the pension tangle.

On the financial side, business loans of banks increased for the sixth week running and to make it better news the gain was the best for any week since late in June. This week's loans sent the total outstanding at all banks to $13,171,000,000 from $13,007,000,000 in the previous week. Last year at this time, when the nation's business was approaching its highest point in history, business loans outstanding totaled $15,183,000,000.

Money in circulation took a dip as is usual for several weeks after such a big spending holiday as Labor Day. The country's gold stocks rose to a record high for the third straight week at $24,691,000,000. This was an increase of $42,000,000 over the previous week and $826,000,000 more than was in the vaults at Fort Knox last year at this time.



Stunning Chippendale design with modern ways describes this Hospitality table which flips open to double its surface space. The inside of the tops are lined with copper to prevent rings and cigarette burns, and the center compartment is lined with cork. Of antique finish mahogany, the table measures 39½x19¾ inches with the top closed, and 39½x39½ inches with the top open.

HASTINGS TO BE GIVEN FAREWELL

Retiring Pastor Of First Baptist Church Having Open House

Open house for the congregation of the First Baptist Church and friends of Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Hastings, will be held in the social rooms of the church Tuesday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. This affair will be in the nature of a farewell party as Reverend Hastings will leave in a few days for Pineville, Ky., where he will become instructor in a theological seminary.

Reverend Hastings has just completed 24 years as pastor here and in this time has been instrumental in the program of the church, which is today the largest in membership of any Protestant church in the city. When he became pastor there were 1,334 members, today the membership is 2,800. The church auditorium has been enlarged so as to seat 1,100 and has been much improved. The educational building was dedicated free of debt in 1934 when the church also is debt free. The last assessed valuation of the property of the church was $267,000, which is far lower than present day estimates.

It is expected that many in social and business walks of life will attend the open house in addition to others from churches of the Twin Cities.

It is stated that all will be welcome as they come to wish the Hastings success in their new activities.

Pictures Add Home Beauty; Should Be Chosen Carefully

Selecting proper pictures and suitable frames for your home is just as important and essential as choosing your furniture. For no room is complete without pictures.

An outstanding picture often decides the color scheme and sets the mood of a room or a series of rooms. With the wide variety of pictures in stores every homemaker will be able to find appropriate ones for any room, thus enhancing the beauty of her entire home.

Much time and care should be devoted to buying framed pictures as the most cherished possession.

As you begin to browse in art centers, stores, and museums, you will find that there are prints on every subject, reproduced in all sizes. How are you to make your choice from this staggering variety? To assist you here are a few guide posts to bear in mind when making your final selection.

Own Taste

When you buy a new dress, your personal preferences greatly influence your purchases. The pictures on your walls are as personal as the clothes you wear, and your taste should be satisfied, so that you will be happy. And above all, feel that you can live with your pictures, appreciating them more and more with the passage of time.

It is important that your favored pictures fit into the color scheme of your room and create the mood you desire. The dominant tones in the room should be repeated in the pictures, and the accessories. Lamps, draperies, and other decorative pieces should reflect the tones in the prints.

At the same time your pictures must fit into the furniture groupings. Pictures are an integrated part of the room setting, and it is important that they look as though they belonged there. When making your selection, it is wise to have a mental picture of the furniture arrangements and the available wall space. With this in mind, choosing pictures of the proper size becomes simplified.

Small Prints

For instance, if you have a desk arrangement in a corner of a room, a grouping of small prints would be attractive and would fit the limited wall space. The subjects of the prints should be related to one another, giving the feeling of unity to the arrangement.

What pictures will look like on your walls is dependent to a great extent on the choice of frames. The frame endows the picture with permanence, increases its importance, and gives it a sense of completion.

With the growing popularity of dark wall finishes, there is a definite trend toward light frames. The contrast makes the picture stand out. Another way to center interest on your picture is to use a wide mat, repeating one of the colors in the picture. In this case only a simple narrow frame is necessary.

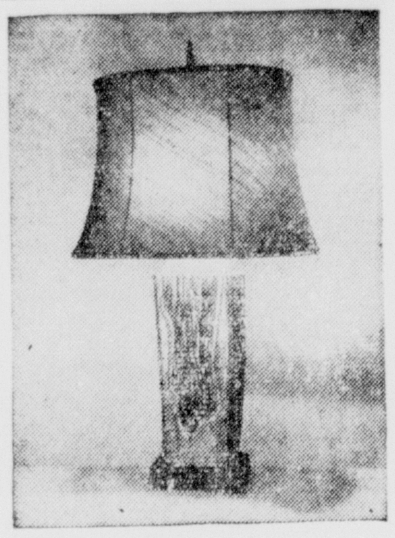
Your frames, too, must blend with your furnishings. If your furnishings are provincial, your picture frames should be simple and wide, made of wood in the style of the furniture.

Frames to fit traditional rooms demand more eloborate and darker woods in keeping with this period.

Bamboo

For modern rooms there is a variety of sleek, light wooden and metal frames. If your choice is chinoiserie prints, select bamboo frames, and they will be equally attractive in a contemporary or period room.

Shopping and finding the right pictures takes time. But your efforts will be rewarded when you see how skilful picture treatments increase the beauty of your home. Remember there are suitable pictures for all decorating needs.



For the modern-minded who are looking for a lamp that's highly individual, is this ceramic porcelain model with an abstract impression on the front and back. Mounted on a dark mahogany block, and finished with a hand-sewn pure silk shantung shade in grey, beige, natural, or chartreuse to harmonize with the green-and-gray, or yellow-and-doeskin base. Height is 33 inches.

Careful Care Is Needed With Silver

Fine sterling, once thought to be "court occasion," should be used daily, home economists suggest. Regular use and constant care of your sterling imparts a wanted satiny luster or "patina" caused by many tiny surface scratches.

Constant care of your sterling does not mean hoving about with a horde of messy potions. Though your sterling may look delicate, it will retain its loveliness just short of forever if you observe the "silver rule."

Don't risk scratches on your silver by tumbling it in a dishpan with kitchen knives and utensils.

Wash your sterling in warm, soapy water. Soak dried food loose. Do not scrape it. Rinse the pieces well then dry them with a soft cloth.

If food discolors your sterling, (mayonnaise dressing and eggs seem to be the worst offenders) clean the pieces at once with a reputable silver polish.

The best way to clean silver is to rub it brisky lengthwise with a soft cloth dipped in a good polish. Then wash the pieces in warm, soapy water, rinse well, and dry.

Keep your sterling flatware wrapped in specially treated tranish-proof cases in a compartment lined to protect it from direct contact with wood or rubber.

I'M NO CROOK, CHESTER.. AND WITH THE HELP OF YOUR UNCLE BIM THE SPICE OF LIFE WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO THE WHOLE WORLD!

FLIGHT? THAT'S THE WAY I CAME.. IN UNCLE BIM'S PLANE....

IS IT TRUE THAT THE SPICE OF LIFE WILL PREVENT ALL SICKNESS? WHAT A WONDERFUL WORLD IT WILL BE!
IF THERE WAS NO RAIN, HOW COULD WE ENJOY THE SUNSHINE? A PEARL IS A TEMPLE BUILT BY PAIN AROUND A GRAIN OF SAND..
GOLLY! I DON'T KNOW ANY MORE ABOUT YOU THAN I DID BEFORE I STARTED ASKING QUESTIONS!
MEANWHILE, BACK HOME..
CHESTER IS ARRIVING HOME TOMORROW!... SAYS HE'S BRINGING A WIZARD WITH HIM!
